The Oriental Travels of Julius Bolthausen

Part 1: The Picture Postcards

Recently I got hold of a small inconspicuous pamphlet, a travel brochure of Solingen¹ entrepreneur Julius Bolthausen: “Programm der Orientfahrten 1909” (programme for oriental trips 1909). Over 32 pages there's a lot of interesting material on tourism to the Orient at the beginning of the 20th century: besides descriptions of travel routes there are reports, pictures, and testimonials from previous journeys. Such a prospectus was probably published each year from 1902, in addition Bolthausen also published several more extensive books.²

Figs. 1 & 2: Front and back of the Bolthausen travel brochure „Programm der Orientfahrten 1909“

² See bibliography at the end of this article (p. 8).

Julius Bolthausen (pictured here in 1910, source: Delcampe, Fig. 3) was born in 1868 in Gräfrath, today part of the city of Solingen, and died in 1947 in Solingen. He was a teacher and from 1904 a tour operator and is considered a pioneer of cycling travel and tourism at the turn of the century. From 1891 Bolthausen undertook cycling tours throughout Europe and published numerous reportages. He was a much honoured member of the Deutsche Radfahrer-Union (German Cyclists' Association), in 1894 he founded the Wanderfalke club to promote cycle tourism and organised group tours for cyclists, usually as a combination of travelling by ship, railway and bi-cycle: Spain, Italy and Algeria were visited.

From 1902 he organised educational trips primarily for teachers and clergymen to Egypt and Palestine, but later also to India. In 1903, having gained leave of absence from the Ministry of Education, he prepared more trips to the Orient. In 1904 further leave was rejected and he had to retire from civil service. During World War I, Bolthausen unsuccessfully volunteered for the Turkish army. By the 1920s he restarted his travel business, now operating from Cologne.

In total Bolthausen organised 83 trips: 62 before World War I and a further 21 from 1924 onwards. In 1931/1932 he closed his business due to old age and returned for his retirement to Solingen.

"Julius Bolthausen is a personality, that impressively represents the outwardly at the opening of Germany since the late 19th century." (Findbuch Nachlass Bolthausen, Stadtarchiv Solingen, p. III, edited by Hartmut Roehr).

Julius Bolthausen was, like his sons Julius (1913-?) and Arthur (1897-1981) a member of the NSDAP. Arthur Bolthausen was involved, as adjutant of the Solingen borough leader, in the murder of local journalist Max Leven in 1938; he was sentenced in 1949 for complicity to two years imprisonment.

Erste deutsche Lehrerfahrt nach Aegypten — Palästina
August—September 1902. Solingen. H. Grobden. 8° 37 S.
2 Karten.

Lehrer J. Bolthausen in Solingen theilt den Theilnehmern an der projectirten vierzigtägigen Excursion nach Triest, Patras, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Haifa, Karmel, Nazareth, Tiberias (eventuell Damaskus), Port Said, Cairo, Alexandrien, Athen, Smyrna, Constantinopel, Wien in Form eines Handbüchleins alles Wissenswerthe über ihre Tour mit, die ca. 800 M. kosten soll und als erste einer fortlaufenden Reihe ähnlicher Orientausflüge deutscher Lehrer geplant ist. Doch behandelt das Büchlein nicht die endgültig gewählte Zufahrtlinie, sondern die ursprünglich projectirte über Genua, Neapel. Davon abgesehen, stellt es zugleich das Reiseprogramm dar. Beigegeben ist eine Münztabelle sowie praktische Winke verschiedener Art, ferner ein Routenkärtchen und eine Weltkarte mit den Linien des Norddeutschen Lloyd. Wir wünschen dem Unternehmen besten Erfolg und würden es freudig begrüßen, wenn die Idee auch bei der österreichischen Lehrerschaft Nachahmung finden würde. Sgr.

Kurze Mittheilungen.

L. Am 24. Juli kam unter Führung des Lehrers Bolthausen die erste, und am 20. August die zweite Reisegesellschaft deutscher Lehrer in Haifa an. Letztere fuhr noch am gleichen Tage nach Nazareth, um von dort am 21. August Tiberias und die deutsche katholische Niederlassung bei 'Ain el-Tabgha am See Genezareth zu besuchen. Am 22. August gingen sie von dort wieder über Tiberias und Nazareth nach Haifa zurück. Trotz des sehr starken Marsches dieses letzten Tages nahmen die Reisenden noch am Familienabend im deutschen Verein teil und griffen lebhaft in die Unterhaltung ein.

— Am 19. August 1903 fuhr der Dampfer des Österreichischen.

Orient-Studienfahrt. Herr Prof. Bolthausen in Solingen reist folgendes mit: Aegypten und Palästina werden auch im Jahre 1907 das Ziel mehrerer Studienfahrten bilden. Die 20. Reise beginnt am 16. März in Genua und führt über Neapel, Corinth, Athen, Smyrna, Rhodos, Beirut, Damaskus, See Genezareth durch Galiläa nach Jerusalem, wofür die Teilnehmer während des Osterfestes weilen, und weiter nach Unter- und Oberägypten bis Luxor-Affnan. Wer nicht die ganze Tour mitmachen will, kann eine der im Programm vorgesehene Teiltouren wählen. Die Sommerreisen beginnen am 10. Juli, 8. August und 19. September. Kleine Separatdampfer werden nicht benutzt, sondern fast ausschließlich die großen Schiffe der regulären Linien des Norddeutschen Lloyd, n. a. die Salon dampfer „Therapia“, „Schleswig“ und „Hohenzollern“. Sämtliche Fahrten, an denen auch Nichtlehrer teilnehmen, werden von dem Veranstalter dieser Studienreisen, Herrn Prof. Bolthausen in Solingen, persönlich geleitet. Ausführliche Programme werden auf Anfrage kostenfrei zugesandt.

On page 28 of the 1909 travel brochure Bolthausen offers the following: 106 watercolour picture postcards by painter Perlberg, at 10 Pfennig each, including two series with a total of 37 cards of Palestine and Syria.

On page 3 this is promised: “For forwarding addresses of ladies and gentlemem fond of travelling and likely to be interested in a Middle East trip, such water-colour cards will be sent directly from the Middle East.” On a card depicting Mar Saba monastery (dated 1910-1913) the offer is increased to 148 cards: “The Orient and Mediterranean countries in water-colour postcards by the famous painters Perlberg & Wuttke,” and the price drops to 8 Pfennig per card.

Even in 1929, Bolthausen still offers these cards in an advertisement in a Swiss female teachers' newspaper "Schweizerische Lehrerinnenzeitung" saying that "All travellers will receive a series of 70 water-colour cards (6 Mark) of the locations to be visited to choose from."

Postcards depicting Perlberg paintings can be found commercially by the thousands. On Ebay and Delcampe alone there are at any point in time hundreds of such offers to be found. The cards are predominantly prints of Munich-based publishing house “CA & Co.” from different series, often printed over many years, particularly with motifs of the Holy Land. There are cards with different inscriptions also with other publishers: his Egyptian motifs were published by “R. & J.D.”

Perlberg not only painted Levant motifs: he had cards with German designs such as castle Hohen-zollern published by Junging, Ulm, and “E S D.” Cards with Wuttke motifs were published also by “CA & Co.,” amongst other publishers. They are, in relation to the Perlberg cards, much rarer to find.

The painter Friedrich Perlberg was born in Nuremberg in 1848 and died in Munich in 1921. Art encyclopaediae describe him as a German landscape and architectural painter with his principal place of work in Munich. After travelling in Egypt, Perlberg followed in the Emperor's entourage to Palestine in 1898, but is better known for his motifs from Spain and Italy. Perlberg's Palestine watercolours were published in two volumes: “Bilder aus dem Heiligen Land” (1900) and “Das Heilige Land in Wort und Bild” (1909/1924).

Carl Wuttke was a pre-impressionistic German landscape and architectural painter, born in Trebnitz (Silesia) in 1849, he died in Munich in 1927. He is primarily known for his Italian motifs, but also painted extensively on his many travels around the world.

As far as it's known Bolthausen did not print the cards he offered himself, but had overprints arranged onto commercially available cards of publisher CA & Co., Munich.

Amongst hundreds of Perlberg and Wuttke cards on offer at Ebay and Delcampe, I only found one postcard (in unused condition) with the additional imprint "Verlag Julius Bolthausen, Solingen." (Fig. 12). The second card I saw (quite by accident) in an issue of Holy Land Postal History, here the imprint says "Jul. Bolthausen, Orient-Reisebureau, Solingen." (Fig. 13, used card, postmark: Jaffa 1, 26.07.1910).

Are these Bolthausen cards really so rare? Maybe others were sold without an additional imprint? But this seems rather unlikely; of course I may have overlooked some, as not all sources show the reverse of cards.

Therefore to end this concise treatise, an appeal: Do you know of Perlberg or Wuttke postcards with a Bolthausen imprint? I'd be grateful to receive further information and pictures. The complete 1909 Bolthausen travel brochure will soon be available on my website.

This article deals only with Bolthausen's postcards. A soon-to-be-published second article will deal with the "Caiffa Bisects": in the spring of 1908, the Austrian Postmaster of Caiffa (Haifa), against all rules, bisected 10-Centimes and 20-Paras stamps at the request of Bolthausen and cancelled them. Join me for an exciting story!

Did you know ...?

... that when the first issue of the BAPIP Bulletin, the journal of the British Association of Palestine-Israel Philatelists, appeared in July 1952, most consumer goods, including food, clothes, soap, and paper, were still rationed.

Petrol rationing ended in May 1950, sugar in September 1953, but many other goods, including the paper needed to print an amateurs' newsletter, stayed rationed until July 1954.

The Mail Robbery between Jaffa and Jerusalem in March 1912

Due to the so-called “capitulations”¹ the Ottoman Empire had to reluctantly allow European powers (among other privileges to foreigners and foreign companies) to operate post offices on its territory. These postal services were in actual fact all but tolerated and that also only in port cities, and even there, the Ottoman authorities did everything to obstruct these unwanted rivals.²

The political weakness of the Sublime Porte gave the imperialist states the opportunity to enforce these privileges by threats of violence and economic sanctions over many decades, and even to expand them at will. Only after the outbreak of the First World War and the related political resurgence of the Ottoman Empire as an ally of Germany and Austria, the government in Constantinople was able to unilaterally repeal these “capitulations” from 1st October 1914.³ When the Ottoman government once again demanded the closure of the foreign post offices in September 1914, the European powers had to obey.⁴

Jerusalem was the only city in the country’s interior (i.e. not a port city), in which such foreign post offices operated: Austria (Lloyd Austriaco agency: 1852, k.k. post office: 1859), France (1890), Germany (1900), Russia (ПОПНТ post office: 1901) and Italy (1908). All this foreign mail traffic to and from Jerusalem went exclusively through the port city of Jaffa.

However, the railway line between Jaffa and Jerusalem, operated by French railway company “Société du Chemin de Fer Ottoman de Jaffa à Jérusalem et Prolongements” was prohibited from transporting mailbags of foreign offices due to specific terms in its licence charter.⁵ A first leg from Jaffa to Ramle opened on 24th May 1891 and the first train travelled the whole distance on 27th August 1892. The official opening of the line took place on 26th September 1892. Patera explains:⁶

Although the two aforementioned cities [Jerusalem and Jaffa] have been linked by a single-track railway for a distance of about 87 km since 1892, the now four foreign post offices could not benefit from this means of transportation. The Turkish government forbade the railway company specifically to transport foreign mailbags. As a result of this ban, the administrations of the foreign post offices were forced to have the mail consigned to them in Jerusalem conveyed by rental coaches to Jaffa.

Father Schmitz describes the situation in 1913 as follows:⁷

As I said above, only the Turkish Post is linked by means of trains with Jaffa and therefore to the European mail. All foreign post offices have to maintain their traffic through daily coach

1 The term is somewhat misleading: the Ottoman kapitülâsyon / قاپيتولاسيون or ahidnâme / 'ahdnâme / عهدنامه generally describe trade and other international treaties. These were drafted in chapters (capitule).

2 Lindenberg, 1926, p.15: “It also banned its own subjects in 1900 from using them [foreign post offices], [...]” See also Hoexter/Lachman, 1958, p. 1051, for the ban of selling stamps outside the post offices, as well as Pollack, 1957, pp. 805–807.

rides and these rides are neither easy nor non-hazardous, particularly in winter. The strong rains make the street from Jaffa to Jerusalem often almost impassable. The draught animals have always to be changed half way. As some stretches are almost uninhabited and full of hiding places, and as most rides happen at night, every stage coach is always accompanied by an armed kavass for security reasons. Even so several sporadic robberies have occurred over the years. Just two years ago there was a successful robbery of an Austrian coach. The kavass was shot from a dark hiding place and the coach was plundered, only later a significant part of the loot could be recovered. In order to reduce the costs of these coach journeys, the German, French, Russian, and Italian post offices have decided to undertake these rides jointly with costs shared,⁸ and it seems that this alliance of four is permanent, because it brings great benefits to each partner.

This description made me curious to find out more about this robbery. In several philatelic articles the events are only mentioned briefly,⁹ in others contemporaneous newspaper reports are simply quoted.¹⁰ I found one article in a German newspaper describing the incident in greater detail:¹¹

Mail Robbery between Jaffa and Jerusalem

During the night of 29th to 30th March – as we have already told our readers in brief – the Jaffa-Jerusalem stage coach was attacked by a band of about 20 Maghrebinians (Arabs).¹² As usual on the evening of 29th March at 7 o'clock (punctual to the timetable) two mail coaches, one from the Austrian Post, the other from the Franco-German-Russian Post, took off from Jaffa, the Austrian coach drove ahead. Approximately 7 km from Jaffa, near the village of Safirije,¹³ the band of robbers laying in an ambush suddenly opened well-aimed fire on the Austrian coach that drove ahead. Two of the three horses draughting the coach collapsed dead at once, the accompanying Austrian Post kavass¹⁴ was killed by the first shots, the coach driver escaped. The second, Franco-German-Russian coach, accompanied by a Russian postal kavass drove at a gallop past the Austrian coach on the side facing away from the attack while the kavass fired from his two revolvers onto the attackers. In passing, one of the three horses was shot and broke down after being swept along several hundreds of metres. The kavass and the driver jumped immediately off the coach box, cut the ropes of the fallen horse and chased away in a gallop, trailed by further shots from the robbers that didn't cause any more damage.

In the nearest village Ramleh the kavass reported the incident to the mudir (community leader) who immediately sent two policemen on foot to the crime scene. They returned after two hours with the message, that the Austrian Post's kavass and a Turkish policeman were found dead near the burgled Austrian stage coach. As it turned out later, after the first shots four policemen from near-by rushed to the scene to drive off the robbers. But they had to give way to the superior might after one policeman was killed, the others fled. Of the contents of the Austrian stage coach the robbers took away 10 ordinary parcels and 1 insured parcel with a declared

8 Lindenbergh, 1926, pp. 15–16: “[...] the German, French, Russian, and later the Italian post office together used one stagecoach belonging to a Turk which travelled daily between Jaffa and Jerusalem. The Austrian post office made use of a coach by itself.” According to p. 27, ibid., the Italian post office had at first been refused from participating.

9 See e.g. Eberan von Eberhorst, 1914, p. 22.

10 See reports in The Holy Land Philatelist, 1958, p. 1052.

11 Deutsche Verkehrs-Zeitung, 1912, pp. 258–259.

12 The German text says “Moghrabiner (Araber)”. The British Consul (see The Holy Land Philatelist, 1958, p. 1052) speaks of Algerian robbers under their leader Sheikh Ahmed.

13 The village Safirijeh or al-Safiriyya / السافرية is about 10 km South-East of Jaffa. The British Consul (see The Holy Land Philatelist, 1958, p. 1052) speaks of the village Beit Dejun, i.e. Bayt Dajan / بيت دجن, about 2 km West of Safirije. This would then just about confirm the distance of 7 km specified in the report.

14 According to Eberan von Eberhorst, 1914, p. 22, the kavass killed was called Omar Jakub Wahbe.

value of 300 Francs,¹⁵ the ordinary letter mail was found untouched.¹⁶ Only the presence of mind of the Russian Post's kavass is to thank for the German-French-Russian Post escaping looting.

This raid shines anew a light on the insecurity of the road from Jaffa to Jerusalem, on which the foreign post offices need to operate. It is not for the first time that the post was endangered there. On 31st January 1907 at Ramleh, very close to the current crime scene, an attack by a 10-strong mounted band armed with rifles and sabers was attempted on the combined Franco-German-Russian and the Austrian postal coaches. The attack was repelled without people being harmed or mail getting lost. The insecurity of the highway is caused by its very poor quality, in wet weather it is often muddy. During the night of 2nd to 3rd January a mail coach got stuck near the village Kubbab¹⁷ in a hole caused by previous rainfall highly softening the street; it could not escape from the morass. The post-bags had to be loaded onto the three remaining coaches and their hoods partly tied. During this operation a post-bag must have been lost because a German bag was missing on arrival in Jerusalem. This bag was returned by an Arab woman in undamaged state only on 22nd January, after a reward was advertised for its recovery.

These events let the request of the involved administrations appear justified: that the Turkish railway Jaffa to Jerusalem gets opened for the secure transport of their mail, which is ruled by the licence charter. Until then, the postal authorities have to make do, and to use each such event to urge the Turkish Government to improve the road and its safety.

15 According to a newspaper report in Haor on 1.04.1912 (cited in The Holy Land Philatelist, 1958, p. 1052) cash worth a total of 30,000 French Francs is involved, the British Consul speaks about 750 British Pounds.

16 According to a newspaper report in Haeruth on 10.04.1912 (cited in The Holy Land Philatelist, 1958, p. 1052) five of the robbers were arrested. Coins worth 1,400 French Francs (140 Semi-Napoléon) and the watch of the Austrian kavass were seized. The departure of the mail coaches from Jaffa was temporarily postponed to 12 o'clock noon.

17 This refers to al-Qubab / القباب about 10 km South-East of Ramle towards Latrun, not Kubebe / al-Qubeiba / القبية further East.

I have found a few photographs showing the different coaches at various times:

- Fig. 2: This photograph (dated to after 1908)¹⁹ shows the Austrian postal wagon (with the inscription “K.K. ÖST. POST”) to the left and (perhaps) the collective carriage of the other offices to the right.
- Fig. 3: This photograph, dated to 1890, shows a different Austrian wagon.²⁰
- Fig. 4: On a photograph of the German post office (dated to 1905 to 1912)²¹ there’s another wagon as well as an armed kavass.

An Introduction to Perfins of the Levant

by Dick Scheper

Copyright © 2015

What first attracted me to the perfins from the Ottoman territory was the fact that the same perfins (perforated initials) can be found in stamps of the Levant issues of different European countries as well as in stamps of the Ottoman Empire. Today 55 different perfin patterns are known to have been used by companies in the Ottoman Empire. In this article I intend to write only some general notes about the use of perfins in the Ottoman Empire.

Fig. 1: Perfins O.C.M. of Oriental Carpet Manufacturers Ltd. in Smyrna, on a registered letter to Switzerland.

As the use of postage stamps increased, the problem of protecting stamps from theft by both the post office authorities and by employees of large commercial houses increased proportionately. Stamps had been removed from the mail in transit by dishonest postal clerks and stolen by employees from large firms, either for resale or for personal use.

In 1868 in Great Britain, a Mr. Joseph Sloper invented a machine to perforate stamps with a design or with perforated initials, now called perfins. The advantages to be gained in the protection of postal accounts were soon apparent and the practice of using perfins eventually spread to continental Europe. By 1880 stamps with perforated initials were in use by many firms all over Europe. It was only logical then that large European firms continued this practice when they opened their branches in Constantinople and in other towns of the Ottoman Empire. See fig. 1 for an example of perfins in Austrian Levant stamps.

In the nineteenth century Constantinople had grown well beyond the limits of the walls of the former capital of the Eastern Roman Empire: Byzantium. The old town within the triangle of walls was named Istanboul (Stamboul), but the main trading and residential centres were now situated on the opposite side of the Golden Horn, in the former Genoese and Venetian quarters of Galata and Pera, where a large modern city was developing and where a growing number of European firms had their office buildings.

Very large firms, for instance important banks like Wiener Bank-Verein¹ and Crédit Lyonnais, sent their mail to customers in many different countries. These firms offered their mail to the foreign post office where they expected to get the best service for delivering the mail fast and accurately to the addressee. So the mail to Austria was usually brought to the Austrian Levant post office, while the mail to France was usually offered to the postal clerks of the French Levant post office. Of course the mail through the Austrian Levant post office had to be franked with Austrian Levant stamps and the mail through the French post office should be franked with French Levant stamps. That is the reason why we can find the same perfin in Levant postage stamps of different European countries (fig. 2).

For letters to addressees in Ottoman towns without a foreign post office, the mail had to be franked with postage stamps of the Ottoman Empire. That's why many perfins, which are known in Levant stamps of different countries, can also be found in stamps of the Ottoman Empire or Turkey.

Fig. 2: Perfin BIO of Banque Impériale Ottomane, Constantinople, in Levant stamps of Great Britain, France, Italy, Austria, and Germany.

Sometimes the perforated initials of the perfin user are combined to form a monogram. That is the case for the perfins of the well known French bank Crédit Lyonnais (fig. 3).

Fig. 3: Perfin CL monogram.

Finally I would like to show this ‘CL’ monogram perfin of Crédit Lyonnais on a cover franked with two stamps of the Ottoman Empire and addressed to Zurich in Switzerland (fig. 4).

Fig. 4: Cover with perfin of Crédit Lyonnais, Constantinople, sent to Zurich on 10.03.1915.

The front of the cover shows one red and one black rectangular cachet while there is also a large red seal on the reverse, all in Ottoman script. The black cachet and the seal both are marks of censorship in Istanbul. The red cachet on the front is a private mark of the sender, saying that the letter is in French. To let the letter pass censorship it was the sender's duty to state the language on the cover.

Questions about the article and any other question the reader may have about Levant perfins are very welcome and can be sent to my email address: dick.scheper@planet.nl.

Air Mail Service in French Cilicia 1920

by Jean-Bernard Parenti, Académie de Philatélie
(translated by Richard B. Rose)¹

Copyright © 2015

After almost a century, the subject of the Cilicia air mail post remains enigmatic for aero-philately and collectors of this region. The total absence of any known covers and the rarity of the air mail stamps still fosters all manner of suppositions. The only known covers are fabrications, and the numerous legends associated with these souvenirs only fan the flames of the air mail post myth.

However, I think I can clear up the mystery of this supposed air mail service, thanks to the evidence of archival documents and the accumulation of various articles published on this subject over the past 75 years.

The story begins in the summer of 1920 in Cilicia, while fierce combat is underway between French and Kemalist forces. The French-occupied city of Adana is almost surrounded; the telephone lines have been cut, as has the railway line linking the city to the port of Mersine. Only the wireless T.S.F. (télégraphie sans fil) enables the military post at Adana to remain in contact.

The situation is such that General Dufieux proclaims a state of siege on 4th July. An article by L. A. Chaintrier² lays out the consequences for the postal service:

Beginning on 7th July, Lt. Georges de Perrien, special secretary to Col. Brémont, administrative chief in Cilicia, pursuant to an order from the same, took the necessary arrangements to transmit mail from the garrison troops and their dependants on military planes.

This required the Trésor & Postes service, by order of Col. Brémont, to fabricate a cachet consisting of three words in three lines, POSTE PAR AVION, inside a frame. This cachet was to be applied on all prepaid letters collected by the post office.

The actual air service turned out to be of only slight utility as just three trips actually occurred during the blockade (which lasted until 20 August), and only two afterwards. [...]

The first postal flight occurred on 16th July 1920, and flew from Adana to Mersine.

The second postal flight was on 29th July, from Adana to Aleppo and Beirut.

The third postal flight left from Adana to Mersine on 17th August. Mail addressed to France was passed off to the battleship Provence, commanded by vice-admiral Bon.

The fourth postal flight took place on 23rd August, destined from Adana to Mersine, whose mail destined for France was taken by the battleship Waldeck Rousseau, commanded by vice-admiral Mornet.

The fifth and final postal flight flew from Adana to Mersine on 28th August, the same battleship handling mail bound for France.

I should add that a plane carrying mail was destroyed by a Turkish artillery shell while still on the airfield at Adana, just as the pilot was preparing for take-off.

2 Chaintrier, 1939, p. 746. Chaintrier is also author of the sketches to distinguish genuine fake copies, first in 1938 in The Field Aero, other designs have emerged in World Stamp Digest in February 1940.

This article, so very precise and historically accurate, led readers to assume the legitimacy of this postal air service.

However, certain points can now be challenged in light of the military archives deposited at Vincennes with the Historical Service of the Ministry of Defense. These archives make available a day by day account of the siege of Adana,³ which weaken the accepted version. For instance, one finds absolutely no trace of these mail flights on the dates given by the article, and in a besieged city, the implementation of an air convoy or air drops would most certainly be mentioned.

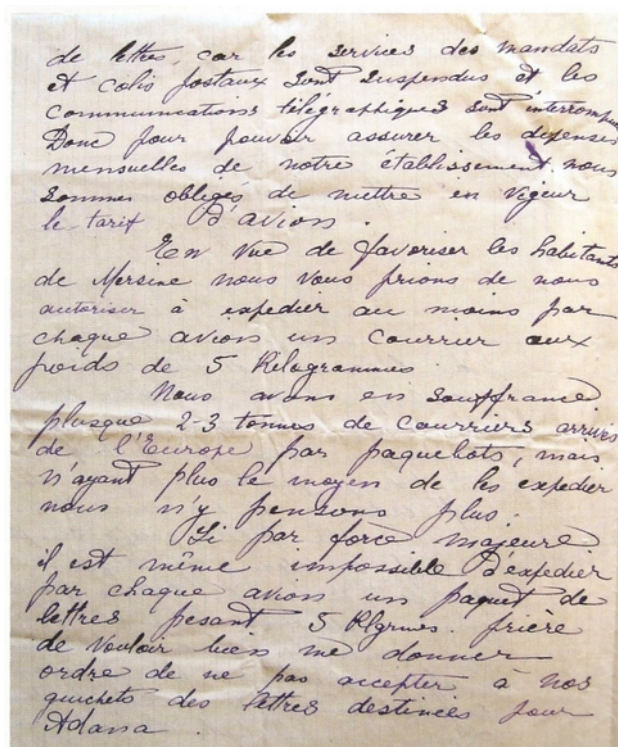

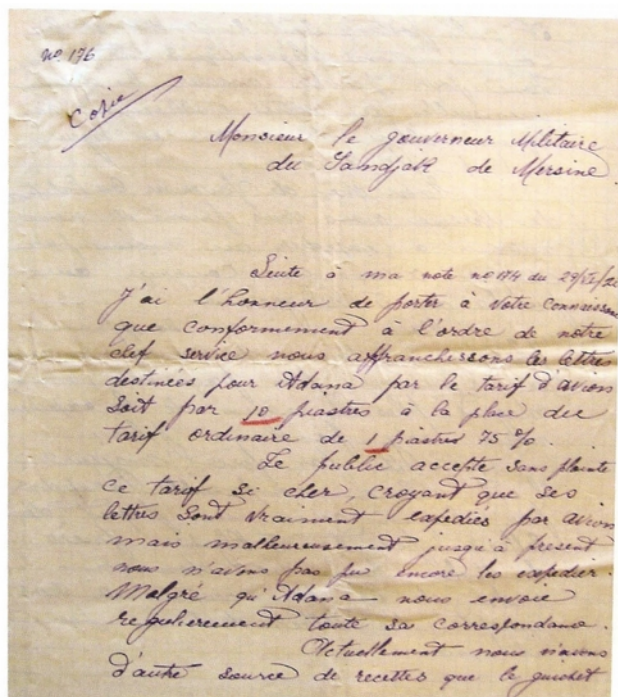

Fig. 1: Official copy of note (dated 1 July 1920) from the Director of Posts at Mersine to the military governor stating that letters bearing the higher air mail rate postage will, nonetheless, not be sent by air.

For 20th June, the report mentions that:

The entire army of Cilicia has only two planes, both frayed and overtaxed. One was about to explode when it crashed yesterday about 6 km from the city. [...] The other makes frequent flights just to reconnoitre enemy positions.

On 19th July, one reads:

An American major of the YMCA, flying from Adana to Mersine, was deputed to drop the mail pouch while passing over Tarsus, as usual.

Then:

A SPAD⁴ plane was destroyed when the flying field was bombarded on 23rd July.

3 I refer to a 43-page document related to the siege of Adana, from 17th June to 17th August, written up by a naval information officer: Cote 20N 1375.

4 The plane's manufacturer, SPAD stands for Société pour L'Aviation et ses Dérivés, owned by Louis Blériot. (editor)

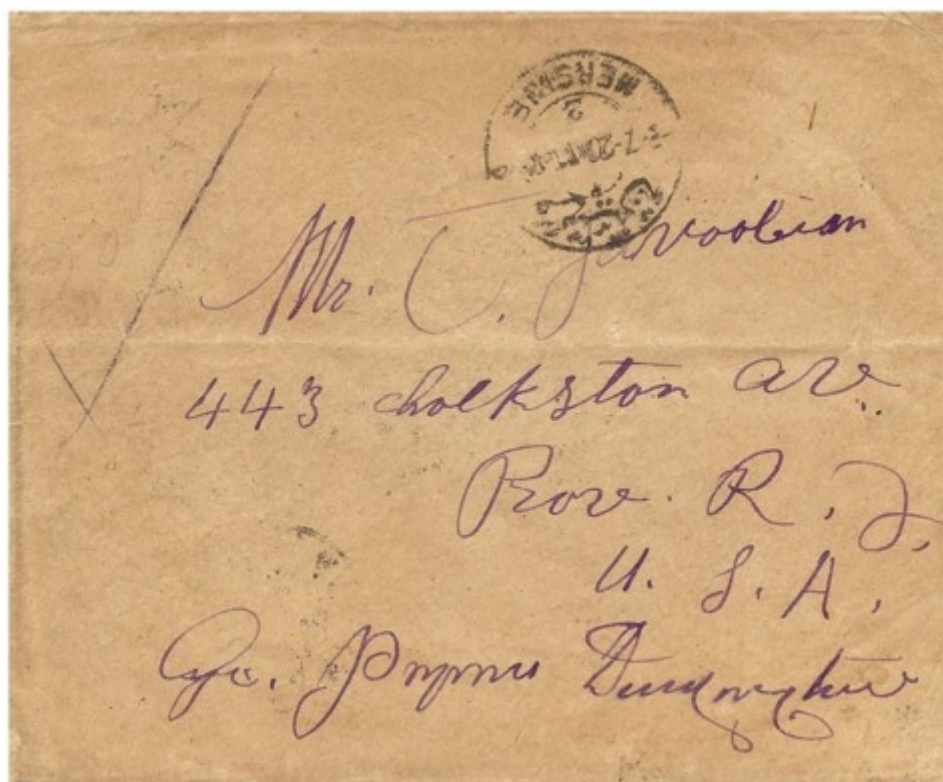

Fig. 2: Letter from Adana dated 29th June 1920, destination Providence, Rhode Island, USA, paying the 10 piastre rate. Note the manuscript marking "Par Avion" on the front and the arrival date stamp of 6th July 1920. Despite the 10 piastre postage, the letter travelled by train from Adana to Mersine. Before the start of the siege of Adana (4th July), the rail line between the two cities was in operation, but the train was regularly sabotaged, hence the long duration of the journey.

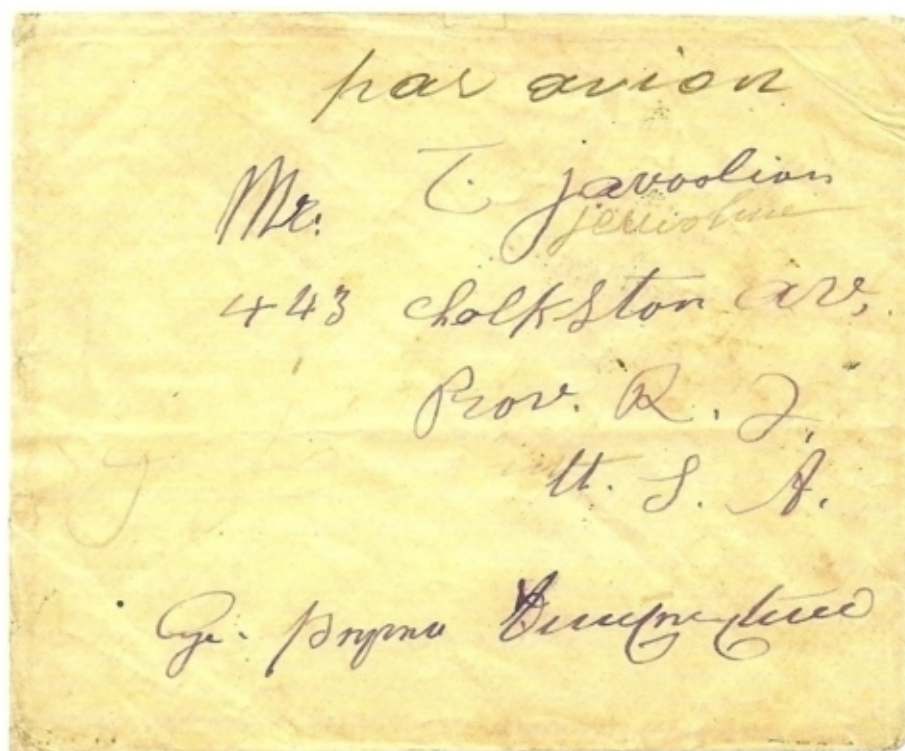

Fig. 3: Letter from the same correspondent to the same destination from Adana dated 5th July 1920 (the day after the proclamation of a state of siege). Postage of 10 piastres affixed, along with handwritten notation "Par Avion" on backside.

The arrival date stamp is 7th July 1920. This letter was probably put on the last train leaving for Mersine.

From these bits of evidence, one may conclude that if this information casts doubt on the existence of such flights, other sources imply that air mail postal service was on the point of being operational, but was never realised due to the fighting.

In support of this, I uncovered a letter in the archives of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. This letter, addressed by the Director of Postes at Mersine to the military government of the Sanjak of Cilicia, confirms that an air mail postal service, open to the civilian population, had been established:⁵

Sir:

Pursuant to my note no. 174 of 29/VI/20, I have the honour to bring to your attention that, conforming to the order of our Chief of Service, we will charge letters destined for Adana by the Air Mail rate, namely, 10 piastres, instead of the ordinary rate of 1 piastre 75 centimes.

The public accepts this high postage rate without complaint, believing that their letters are indeed being delivered by air mail, but unfortunately at present we do not have the means to do so, even though Adana sends all its correspondence to us [to be put into the general mail stream].

The fact is that we have no revenue source other than counter⁶ receipts for mail, since money order and parcel service has been suspended and telegraph communications are often interrupted. Thus, in order to be able to maintain the monthly expenses of our operations, we are obliged to put into effect this air mail rate.

As a way to placate the residents of Mersine, we ask you to authorise us to send a mail sack of at least 5 kilos for each flight. We have in the pipeline [being held up] almost 2–3 tonnes of mail coming from Europe by steamer [ship] but, no longer having the means to ship them [to Adana], we can think of no alternative.

If, by force majeure, we cannot even send a mail bag of 5 kilos on each flight, we request that you provide us with the order to stop accepting at our [post office] counters any mail for Adana.

In sum, the provisioning of the besieged outpost by the few aircraft flying back and forth between Adana and Mersine is more important than sending mail.

Despite some historical inaccuracies,⁷ an article by J. Le Pileur⁸ sheds some light on the production of the cachet POSTE PAR AVION and its application on postage stamps:

[...] A postal memo stipulates that this surcharge is to be applied to one of the two stamps [set aside for this service] [...] and only after the postal clerk has cancelled the letters [...]

A sheet of fifty 2 piastre stamps and another sheet of fifty 5 piastre stamps had been reserved for eventual surcharging: it appears that these stamps were not entirely used up. [...]

The wooden cachet for surcharging the stamps was destroyed on 30th July.⁹

5 Diplomatic Archives kept at Nantes: Cote Cilicie, carton 147.

6 Rose translated “guichet” as window, but counter is more appropriate. (editor)

7 The state of siege was declared on 4th July, not 14th July as Le Pileur states.

8 Le Pileur, 1948, pp. 66–68.

9 Regrettably, Le Pileur cites no sources for his information, and merely repeats what has already appeared in Aero Field (1938) and World Stamp Digest (1940).

Fig. 4: Letter from Mersine to Adana, bearing the interior rate of 70 paras, or 1.75 piastre.

In addition, a letter addressed to the Brussels merchant Willy Balasse, May 1936, by a flier who had participated in the operations in Cilicia, gives us a few more details:¹⁰

This surcharge was ordered by the [Military] Post at Adana,¹¹ which produced the wooden cachet to surcharge 2 and 5 piastre [postage stamps]. Only two half-sheets of fifty stamps of each value were to be used. [...]

After seeing the success of these Adana [air mail] stamps, some postal workers in Aleppo [in 10 Letter written by Capt. Garsonnin concerns placing four Cilicia air mail stamps for sale at an auction of 15th May 1936. The writer requests that the stamps be withdrawn from the sale as he considers them to be forgeries. Source: archives of Jean-François Brun.

11 In contrast to Chaintrier, who indicates that Brémond authorised the production of the cachet, Garsonnin places the initiative with Trésor & Postes.

Syria, also occupied by France at this time] conceived of making a similar cachet, which they used not only to surcharge 2 and 5 piastre stamps, but all the stamps in use at that time, even fiscal stamps. One can tell the difference between the official Adana cachet the false one of Aleppo.

The presence of fake POSTE PAR AVION overprints additionally complicates the origin of the two stamp values. For over ten years, various stamp catalogues have listed up to four values overprinted.¹² One should note that the 1930 Champion Air Mail catalogue insists that only the 2 and 5 piastre stamps ever received the surcharge POSTE PAR AVION.

An anecdote on this subject only adds to the confusion over these stamps. Over thirty years ago in his capacity as a philatelic expertiser, Jean-François Brun had his contrary conclusions challenged by the owner of the two stamps concerned. This owner pronounced that:

These stamps are authentic, as I was the one who produced them. As there was no longer one [available], my superior (in the military) asked me to make a cachet. So I took the leg of a chair and carved out this cachet, so of course they're genuine.

This story concerns the same type of overprint which Champion had in his possession and which were referenced in his 1922 catalogue; lamentably they were later revealed to be fakes.

Fig. 6: Fake surcharges first included by Champion in his 1922 catalogue, later withdrawn in the 1929 edition. Images from Jean-François Brun.

Fig. 7: Authentic surcharged stamps, Scott C1–2, S.G. 116–7, Michel 96–7. From a Boule auction.

¹² Stanley Gibbons lists: 2 piastres on 15 centimes; 5p on 40c, 10p on 50c, and 50p on 1 franc.

Fig. 8: Letter from Mersine (12.07.1920) to Adana (16.07.1920), i.e. during the siege, bearing the a horizontal strip-of-two of the regular "O.M.F. Cilicie" stamps of 5 Piastres, total franking: 10 Piastres.

There seems little doubt that an air mail service between Mersine and Adana was in the planning stage in June 1920 but never was implemented, due to the fighting. Further, one may question the issuance of the two surcharged stamps with values of 2 and 5 piastres as these do not correspond with any of the postal rates in effect, and were for an air service surrounded with risks.

The existence of these two values remains a mystery as we have found no record either of the stamps or the air mail flights in the archives of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Historical Service of the Ministry of Defence. Allowing Chaintrier's testimony, one could entertain the hypothesis that these air mail stamps were produced to satisfy the demand of collectors, or to generate revenues for the military administration. After all, according to Chaintrier, it was the chief of administration services in Cilicia, Col. Brémont, who ordered the production and use of the air mail cachet.

In this respect, I learned that Col. Brémont had not infrequently used the sale of postage stamps as a revenue source in his district. His military record¹³ contains a report from an inquest into the budgets of the Cilicia administration, in which Brémont is reprimanded for using postal revenues in a high-handed and non-transparent manner to cover expenses in his region.

Thus, nearly a century after these events, certain aspects remain in the shadows. While the issue of these stamps seems likely, the hope of finding a flown letter franked with them is pure utopia.¹⁴

The Provisional Postmark of the Italian Military Post Office in Smyrna in 1922

by Jürgen Glietsch¹ (AIJP, translated by Tobias Zywiets)

Copyright © 2015

To fully understand the documents shown below, one needs to consider the historical events of that time.

After the armistice with Turkey of 30th October 1918, an Italian warship brought a military unit from the Dodecanese to Smyrna² on 12th November 1918. On 1st March 1919, the military post office number 171 became operational. It was clear from the outset that, due to the very small presence of Italian troops, this post office was intended almost exclusively for civil postal services. It remained open until June 1923.

Frowned upon by the Italians, strong Greek forces landed in Smyrna between 15th and 18th May 1919. In the Treaty of Sèvres,³ signed on 10th August 1920 but never ratified by either the still existing Sublime Porte in Constantinople nor the revolutionary government under Kemal Pasha⁴ in Ankara, the province of Smyrna was granted to Greece: about 70% of the local population were Greeks. However, Greece was not satisfied and wanted to conquer more areas of Turkey. Initially it succeeded.

Once the Turkish revolutionary movement managed to find international support, the situation turned in the summer of 1922. On 26th and 27th August 1922, the Greek front was breached and the bulk of the Greek army was captured, including its commander-in-chief. The remaining troops fled in disarray towards the coast. In early September the army of Kemal Pasha reached Smyrna and occupied both city and port. Between 13th and 16th September Smyrna was gripped by a devastating blaze, which claimed many lives and reduced most of the city to rubble and ashes.

The building in which the Italian Military Post Office 171 was housed was destroyed together with its fixtures and fittings. So far no cover from after the fire has been found that shows the postmarks or registration labels used beforehand. Within a few days the post office was operational again.

A postcard written on 26th September 1922 by an Italian priest in Smyrna to the prior of the monastery of San Domenico in Trino Vercellesi (arrival postmark: 05.10.1922) is evidence for that (Fig. 1).⁵ The sender makes direct reference to the events of the previous days:

What we have seen and suffered in these days is terrible. The fire has completely destroyed Smyrna, only by a miracle our church and rectory remained intact. However, we were plundered and robbed of everything.

The card is franked with two Italian stamps: a 10 Centesimi stamp from the “Leoni” series and a 40

Centesimi stamp from the “Michetti” series. The cancellation was carried out with a three-line postmark “R. POSTE / ITALIANE / SMIRNE” without specifying a date (Fig. 2). This card and thus the hitherto unknown canceller first appeared in 1976 at a stamp auction in Zurich. The canceller is obviously composed of type sorts from a type case. The mark was struck in violet ink.

In recent years, a few more covers with this unusual mark have surfaced.⁷ At a specialised French postal history auction I purchased a letter with this provisional mark (Fig. 3). The franking consists of a vertical strip-of-three of 40 Centesimi “Michetti” stamps. This corresponds to a letter in the 2nd weight band,⁸ which due to the dimensions of the envelope (20×13.5 cm) seems plausible. On my cover the mark is struck twice in violet. Here one can recognise some details that were not so clear to me from the depictions in literature:

⁶ As depicted by Dinslage, 1996, p. 195.

⁷ In 2000 Chesne Dauphiné describes a cover with the same sender and recipient as with my cover (fig. 3).

Fig. 3: A letter with the provisional cancellation from Smyrna to Amsterdam (Netherlands).

- on the left to the left stamp three horizontal lines are clearly visible, indicating the use of sorts from a type case
- in the top line after the letter “R” there’s a comma (not a dot)

According to current information this provisional cancel is known on 1 postcard, 3 or 4 letters and 2 cut-outs. Since the mark does not contain a date and the letters bear no transition or arrival marks, exact dating of the letters and cut-outs⁹ is not possible. The period of use can, however, only have amounted to 2 or 3 weeks.

At the beginning of October, a “normal” postmark was already in use (fig. 4), which, however, differs significantly in shape from those used prior to the fire at the Military Post Office 171 in Smyrna. That new canceller is described in literature with the 3rd October 1922 as the earliest date of use.¹⁰ I have the mark dated 7th October 1922 on a postcard written on 5th October 1922 in Smyrna (fig. 5). The postmark is struck twice, but each time quite weak. However, the shape and date of the postmark can be clearly identified.

⁹ In 1989 Chesne Dauphiné describes a large cut-out with 3×10 C. Leoni and 50 C. Michetti, sent to Dresden.

The Kingdom of Kurdistan 1922–1924

by Rainer Fuchs (FRPSL, AIJP)¹

Copyright © 2015

If you wonder about a “Kingdom of Kurdistan”: yes there was such a state, albeit briefly.² In this short period of time, i.e. September 1922 to July 1924, four stamps were issued. If you never heard about these stamps, no wonder: they are neither catalogued by MICHEL nor by any other standard catalogue. To make matters worse, these stamps are only very rarely found in the philatelic trade.

Since the start of the current crisis Kurdistan has been in the news almost every day. Actually the area of Kurdistan has not settled down for many decades. The political and geographical characteristics of the region do complicate the situation considerably: boundaries are interpreted differently and the Kurdish people are scattered across several countries, i.e. the autonomous “Region Kurdistan Iraq,”³ Iran, Syria, and Turkey. These geopolitical realities, at least as a necessary background, cannot be disregarded in order to understand historical aspects surrounding this issue.

Figs. 1 & 2: Maps of Kurdish settlement areas and the “Kingdom of Kurdistan.”⁴

The Story behind the Stamps

The stamps were issued in 1923 by Sheikh Mahmoud al-Barzanji⁵ for use in his “Kingdom.” The province of Sulaimaniyah⁶ was the only Kurdish province remaining under direct control of the British and was not integrated into the newly founded independent Kingdom of Iraq. Sheikh

5 Mahmud Barzanji (1878–9.10.1956); see Wikipedia: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mahmud_Barzanji.

6 Up until recently Kurdistan consisted of three provinces: Erbil, Duhok, and Sulaimaniyah. In 2014, Sulaimaniyah province was divided into the new provinces of Sulaimaniyah and Halabja.

Barzanji was appointed by the British as Governor of “South Kurdistan” in 1918. Shortly thereafter, however, he was arrested and sentenced to 10 years in prison for his political and military machinations.⁷

Under pressure from Kurds and in fear of increasing Turkish influence in Northern Iraq, Barzanji was returned from exile in 1922. He took advantage of this opportunity and on 10th October 1922 declared, without authorisation, the Kingdom of Kurdistan, with himself as King “Mahmud I.”

Fig. 3: Contemporary photo⁸ of Sheikh Mahmoud Barzanji in Kurdish national clothing with the usual curved dagger which is symbolically depicted on the stamps shown below.

Fig. 4: A 19th century Kurdish jamana or khanjar. These were often made of silver and richly decorated depending on the rank of the wearer.⁹

From 1922 Barzanji organised a public administration, including a postal service. For that purpose a series of four stamps was created. It is believed that three of them acted as postage stamps and the fourth was used as a revenue stamp. Due to the high values of some of these stamps, the author doubts this attribution. The domestic letter rate within Iraq at that time was 2 Annas, an overseas letter cost 3 Annas. It is likely that the tariff within the Kingdom of Kurdistan was at a similar level. Since the Kingdom of Kurdistan was not a member of the Universal Postal Union (UPU) or had agreed any postal treaties with other countries, these stamps could not be used for international communication. The denomination is in Indian currency, Rupee and Anna,¹⁰ at the time widely used in Iraq and Kurdistan.

The following stamps are known according to the few existing articles written about this issue. The author has not yet seen all the stamps and their variants:

Denomination	Colour
1 (١) Anna	green (shades)
8 (٨) Annas	green (shades) purple magenta
1 (١) Rupee	magenta
5 (٥) Rupees	red

The 1 (١) Anna stamp is reported to exist with an inverted Arab numeral 1 (١) and the pair of stamps shown below gives the impression that the Arabic numeral is indeed printed upside down. But it is also possible that due to the very crude quality of printing, this was assumed by mistake. Future research needs to provide more clarity.

It is totally unclear why the 8 (٨) Annas stamp appears in three different colours and whether these individual colours possibly indicated different uses, i.e. for postal or fiscal charges.

Examples of known Stamps

Fig. 5: 1 (١) Anna.

Fig. 6: 8 (٨) Annas.

Fig. 7: 1 (١) Rupee.

The four values have a common design: an Arabic inscription goes around the top saying "Government of South Kurdistan."¹¹ The centre depicts two crossed Kurdish daggers. At the bottom there's the currency and denomination (figs. 9 and 10).

The stamps were produced in a rather crude form of letterpress on ungummed coloured paper. The separation is in rough line-perforation L12. There's no information on the size of sheets or the print-run.

¹⁰ 1 Rupee = 16 Annas = 64 Paise = 192 Pies.

The stamps were in use only for a short period of time. The author is not aware of the existence of any complete covers or documents with these stamps. Even blocks are hardly known: the author is familiar with one horizontal pair (fig. 11).¹²

The End of the Kingdom of Kurdistan

The British did not recognise the Kingdom of Kurdistan and acted according to their counter-insurgency strategy with so-called “rule by bomb”: the Royal Air Force (RAF) bombed the town of Sulaimaniyah several times prompting large sections of the population to flee.

In July 1924, the British re-conquered the town on a permanent basis. Barzanji was stripped of all his offices and the “Kingdom of Kurdistan” was integrated into Iraq. Subsequently, Barzanji fled to Iran. In later years, he came back to Iraq where he died in Baghdad on 9th October 1956.

The Old General Post Office of Jerusalem on Historical Photographs

by Tobias Zywietz

Copyright © 2015

During my philatelic research work I recently became aware of an image collection in the US Library of Congress: the “G. Eric and Edith Matson Photograph Collection.” The focus of the more than 23,000 images, mostly film negatives and glass plates, is Palestine in the period from 1898 to 1946. The collection draws on the archives of the companies American Colony (Jerusalem) Photo Department (1898–1940) and its successor Matson Photo Service (from 1940). Among the photographers known by name are Elijah Meyers (founder of the Photo Department), Erik and Lars Lind, Furman Baldwin, John David Whiting, Lewis Larsson, Najib and Jamil Albina and Gästgifvar Eric Matson (who took over the company and its archives in 1940).

Unfortunately there are relatively few pictures on the subject of postal services and facilities: most topical images relate to then newly opened General Post Office in Jerusalem in 1938. In this series, I’d like to present some of the pictures, starting with depictions of the old General Post Office building of Jerusalem on Allenby Square, the intersection of Jaffa Road and Sultan Suliman Street.

Fig. 1: The Jerusalem General Post Office in August 1920.

Figs. 1a and 1b: Details showing the signs above the entrance and part of the advertising board.

The first image (unfortunately severely damaged on the right) dates from August 1920. Note this interesting detail: on the notice or advertising board to the right of the entry there still hangs a poster for “The Leipzig Spring Fair 1920.” One also notes that the Arabic in the left sign says “بوسطة” rather than “دائرة البريد” or the now common “مكتب بريد”.

In the second photograph we look down Jaffa Road in 1937, while the third picture shows queues during the riots of August 1929.

In the last two photographs from the Matson collection the building was already a YMCA England hostel: the opening ceremony took place on 26th October 1941, with the attendance of General Wilson. So these two pictures must have been taken after that point in time. We clearly see that the Rotary Club of Jerusalem resided in the building for a period, alongside the YMCA.

Opening of New Jerusalem Hostel

GEN. WILSON'S PRAISE FOR Y.M.C.A. WORK

"War is a strain on everybody, and the Y.M.C.A. Hostel is an infinite power of good in relieving it," said General Sir Henry M. Wilson, the G.O.C., in opening the new Y.M.C.A. hostel in Jerusalem yesterday afternoon.

Thanking the Y.M.C.A. on behalf of all ranks in Palestine, Trans-Jordan and Syria, General Wilson stressed the fact that the organization was a powerful factor in maintaining the morale of the men.

The new hostel is housed in the old Post Office building, whose demolition has been postponed for the duration and which was "transformed almost by a miracle within four weeks" in the words of Mr. J. Massey, of the English National Council and General Secretary of the British Y.M.C.A. in the Middle East.

Mr. Massey also thanked Mr. Miller, General Secretary of the Jerusalem Y.M.C.A., who helped establish the new hostel, and the District Commissioner, the Mayor, the Town Clerk and members of the Municipality for their cooperation.

Following a prayer by Senior Chaplain Basham, guests, who included Y.M.C.A. representatives from Australia and New Zealand and the Church Army, enjoyed the first tea to be served at the new hostel.

Visitors included Lady MacMichael; the Chief Secretary and Mrs. Macpherson; Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Pinkerton; Mr. E. Keith-Roach; Mustafa Bey Khalil; Mrs. J.H.H. Pollock; Mr. Badcock; Mr. and Mrs. C. Seger; Mr. Blatchford; representatives of the II. and Army Officers. Messages were received from the South African Y.M.C.A.; the Salvation Army and the Catholic Women's League in England.

Fig. 5: Report from the Palestine Post, 28.10.1941.

Figs. 6 and 6a: The building as a YMCA hostel and base of the Rotary Club of Jerusalem.

The last picture is not from the Matson Collection at the Library of Congress: I found it in Proud's 2006 edition of his postal history of Palestine. From the caption "shortly after his arrival" one can deduct that it was taken in early July 1920, as Samuel¹ had arrived in Jerusalem on 30th June to assume office as High Commissioner on 1st July.

¹ Herbert Louis Samuel, 1st Viscount Samuel, GCB, OM, GBE, PC; 6.11.1870–5.02.1963; first High Commissioner of Palestine, 1.07.1920–30.06.1925.

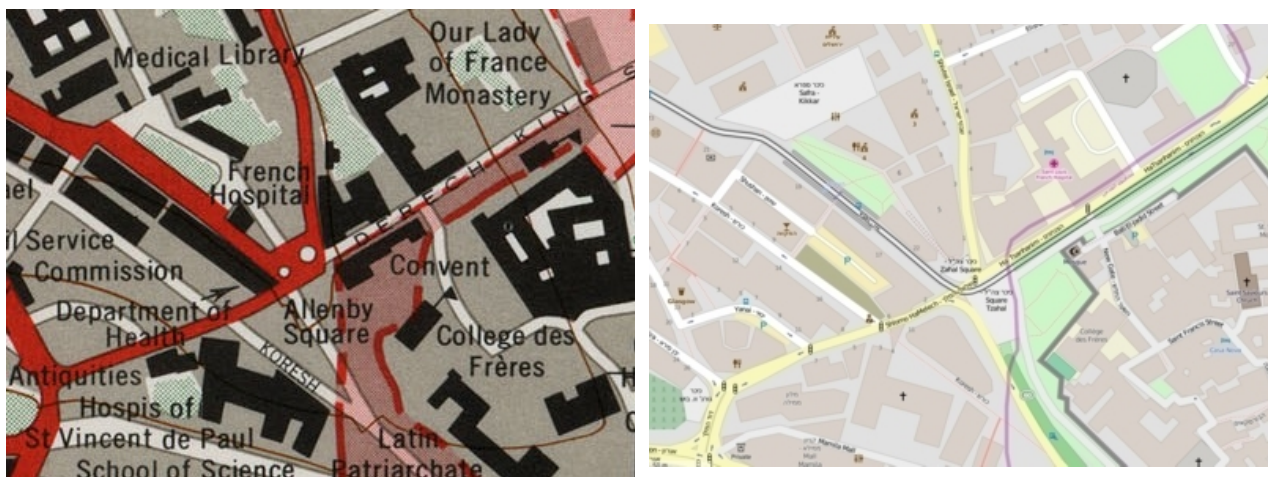

Fig. 7: The High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel, inspecting the Post Office at Jerusalem shortly after his arrival in Palestine.

The building, which became the Ottoman post office in 1908,² just like the Convent of the Soeurs de Marie Reparatrice adjacent to the East,³ was severely damaged in the 1948 war and was later demolished. Tragically it was positioned just off what then became no-man's land (see fig. 10). The place was recreated at a later point and is now called Army Square. The building opposite, originally built for Barclays Bank, still exists today. Maps from the 1920s clearly show the building labelled as “دائرة البريد” or “G.P.O.”

The 2012 Christmas Stamps of the Palestinian National Authority

by Tobias Zywietz

Copyright © 2015

Palestine has issued Christmas stamps fairly regularly since 1995, and such an issue was also planned for 2012. These Christmas stamps show several peculiarities. Among other things, they were released in only spring 2013 and one of the three values shows multiple very stark design variations.

The set consists of three values (20, 250, and 600 Fils) and a block (1,000 Fils). The stamps of this series (Zobbel 273–278, figs. 1–6):

Zobbel 273.

Zobbel 274.

Zobbel 275.

Zobbel 276.

Zobbel 277.

Zobbel 278.

On the stamps for 20 Fils (Zobbel 273), a supplementary value after an increase in postage rates, and 600 Fils (Zobbel 278) there's not much to see, but I show the 250 Fils stamp four times (figs. 2–5), because each sheet-of-ten (figs. 7–8) of this value bears four different versions of that stamp:

Fig. 7.

Fig. 8.

One can determine the plate varieties with the naked eye. These are the four types in detail:

- field positions 1 and 2: stroke top left and bottom right, thick ornamental line, three blots at the trunk
- field positions 3 and 4: stroke top right and bottom right, thick ornamental line, three blots at the trunk
- field positions 5 and 6: stroke top right and bottom right, thin ornamental line, three blots at the trunk
- field positions 7 to 10: stroke top right only, thin ornamental line, two blots at the trunk

Fig. 9: Zobel 274.

Fig. 10: Zobel 275.

Fig. 11: Zobel 276.

Fig. 12: Zobel 277.

The stamps, like most Palestine issues in recent years, were printed in Bahrain by Oriental Security Printing Solution. The print run is 50,000 stamps (i.e. 5,000 sheets-of-ten) and just 2,000 copies for the accompanying block. Subsequently, these quantities exist for the four variations of the 250 Fils stamp:

- Zobbel 274 (field positions 1 and 2): 10,000
- Zobbel 275 (field positions 3 and 4): 10,000
- Zobbel 276 (field positions 5 and 6): 10,000
- Zobbel 277 (field positions 7 to 10): 20,000

How could such a number of design varieties appear? In an era of fully digital design, pre-press and printing processes one should assume that each stamp must be identical. All the sheets I examined have the exact same characteristics, but I cannot definitively exclude that there may be others. Depending on the preferred philatelic definition these varieties can be regarded as (primary) plate errors (Tröndle 1978, MICHEL catalogue definition) or printing errors (Häger 1973, Arnau 1973), or both (Grallert 2000).

Germany's MICHEL catalogues do not list these varieties; if they were noted at all, MICHEL ignores them as not worthy of inclusion. There are of course different standards and benchmarks for a non-specialised overseas catalogue as opposed to e.g. MICHEL's specialised catalogues of Germany ("Deutschland Spezial"). Unfortunately, this is also true for other features occurring on Palestinian stamps: one of the reasons why I had to introduce my own numbering system on my website.

The sheets have, incidentally, also a faint bluish-grey shading that does not quite reach the upper margin. But this is of no significance to the stamps themselves.

And why was this set of Christmas stamps released on 24th April 2013? Depending on who you ask it's always someone else to blame: either the Israelis have delayed the consignment from the printers, i.e. simply letting it lay around out of chicanery, or Israel demanded heavy import duties that Palestine Post had to raise first; or it was the rampant bureaucracy of the Palestinian Authority and its problems to efficiently coordinate between the Ministries of Post and of Finance, and the President's Office.

The delay can be documented philatelically, at least in an indirect way: on the one hand the FDC states "2012 ميلاد مجيد / Merry Christmas 2012" (fig. 14), but on the other hand the inscription of the first day special postmark (fig. 13) gives both years:

Fig. 13: Special first-day canceller.

دولة فلسطين
State of Palestine
2012 ميلاد مجيد
Merry Christmas 2013
24-12-2012

Fig. 14: First-day cover.

I already mentioned that a block forms part of this issue: it contains a stamp denominated at 1,000 Fils (Zobbel Bl. 33 with stamp Zobbel 279). Due to its elegance and grace I must show it here (fig. 15). Unfortunately I could not identify the painting or its painter, but it's unlikely to be David Roberts.

World Cultural Heritage Destroyed Part 1: Palmyra

by Dietrich Ecklebe (AIJP)¹

Copyright © 2015

Such or similar headlines appear in almost every newspaper every day for months now. In television reports masked members of “Islamic State” destroy millennia-old works of art with pickaxes and other tools.

The destruction of *UNESCO World Heritage Sites*² is nothing new. During the Yugoslav Wars following that state’s breakup Dubrovnik was bombed. The Taliban blew up the Buddhist sacred site of Bamiyan in Afghanistan. Islamists destroyed precious manuscripts in Timbuktu (Mali) and the Syrian city of Aleppo fell victim to bombardment by Assad’s troops. But the atrocities of “Islamic State” surpass anything seen before.

One can only hope that Palmyra and Bosra are spared.³ For Nineveh and Hatra any help comes too late now. Furthermore “Islamic State” sells antiques on a large scale in order to finance its war. As the artworks from the places described here are not for sale under regular circumstances, one has to conclude that there are very wealthy people who finance “Islamic State” and thus the death of thousands of innocent people just to be able to store ancient art in their own vaults. It’s laudable that UNESCO wants to ensure that such crimes are to be punished as war crimes.

The barbaric terrorist campaign of “Islamic State” is not only directed against the people of the Middle East but wants to wipe out the history and traditions of entire peoples through the destruction of cultural monuments that belong to the great works of mankind. The fanatics of “Islamic State” justify this by “holy war” (jihad) that is called for in the Qur’an.

They simply overlook that Mohammed already admitted other religions and guaranteed their members freedom of belief. Jews and Christians were regarded “people of the book,” like Muslims. All three religions worship the same persons, like Abraham, and Islam considers Jesus a prophet. The first Caliphs, the successors of Mohammed, created the “house of peace” concept with a protective status for non-Muslims, because it was recognised that a coexistence of Muslims with non-Muslims was a necessity.⁴

Today’s Islamists, however, have moved away from these findings and teachings of the Qur’an and of early Islam. They call for jihad so as to find an explanation for their terrorism and to win new followers. The last few decades have brought about several of these islamist movements, “Islamic State,” currently covers Iraq and Syria with a campaign of destruction. All dissenting people are mercilessly persecuted or killed. This surpasses in its brutality all other such movements by far. They stop at nothing, not even the destruction of the Middle East’s cultural heritage.

4 In Arabic dār as-salam, or more common dār al-islam / دار الإسلام mean countries where Muslims can practice their religion as the ruling sect and where other religions are to be tolerated; its antonym is “house of war” or dār al-harb / دار الحرب. The dhimma / ذمة is the protected status of non-Muslims. See also Wikipedia: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Divisions_of_the_world_in_Islam.

Palmyra – Metropolis of the Desert

Only one generation after the fall of Hatra⁵ another desert city, Palmyra, rose to become the centre of trade in the Western Desert. Similar to Hatra, a mixed culture had developed. The buildings were in Greco-Roman style, but the Arab rulers wore Parthian horsemen costume. Palmyra was of great strategic importance as this oasis town lay at the crossroads of important trade routes from the Mediterranean to Mesopotamia and from the mountains in the North to Damascus. Trade enriched the inhabitants of the town and made some magnificent buildings possible.

The oasis had been settled as early as the Neolithic period. Ancient authors described the city under its first name: Tadmor.⁶ When the Romans invaded areas of the Near East in the last century B.C.E., the city had trade relations as far afield as Iran and India. Its merchants could be found even in Europe. The Romans had manifest interests in Palmyra, but General Pompejus forwent the integration of the city into the Asian province of Syria: the trade links and diplomatic relations of the city were regarded as more important and useful to Rome; especially in the light of the long-standing feud with its Eastern neighbours, the Parthians. Palmyra greatly benefited from this situation and was soon wealthy enough to build large temples.

The first new temple was built in 32 C.E.: the Temple of Bel (Baal), the national shrine of Palmyreans, is located directly on the grand boulevard. The square temple area, each side with a length of 200 metres, is surrounded by an eleven metre high wall giving access only through a gateway on the Western side. The interior is lined with two-aisled colonnaded halls. The colonnades were added only at around 100 C.E. Access to the temple was allowed only for priests and the city's rulers. The cella housed the statue of the supreme god Bel and the gods Yarhibôl and Aglibôl. This divine triad was offset by an imperial triad with Emperor Tiberius and his two sons Drusus and Germanicus. They were considered companions of the gods. A powerful way for the Romans to manifest their conquest of the city.

Figs. 1 & 2: The reconstructed cella of the Temple of Baalshamin with its magnificent reliefs.

The Temple of Baalshamin (fig. 1) is situated outside the centre of the city. Construction started about 20 C.E., but it took until 131 C.E. to get the temple complex completed and consecrated. The temple contains a small rectangular cella, which is surrounded by columns. The dimensions of the temple amount to 15 metres in length and 10 metres in width. The significance lies in the fact that the finds of the excavations allowed the thalamos, i.e. the interior hall, to be reconstructed. The rear wall of the cella resembles a stage set. The iconographic system is clearly of cosmological nature. On a cornice seven busts representing the planets are framed by eagles, symbolising the sky (fig. 2).

The layout of the city corresponds to neither Hellenistic nor Roman archetypes. The direction of the main road is aligned to the course of the wadi. The Great Colonnade is central to the boulevard and about 1,100 metres long. It consists of three sections that are not straight, but curved. Where the side roads meet the main boulevard, there is a tetrapylon. But that term is not entirely correct: although there are four roads, it has only three thoroughfares; so the term tripylon would be correct. This monument is often referred to as the Triumphal Arch of Hadrian, who visited Palmyra in 129 C.E. The boulevard was only built around 220 C.E., though.

Figs. 3–5: At the tetrapylon the streets of Palmyra cross.

The colonnades begin at this tetrapylon, which are, including the side roads, 1,550 metres long. As they were erected on both sides of the streets, their total extent comes to 3,300 metres. The columns are 9.5 metres in height and are spaced to a distance of 3.5 metres from each other (figs. 3–8). In total there were 860 to 880 of such columns once, only a part of which are still standing erected today. Each column has a corbel on which once stood the sculpture of a benefactor of the city (fig. 8). Since these sculptures were made of bronze, later rulers have melted down the precious metal.

Figs. 6–8: The Great Colonnades once consisted of nearly 900 columns.

Right next to the market square in the ancient city centre there lies the Roman theatre (fig. 9). Its seating rows are arranged in the semi-circular Greek style. It was built in the second century. In ancient times there was no theatrical scenery or backdrop. The play was performed on a square in front of a stone wall, the proscenium. The theatre is so well preserved that it can be played in even today. Regular folklore events take place here every year in April (fig. 10).

Figs. 9 & 10: In the ancient theatre of Palmyra folkloric events took place every April.

The art of sculpture has been significant in Palmyra, with clear parallels to sculptures from Hatra. In the necropoleis to the south west of the city, there were numerous funeral towers that were later replaced by funeral temples. Some family tombs were built underground and had rooms to conduct funerals. Busts of the deceased were modelled and then mounted on consoles in the walls. Among the masterpieces of Palmyrenean sculptures there is a statue nicknamed “The Beauty of Palmyra” (fig. 11). This degree of perfection is unique when it comes to the realism of the portrait.

There are different interpretations of the relief depicting two women with a dog: scientists disagree on whether the goddesses Astarte and Tyche (fig. 14) are represented, or whether it is the grave stone of Queen Zenobia.

Figs. 11–14: The perfected beauty of sculptures and reliefs from Palmyra.

The downfall of Palmyra was provoked by the city’s rulers themselves. Vis-à-vis Rome, Palmyra could act in a relatively autonomous way. When the Romans suffered a crushing defeat in the wars with the Iranian Sassanids, even Roman Emperor Valerian was taken into captivity. Palmyra’s ruler Odaenathus, also commander of the Roman troops, was able to achieve a victory for the Romans. In gratitude, he was appointed commander of the Roman troops in the East. Soon he had restored the old balance of power.

After Odaenathus fell victim to assassination, his son Vaballathus assumed power in Palmyra, but only ostensibly; de facto his ambitious and unbridled power-hungry widow Zenobia (fig. 15) ruled the city. They conquered all of Syria, Egypt and large parts of Asia Minor around 269 C.E. The Romans only intervened when she had coins minted depicting his son alongside the Roman Emperor (figs. 16 & 18). This slight sparked a military campaign leading to the downfall and destruction of Palmyra in 271 C.E.

Figs. 15–17: Queen Zenobia had coins minted with the image of her son causing the downfall of the city.

Semaan Bassil: An Introduction to French Postal History in Tripoli (1852–1914)

Semaan Bassil: An Introduction to French Postal History in Tripoli (1852–1914) in the Age of Steamships, French Influence in the Levant and the Decline of the Ottoman Empire. Preface by Robert Abensur (president of "L'Académie de Philatélie").

178 pages, mainly coloured illustrations, A4. Beirut 2013/2014. Price: 65 €.

Orders: The Lebanese British Friends of the National Museum.

www.ahlebanon.com

In 2009 the author [Vice Chairman and General Manager of Lebanon's Byblos Bank] already published a first book on the postal history of Lebanon, namely on the French post office in Beirut. His new publication deals with the second and considerably less significant post office which France had established on the territory of present-day Lebanon. This is of course "Tripoli de Syrie," which should not be confused with "Tripoli de Barbarie" in today's Libya. The office was opened in 1852 in connection with the expansion of the French shipping lines serving the coast between Constantinople and Alexandria, and it was closed at the outbreak of World War I. Tripoli had the peculiarity that there were two post offices: one in the marshy and unhealthy harbour – "Tripoli Marine" – and one in the town itself, about 3 km inland – "Tripoli Ville." The volume of mail was much lower here and is as a consequence much rarer than that of neighbouring Beirut.

The great economic importance of Lebanon for France is explained by the fact that the country was an important supplier of, in particular, raw silk, as well as soap and agricultural products in exchange for sugar, coffee, textiles and finished goods. At the same time France assumed the role of the protecting power of the Christians living in the Middle East. Only with the cognisance of this economic and cultural background can one properly understand and assess the covers Bassil presents in his work.

Bassil intensively studied countless documents, statistics and maps as well as diplomatic correspondence in archives and libraries in France, the US, Turkey, and Lebanon. These documents and their analysis serve to substantiate and illustrate the introductory chapters, which are dedicated to the history of Tripoli, the development of postal communications and shipping lines on the Syrian coast, the interdependence of the postal service with the state shipping company Messageries Maritimes and the local French Vice-Consulate. They portray the (often more or less considerate) attempts of the Ottoman Empire to undermine or to entirely prevent the activities of the French on their soil. Covers are repeatedly inserted to illustrate developments and to reflect specific social conditions, such as trade relations, &c. Senders and recipients are given a closer look and are examined in detail and questioned as to their background. Special attention is paid to the diaspora, i. e. Lebanese emigrants living above all in America, but also in Australia and Africa.

The purely philatelic side of the topic is not neglected either: separate chapters are dedicated to the stamps and postmarks in use, which are presented and explained by means of exquisite documents. Without exception, these are of the highest quality and rarity.

Contemporary postcards, engravings and maps abundantly adorn the publication and make it a feast for the eyes. If you belong to those who love beautiful books which at the same time convey a wealth of knowledge and information, you will be thrilled by this work! A chapter of French postal history about which little has been known is illuminated here with great expertise. An extremely commendable and successful endeavour!

Raphaël Livnat: Jérusalem et la Poste Française en Terre Sainte 1843–1914

Raphaël Livnat: Jérusalem et la Poste Française en Terre Sainte 1843–1914. [Jerusalem and the French Post in the Holy Land 1843–1914].

397 pages. glossy paper with b/w and colour illustrations, A4.

Price: 65 € (72 € incl. of p&p within the EU). Orders: Raphaël Livnat, 14, Rue Paul Lafargue, 92800 Puteaux, France. livnar@hotmail.fr

The author has intensively worked his way through the archives of the French Foreign Ministry, the Consulate General in Jerusalem, the Postal Museum in Paris and the holdings of the French National Archives in search of documents, correspondence and reports that give first-hand information on the establishment and operation of the French post offices in Jerusalem and throughout the Holy Land. Along the way he came across quite a few enlightening details on the operation of the foreign post offices of Austria, Germany, Russia and Italy, as well as the Turkish Post.

When France opens a consulate in Jerusalem in 1843, an own courier service is established. In 1846 the private mail service run by Santelli and Micciarelli takes over the conveyance of correspondences to the post office in Beirut. The decisive change comes about in 1852 with the simultaneous establishment of a French shipping agency and a post office in Jaffa, which is henceforth responsible for the forwarding of correspondence arriving from Jerusalem by messenger service; Santelli is appointed manager of this office.

In the early years, the privately run postal agency in Jerusalem cancels all outgoing mail with a simple one-line postmark, and from 1858 to 1880 with a very distinctive canceller known as Jerusalem Cross (croix-potencée de Jérusalem). The post officer in Jaffa then franks and cancels the letters. When Santelli dies in 1880 the Jerusalem agency closes and does not resume service until 1900 as a post office in its own right. In 1906 a third French post office joins in in Caiffa (present name: Haifa). At the outbreak of World War I all offices close on 1st October 1914.

The individual chapters of this eventful chronicle are divided according to periods relevant to postal history. The story is not told chronologically, but documents are reproduced (as colour scans or photocopies) with concise remarks tracing the evolution. The explanations are supplemented by suitable high-quality images of covers which every so often are extremely rare.

An impressive amount of previously unpublished facts and enlightening details is interspersed in the presentation of the documents, such as the tariffs of the private messenger service between Jaffa and Jerusalem – curiously enough the fee from Jerusalem to Jaffa was twice as high as that in the opposite direction – an overview of the cancellers prior to the Jerusalem Cross mark, a list of post office managers and their periods of service, comments on the connections with other French overseas post offices abroad such as Aleppo, Gallipoli or Varna, background information on the establishment of the post office Tripoli Ville which was opened due to the initiative of the local mayor – there is absolutely no parallel in the history of foreign post offices in the Levant – and eventually records and figures on the shipping lines of the Austrian Lloyd.

On the basis of irrefutable documentary evidence, the author can put an end to a legend that has stubbornly persisted through the ages: there have never been any written agreements between the Sublime Porte and European powers, there were no “capitulations” which allowed or regulated the establishment and operation of foreign post offices. Documents pertinent to this age-long dispute make up a large part of the book.

To collect material for his book, the author spent four complete years doing research in archives and libraries. It is rather unlikely that within four days a reader can digest all the information the volume provides.

This special section of the Bulletin provides reprints of long-lost or forgotten journal articles, booklets or books with sparse annotations. These are not fully fledged and meticulously researched philatelic articles.

This first instalment features clippings on postal history, rates and the operation of the postal services after the occupation of Palestine by British and allied forces in 1917/1918. The Official Gazettes feature administrative notifications, statutes, orders, regulations, proclamations, and related announcements, made by the military and later civilian administration.

Postal History and Related Notices from the Official Gazettes for Palestine Part 1: 1919/1920

In the following I present the first part of a series listing and displaying all postal history related items found in the Official Gazettes covering Palestine from 1917 to 1948.

As I have not had access to complete runs of “The Palestine News” so far, I start in July 1919 with cuttings from the “Official Gazette O.E.T.A. (South).” At the time Occupied Enemy Territory Administration (South) encompassed just Palestine itself.

On 1st July 1920 the British civil administration under High Commissioner Sir Herbert Samuel took over from the military administration of O.E.T.A. (South). At that point the “Official Gazette O.E.T.A. (South).” became “Official Gazette of the Government of Palestine.”² The areas covered from then on are the later mandated territories of Palestine and Transjordan.³

1 Copyright extends to the compilation, arrangement, transcription, annotation, and the additional illustrations (covers). The original texts are public domain. Note that images are placed where layout allowed it.

2 There were no Gazettes during the transition period: issue no.23 of 16.06.1920 is followed by no. 24 of 25.07.1920.

3 From August 1920. Transjordan was part of the Arab Kingdom of Syria until the fall of Damascus to French troops in July 1920. High Commissioner Samuel took control of Transjordan in August, eventually creating an Emirate in 1921. Transjordan was not formally joined to Palestine until establishment of the League of Nations Mandate in 1923. See e.g. en.wikipedia.org/wiki/British_Mandate_for_Palestine_\(legal_instrument\)).

Official Gazettes for Palestine

During the British and Allied Occupation of Palestine (1917–1920) and the subsequent British civil administration (1920–1923) and the League of Nations Mandate (1923–1948) administrative notifications, statutes, orders, regulations, proclamations, and related announcements were published “by authority” in official newspapers. The English editions⁵ were published as follows:⁶

1.	The Palestine news : the weekly newspaper of the Egyptian Expeditionary Force of the British Army in occupied enemy territory	Cairo, later Jerusalem (weekly)	1918–1919	No. 1 (17.03.1918) – no. 72 (17.07.1919)
2.	Official gazette O.E.T.A. (South)	Jerusalem (fortnightly)	1919–1920	No. 1 (15.07.1919) – no. 23 (16.06.1920)
3.	Official gazette of the government of Palestine	Jerusalem (fortnightly)	1920–1932	No. 24 (25.07.1920) – no. 313 (16.08.1932)
4.	The Palestine gazette	Jerusalem (fortnightly, later more often)	1932–1948	No. 314 (25.08.1932) – no. 1654 (18.03.1948) ⁷

Fig. 2: Masthead of Official Gazette O.E.T.A. (South), no. 10, 1.12.1919.

One notes that the coat of arms, fonts and layout changed variously as several different printers (Franciscan Monastery, Nile Mission Press) were used.

⁵ Hebrew and Arabic editions do exist, but not for all periods, e.g. חדשות מהארץ / חדשות הקדושה is listed for 4.04.1918–10.04.1919 by Yale University Library.

⁷ The British Library lists the last issue as number 1655.

JERUSALEM 14th June 1919.

Doc. 1: Official Gazette O.E.T.A. (South), 1. 1919, no 1 (15.07.1919), p. 1.

Sir Arthur Wigram Money (pictured),⁸ 1866/1867–1951⁹, C.S.I. (1916), K.C.B. (1917), K.B.E. (1919), Major General, 25.03.1918,¹⁰ temporary Governor of O.E.T.A. (S) (1918), Chief Administrator O.E.T.A. (S) (1918/1919). Commission relinquished 9.08.1919,¹¹ retired 3.03.1920.¹²
Karl Sabbagh notes:¹³

"Other British officials,¹⁴ even at this early stage, predicted long-term disastrous consequences from pursuing the idea of a Jewish Palestine. Major General Money, the Chief Administrator, wrote to Whitehall: 'I am convinced that any such policy as giving the Jews a preferential share of the government of Palestine in the near future would be disastrous [and] would react powerfully and most unfavourably on the Arabs all over the British Empire.' Major General Money was attacked by the Zionists for his reluctance to decree that official paperwork, from stamps and railway tickets to government notices, should be printed in Hebrew, even though some of the minority Jewish population had lived quite happily in Palestine for generations, speaking Arabic rather than Hebrew. Major General Money was eventually relieved of his duties as Chief Administrator at the insistence of the Zionists who claimed he was anti-Semitic. Shortly afterwards, Hebrew became an official language."

POSTAL INFORMATIONPublic Notice.

Public Notice No. 149, and amendment as per Circular Letter No. 92 is hereby cancelled.

Until further notice the sale and payment of British Postal Orders will be carried on at all Post Offices in O.E.T.A. South.

NEWSPAPERS.

Any publication coming within the following description can, upon payment of an annual fee of P.T. 25, be registered at the General Post Office, Jerusalem, for transmission by inland post as a newspaper:-

- (a) The publication must consist wholly or in great part of political or other news, or of articles relating thereto, or to other current topics, with or without advertisements.
- (b) It must be printed and published in Palestine.
- (c) It must be published in numbers at intervals of not more than seven days.
- (d) The full title and date of publication must be printed at the top of the first page, and the whole or part of the title and the date at the top of every subsequent page. This regulation applies also to "Table of Contents" and "Indices."
- (e) Any supplement issued with the newspaper must consist wholly or in great part of matter like that of a newspaper, or of advertisements, printed on a sheet or sheets, or a piece or pieces of paper put together at some one part of the newspaper, whether gummed or stitched up with the newspaper or not, or wholly or in part of engravings, prints or lithographs illustrative of articles in the newspaper; it must in each case be printed with the newspaper and have the title of the newspaper printed at the top of every page, or at the top of every sheet or side on which any engraving, print or lithograph appears. The supplement or supplements issued with any number of a registered newspaper may not exceed the newspaper itself in size or weight.

The Post office cannot regard a document as a supplement merely because it is printed under that title. A separate document intended to be used for separate purposes is not a supplement to a newspaper.

Almanacks, although they are documents to be used for separate purposes, will, for the payment, be regarded as supplements provided that they are in all other respects in conformity with the regulations (see (e) above).

For example, documents of the following descriptions if enclosed in copies of registered newspapers render them inadmissible at the newspaper rate of postage:-

1. Any document not printed by the responsible printer of the paper, such as an advertisement sheet printed for an advertiser and sent to the publisher of the newspaper for distribution with it.
2. A contents bill, an advertisement sheet with an order form attached, or a proposal or enquiry form.
3. Any document drawn up in the form of a direct personal communication to the recipients, such as a printed circular in the form of a letter purporting to be addressed by an advertiser to the person by whom the newspaper in which it is enclosed is received.

The prepaid rate of postage on copies of publications registered for transmission at the Inland Newspaper Rate, including any supplements thereto, is one Millieme for every copy not exceeding 100 Grammes in weight, with a further charge of one Millieme for every additional 100 Grammes or fraction of 100 Grammes.

The rate applies to single copies of newspapers only. If two or more copies are sent in a single packet, each copy will be liable to the same postage as if it had been posted separately. But in no case will a packet of such copies be chargeable with a higher rate than that chargeable on a Letter or Printed Paper of the same weight.

A copy or a packet of copies posted unpaid or under-paid is chargeable on delivery with double the deficiency at the Newspaper Rate.

Every copy should be so folded and covered (if posted in a cover) as to permit the title to be readily inspected.

Every copy or packet of copies must be posted either without a cover, or in a cover, open at both ends, which can easily be removed for the purpose of examination.

No copy of a newspaper sent by post at Newspaper Rate may bear anything (not being part of the newspaper) except the name, address and description either of the sender or of the addressee or both, with index or reference numbers and letters; the words "With Compliments"; a request for return in case of non-delivery; the title of the newspaper, and a reference to its registration for transmission by post; and a reference to any place in the newspaper to which the attention of the addressee is directed, the same regulations apply to any cover enclosing a copy of a newspaper.

No unregistered publication, and no article which is not part of a publication registered as a newspaper or a supplement thereto, may be enclosed in any packet sent at the Newspaper Rate.

No supplement to a publication registered as a newspaper is admissible at the Newspaper Rate unless it be sent through the post with the publication to which it is a supplement.

If any of the foregoing rules is infringed the packet is charged either as an underpaid Printed Paper (if admissible at that rate), or an underpaid Letter, or is transferred to the Parcel Post and charged with a fine of 5 Milliemes in addition to any deficient Parcel Postage, whichever involves the lower charge.

No copy or packet of copies may weigh more than 1 lb., or exceed 2 ft. in length, or 1 ft. in width or depth.

NEWSPAPERS.

Any publication coming within the following description can, upon payment of an annual fee of P.T. 25, be registered at the General Post Office, Jerusalem, for the transmission by inland post as a newspaper:-

- (a) The publication must consist wholly or in great part of political or other news, or of articles relating thereto, or to other current topics, with or without advertisements.

- (b) It must be printed and published in Palestine.
- (c) It must be published in numbers at intervals of not more than seven days.
- (d) The full title and date of publication must be printed at the top of the first page, and the whole or part of title and the date at the top of every subsequent page. This regulation applies also to "Table of Contents" and "Indices."
- (e) Any supplement issued with the newspaper must consist wholly or in great part of matter like that of a newspaper, or of advertisements, printed on a sheet or sheets, or a piece or pieces of paper put together at some one part of the newspaper, whether gummed or stitched up with the newspaper or not, or wholly or in part of engravings, prints or lithographs illustrative of articles in the newspaper ; it must in every case be published with the newspaper and have the title newspaper printed at the top of every page, or the top of every sheet or side on which any engraving, print or lithograph appears. The supplement or supplements issued with any number may not exceed the newspaper itself in size or weight.

The Post office cannot regard a document as a supplement merely because it is printed under that title[.] A separate document intended to be used for separate purposes, is not a supplement to a newspaper.

Almanacks, although they are documents to be used for separate purposes, will, for the payment, be regarded as supplements provided that they are in all other respects in conformity with the regulations (see (e) above).

For example, documents of the following descriptions if enclosed in copies of registered newspapers render them inadmissible at the newspaper rate of postage viz :-

1. Any document not printed by the responsible printer of the paper, such as an advertisement sheet printed for an advertiser and sent to the publisher of the newspaper for distribution with it.
2. A contents bill, an advertisement sheet with an order form attached, or a proposal or enquiry form.
3. Any document drawn up in the form of a direct personal communication to the recipients, such as a printed circular in the form of a letter purporting to be addressed by an advertiser to the person by whom the newspaper in which it is enclosed is received.

The prepaid rate of postage on copies of publications registered for transmission at the Inland Newspaper Rate, including any supplements thereto, is one Millieme for every copy not exceeding 100 Grammes in weight, with a further charge of one Millieme for every additional 100 Grammes or fraction of 100 Grammes.

The rate applies to single copies of newspapers only. If two or more copies are sent in a single packet, each copy will be liable to the same postage as if it had been posted separately. But in no case will a packet of such copies be chargeable with a higher rate than that chargeable on a Letter or Printed Paper of the same weight.

No unregistered publication, and no article which is not part of a publication registered as a newspaper or a supplement thereto, may be enclosed in any packet sent at the Newspaper Rate.

No supplement to a publication registered as a newspaper is admissible at the Newspaper Rate unless it be sent through the post with the publication to which it is a supplement.

If any of the foregoing rules is infringed the packet is charged either as an underpaid Printed Paper (if admissible at that rate), or an underpaid Letter, or is transferred to the Parcel Post and charged with a fine of 5 Milliemes in addition to any deficient Parcel Postage, whichever involves the lower charge.

1.05.1920: Compensation for Loss of Registered Mail

Posts & TelegraphsCompensation for the loss of Registered Correspondence.

All postal matter in O. E. T. A. (S). is accepted entirely at "senders risk", and the Administration accepts no responsibility in respect of any article or packet, whether forwarded by registered or unregistered post.

In certain circumstances, however, and with the exceptions quoted below, compensation not exceeding the amounts shewn will be paid in respect of the total loss by the Post Office of a registered packet. Such compensation is given only as an act of grace and at the discretion of the Director of Posts & Telegraphs.

Limits of Compensation in respect of Registered Articles totally lostin transit.*Maximum amount of compensation payable.

- (a) On correspondence posted in Palestine for addresses in Palestine. 500. P.T.
- (b) On correspondence posted in Palestine for other countries or posted in other countries for addresses in Palestine. 200. P.T.

No compensation will be paid in respect of (a) any correspondence or articles forwarded by unregistered post, (b) any correspondence or articles forwarded by registered book post, (c) any packets, whether registered, or unregistered, containing coin, paper money, bank notes, etc., (d) the partial loss of the contents of a registered packet.

Persons despatching articles, etc, by registered post are advised to use strong covers and to seal the letters or packets with sealing wax, using a special impression or mark.

It should be clearly understood that the foregoing limits regarding compensation are due solely to the present transport conditions prevailing between Palestine and other countries. Every effort is made by the Postal Administration to ensure the safe transmission of postal matter and the registered post is, in any circumstances, the most reliable means of transmitting packets of value.

25.07.1920: Official Time is Cairo Observatory Time

NOTICE.

Residents in Jerusalem who have hitherto been puzzled as to what actually is the correct time or possibly confused by the apparently irregular chiming of clocks throughout the day in various parts of the city, will be pleased to know that arrangements have now been made whereby the timing of the city will be placed on a more satisfactory basis.

At 12 noon daily, Cairo Observatory time (the standard time for Egypt and Palestine) is signalled by telegraphs to Jerusalem. A clock which records this time has been placed in a conspicuous position in the Public Hall of the Post Office and as it can be easily seen from the street one has only to glance in through the Post Office door in order to be able to regulate one's watch.

It is to be hoped, now that facilities for correct time-keeping are available, that either persons responsible for regulating public clocks (more particularly those of the striking variety) will ensure that they maintain standard time, or that the authorities will have inaccurately chiming clocks stopped altogether, on the ground that they constitute a public nuisance.

1.10.1920: Use of Official Languages

NOTICE.Magistrate's Court Safed

An action has been raised at the instance of the Anglo Palestine Co. Ltd. of Safed against Hakhem Yussef Konnovitch of Safed for the sum of 9644 P.T. with interest thereon at 9%. The address of the said Hakham Yussef Hannovitch is unknown.

NOTICE IS HERECY GIVEN THAT unless the action be contested within one month from the publication of this Notice judgment will be given by the above mentioned Court in absence

Jerusalem,
September 16th, 1920.

Use of Official Languages.

1. English, Arabic and Hebrew, are recognised as the official languages of Palestine.
2. All Government Ordinances, official notices and forms will be published in the above languages. Correspondence may be addressed to any Government Department in any one of these languages. Correspondence will be issued from Government Departments in whichever of the languages is practically convenient.
3. Telegrams may be sent in any of the three languages, but if in Hebrew, they must be written in Latin characters, it not being practicable at present for the Post Office to transmit telegrams in Hebrew characters.
4. All Railway and road notices will be in the three languages.

5. In Municipal and Rural areas, where there is a considerable Jewish population, the three languages will be used in the Offices of the District and Sub-District Governors, of the Municipalities and of other official bodies, in the same manner as in the Government Departments. Such Districts will be termed Tri-Lingual Areas. They will be specified by the High Commissioner. The present Tri-Lingual Areas are: Jerusalem City, Jaffa Town and District, Ramleh Town and Sub-District, Haifa Town, Zummarrin Sub-Districts, sub-Districts of Tiberias and Safed. Other areas may be added from time to time, the guiding principle being the presence of a proportion of not less than 20% of Jews in the population of the area. In districts which have not been declared to be Tri-Lingual Areas, Arabic alone, or both English and Arabic, may be used as is convenient; provided that nothing in this order shall prevent the use of Hebrew if the occasion requires.
6. In the Courts of Law and Land Registries of a Tri-Lingual Area, every process, every official copy of a judgment, and every official document shall be issued in the language of the person to whom it is addressed; and written and oral pleadings shall be conducted in any of the three languages. The Legal Secretary may from time to time issue rules restricting the languages of pleading in any Court or classe of Courts outside the Tri-Lingual Areas.

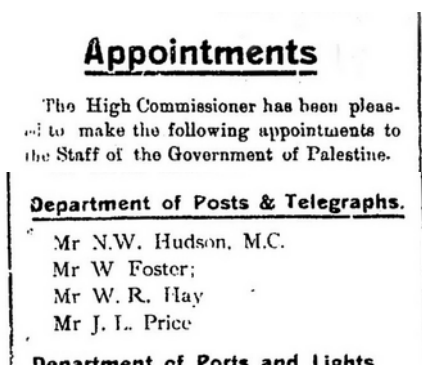

In a Tri-Lingual Area the public notary of the Court shall, and in any other area he may, accept a declaration and register a document in any of the three official languages.

OMAN STUDIES CENTRE

for Documentation and Research on Oman and the Arabian Gulf

The Oman Studies Centre is pooling resources on Oman and the Gulf to support research on Oman and to provide advisory services. In addition to the Oman Library with books, maps, and documents, the information pool includes special collections such as a philatelic collection and a numismatic collection.

For our philatelic collection we buy stamps, postal history, stationery, and documents in the following areas:

- India used in Muscat and Gwadar
- Pakistan used in Muscat and Gwadar
- British Post Office in Muscat
- Muscat & Oman, Sultanate of Oman
- "rebel stamps" State of Oman and Dhufar

We currently also buy early postcards of Oman (pre-1970) and Muscat quarter Anna varieties to complete collections that will result in the publishing of specialised catalogues in these two fields.

We have extensive holdings of duplicate material in all fields and are willing to sell or exchange for other Oman material. Enquiries are welcome.

The Oriental Philatelic Association of London

The Oriental Philatelic Association of London was founded in 1949. Its remit is very broad both geographically and historically as it covers all philatelic aspects of post within the former Ottoman Empire and all its myriad successor states. Nevertheless many members specialise in one small area. Over one third of our membership of over 150 lives abroad, with a particular large number in the USA.

OPAL publishes a couple of journals per year along with a couple of newsletters. Both publications are also used to answer members' queries. If our extensive library can't help with queries, then our membership invariably contains someone who can help, however specialised or esoteric. There are informal meetings held in various UK locations as well as our annual get together for our AGM.

Membership costs presently £5 per annum. Further details can be found on and contacts can be made via OPAL's website: www.mclstamps.co.uk/opal/opalhome.html.

Do you collect stamps from the Holy Land?

Why not join the Holyland Philatelic Society?

The Holyland Philatelic Society (founded in 1952) is the British society for all collectors of the stamps and postal history of Israel and Mandate Palestine, and those interested in the postal services in the Holyland from earliest times until the present day, including Ottoman and foreign post offices, times of war, the occupations, and Palestinian National Authority.

Meetings are held in Central London, and all members receive the society's journal, the BAPIP Bulletin.

Contact: holylandphilatelicociety@yahoo.com

The Ottoman and Near East Philatelic Society (ONEPS) promotes the collection and study of postage and revenue stamps, stationery, and postal history of the Ottoman Empire, the Republic of Turkey, and Ottoman successor states, including the Near and Middle East, Egypt, Arabia, and the Balkans.

Our journal, "The Levant," is published three times a year, and an index to all articles is posted on our website: www.oneps.net.

Membership in the society opens the door to a philatelic community with a wide range of interests, including Turkey, Palestine, Lebanon, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Jordan, Yemen, Egypt, Armenia, Greece, Cyprus, Bulgaria and Romania, philatelic and political history, postal administration, stamp authentication and forgeries, picture post cards and postal ephemera.

Annual dues are $20 in North America; £17 in the UK; €20 or $25 all other countries. Join by submitting an application, available from the Secretary, Mr. Rolfe Smith, at xbow2@mac.com or as download from our website: www.oneps.net.

Editorial

by Tobias Zywietz (mep-bulletin@zobbel.de)
 Publisher & Editor, The Middle East Philatelic Bulletin

The Mission

The Middle East Philatelic Bulletin (MEPB) is intended as a platform to publish research, reports, comments and enquiries on all aspects of Philately, i.e. Stamps, Stationery, Postal History, Social Philately, Topical (or Thematic) Philately, concerned with countries of the Middle East: the Arabian peninsula, Turkey, Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Palestine, Israel, Iraq and North Africa. I also like to cover further related collecting areas like Deltiology (postcards), Philography (autographs), Numismatics (coins), Notaphily (banknotes), and Erinnophily (cinderellas and ephemera).

MEPB will pursue a policy of political and religious impartiality and neutrality. We believe in tolerance and understanding amongst philatelists and collectors. We are open-minded and respect the views and convictions of our readers and contributors. Contributions should always be true to these guidelines and any opinions expressed by individual authors in their articles shall not necessarily be regarded as the opinions of this Bulletin or its Editor.

The previous paragraph gives you some indication why I created this new journal at this specific point. I'd rather not expand on what exactly triggered my decision, but it was just the last event on concerns I've had for a long time.

Old Structures

I have written extensively on Palestinian Postal History, especially on postmarks and registration labels, publishing on my website and in several philatelic journals, in both German and English. I regard the existing societies as a wonderful way to assemble and inform philatelists about their collecting interests. I am member of several philatelic societies, including:

- Oriental Philatelic Association of London (OPAL) UK
- Arbeitsgemeinschaft Osmanisches Reich / Türkei (AROS) Germany
- Ottoman and Near East Philatelic Society (ONEPS) USA
- Egypt Study Circle (ESC) UK
- Holyland Philatelic Society (HPS-BAPIP) UK
- Society of Israel Philatelists (SIP) USA
- Interessengemeinschaft Israel (IGI) Germany
- Cercle Français Philatélique d'Israël (CFPI) France

But there are manifold concerns and problems with the current structures:

- most of the societies are haemorrhaging members, mainly due to old-age, and some already have less than 100 members
- most societies find it very hard to attract new members, or even to fill vacant officer posts
- each society has a quality journal in its own right, but often specialising in their specific fields only, and supported by only a very small number of authors
- some societies don't even have a website, and they do not actively use social media
- membership is not free: the printed journals and other services do cost money, but membership fees are a hurdle for a younger generation with the experience that everything on the Internet is free
- there's resistance in some societies to modernise and make use of new opportunities
- some societies do not make their journal available in electronic form, even to their own members¹

I could go on... Basically I think that specialist societies are not the best way to bring together like-minded philatelists and collectors in the 21st Century. There are of course internet forums (and lots of them, also a problem), mailing lists and newsgroups where collectors meet and discuss. Some lack focus and (I must say) purpose. Many forums are too broad in the spectrum they cover, and newsgroups are often too limited and specialised.

Building Bridges

MEPB is intended to build bridges between these old and new, less formal structures: an ambitious journal, free to download, with an editor seeing to scope and focus, animating existing and new authors, connecting and networking.

I am primarily collecting Palestine. My speciality lies with the Postal History of Palestine since 1994, but I have a wide range of other interests. On my (award-winning) website "A Short Introduction the Philately of Palestine" I cover most areas of Palestine from 1914 to today.

¹ OPAL recently decided to take that step: their journal will be provided as PDF (in addition to the printed version) to its members in the future.

The Contents of this Issue

After these preliminaries, I'd like to expand a little on the articles I selected for this launch issue:

Bolthausen's Picture Postcards: I stumbled on the Bolthausen story after buying a small booklet on Ebay: it showed a cover with stamps and postmarks from several Jerusalem post offices. My interest in the Ottoman post and the foreign posts operating prior to the First World War was further encouraged when reading a 1913 German article that had been translated and republished in F.W. Pollack's Holy Land Philatelist in 1960: Father Schmitz vividly described the fierce competition between all these postal services in Jerusalem. Pollack, incidentally, used a Bolthausen cover to illustrate Schmitz's article.

Whilst researching the Bolthausen covers and cards, I found references to Bolthausen's activities surrounding Austrian bisects in 1908. A second Bolthausen article, due for the next issue of MEPB, will present all the information about his philatelic shenanigans! The 1913 Schmitz article will be featured in the Archive Section of one of the next issues.

The 1912 Mail Robbery: Father Schmitz's remarks about that robbery instigated my research in the circumstances; and again we're basically dealing with the rivalry of the Ottoman and the foreign posts. I also found references to the robbery in an article by the late Andreas Patera which lead to the very detailed contemporaneous report in a German newspaper. Pollack's Holy Land Philatelist provided further material on the story.

Dick Scheper gives a concise introduction to Perfins of the Levant, a much neglected field of philately. This nicely illustrated piece builds on his 2009 out-of-print book. With the kind help of Dr. Andreas Birken we could finally make sense of the (censor) markings.

Jean-Bernard Parenti's Air Mail Service in French Cilicia is a well-researched and sourced article I enjoyed reading when it was first published in The Levant in 2012. Sadly, the illustrations printed then were of such a poor quality, that they were rendered totally useless for the reader. The story was not only intriguing new research into this difficult episode, but also worthy to be brought to the attention of a larger audience—together with high-quality illustrations. After gaining the rights to use Richard Rose's translation, M. Parenti provided all the illustrations to me as well as the original French article from Documents Philatéliques. Together with the author, I made some changes to the piece, bringing the translation and layout more in line with the original text.

Jürgen Glietsch's study on the use of the Italian Military Provisional Postmark in Smyrna came to my attention while trawling through the monthly listings of new German philatelic literature in the BDP's journal philatelie. Originally published in 2004, the author had updated his article, and consented to its translation. Glietsch works primarily on Italian post offices in the Levant, so we can hopefully expect more articles on this topic in the future.

Rainer Fuchs is a good philatelic friend of mine: one of his main areas of research is the Overland Mail Haifa to Baghdad, where his interests (like Iraq) and mine (i.e. Palestine) meet. Fuchs publishes regularly in both German and English: London Philatelist, MICHEL-Rundschau, Türkei-Spiegel, philatelie, to name just a few. He also operates a website around his Overland Mail research. The article about the Kingdom of Kurdistan stamps had been published in German recently; I added a few further illustrations and remarks.

My article with photographs of the Old General Post Office of Jerusalem came about rather by chance: in the journal of the Deutsch-Palästinensische Gesellschaft (German-Palestinian Society) I saw a picture of fleeing women and children during the Nakba credited to a picture collection in the Library of Congress. When I checked out the website I found a number of pictures relating to postal buildings; a bit of further research brought about this concise by well illustrated article.

Future articles using images from the Matson Collection will feature the Nablus post office building, the 1938 raid on the Bethlehem post office, the printing process of the Jerusalem I overprints at the Greek Convent Press in August 1920, and the opening of the new General Post Office building in Jerusalem in 1936.

The 2012 Christmas Stamps of the Palestinian National Authority is part of a series resulting from the cataloguing work undertaken for my website. Further articles will deal with more PNA stamps and blocks with remarkable features or errors.

Dietrich Ecklebe's article World Cultural Heritage Destroyed not only covers Palmyra but also Assur, Niniveh, Hatra, and Bosra. I decided to produce only the chapter on Palmyra for this edition of MEPB due to the recent events there, but also because of the time consumed by preparing the translation of the other chapters. The article's remainder chapter will be published in the next issue of MEPB.

Rainer von Scharpen contributes two topical book reviews already published in German: Bassil's Introduction to French Postal History in Tripoli, and Livnat's Jérusalem et la Poste Française. Rainer is a profuse reviewer of philatelic literature for German journals.

Set apart from the other philatelic articles is the Archive Section, in which I'd like to publish (either as facsimiles or as transcripts, or both) documents pertinent to postal history and philately of the Middle East. These will therefore, apart from the necessary introductions, be only sparsely annotated.

In this issue I start a series on postal and related notices from the Official Gazettes of Palestine: part 1 features clippings from Official Gazette O.E.T.A. (South) (1919/1920) and the Official Gazette of the Government of Palestine (1920). This series will be continued for some time, but there will be plenty of space for other material in future issues of MEPB as well.

Advertisements

I gave all persons showing an interest and registering their e-mail-address with me the chance to place a free advert in this issue. Sadly only very few took up this opportunity, even after having been notified several times. I can only hope that in future issues more people will be using this service.

I have to stress that all the adverts are published free-of-charge. I do not pursue any financial objectives with this journal: I do not pay for articles, I do not charge for adverts. Apart from the considerable amounts of time I spent creating the journal, I have had no costs to cover at all.

Printed Copies

There will not be a printed version of MEPB. I looked into the costs and practicabilities, postage and packing, &c., and very quickly dropped any ideas about having the journal printed. The joy of an electronic-only magazine is that considerations about the number of pages, page-size, and use of colour just do not matter. I can just tack on a few more pages when I see fit and change fonts or layout at will.

Acknowledgements

I'd like to thank all contributors and all those aiding and encouraging me in the creation of this journal. The list would be too long to print here, so I name only two non-philatelists, who, as native speakers, helped me with proofreading and gave advice on style of writing: Lonnie and Colin.

Several organisations gave me permission to reprint articles from their journals and archives. One person I have to especially thank is Barry D. Hoffman, copyright owner of F.W. Pollack's The Holy Land Philatelist.

Many thanks to all!

Contributions

I will consider any article of quality for potential inclusion: be it a large article with original research, a small piece looking at a particular aspect, a concise description of an interesting cover, or a long-forgotten piece of research rediscovered. It can be original writing, or material already published. I will advise and help with anything offered. Translation into English can be arranged, and any changes are closely coordinated with the author.

If you think you can contribute to the journal, please do not hesitate to contact me.

A few guiding words on style and some necessary technical aspects:

- Articles should be submitted as plain text (TXT), rich text (RTF), Word (DOC, DOCX), LibreOffice/OpenOffice (ODT), or Adobe Acrobat (PDF).
- Images should be submitted as JPEG/JPG or PNG files, separate from the text. The resolution of images should ideally be 600dpi, but lower resolutions (300dpi) are acceptable as well.
- I welcome layout suggestions, but the MEPB uses a specific page layout and fonts, which limits its flexibility to some degree.
- Rights to texts and images not belonging to the author should be cleared, or at least be flagged-up, so that I can deal with any such incidents.

If in doubt: just ask! I will strive to resolve any such occurring issues.

In the Next Issue

I hope to include these articles, and more, in Issue 2 of MEPB, due in April 2016:

- Bolthausen II: the 1908 Bisects of Caiffa
- Rainer Fuchs on Iraqi Railway stamps and booklets
- The overprinting of Palestine's Jerusalem I issue in August 1920 (Matson Collection)
- Avo Kaplanian on Jordanian registration envelopes
- Edgar Karl Haberer on Austrian donation vignettes "Jerusalem pilgermarke"
- The Raid on the Bethlehem post office in September 1938 (Matson Collection)
- Rainer von Scharpen reviews Longo's Gli annulli postali libanesi 1918-1945
- Dietrich Ecklebe continues "World Cultural Heritage Destroyed" with Assur, Nineveh, Hatra, and Bosra
- PNA Issues: Gaza Freedom Fleet 2011
- Archive Section: Official Gazettes of Palestine 1921-1923

Please come forward with your articles, research, or images!
MEPB needs interesting new material!
