The Austrian Post in Thessaloniki During the Late Ottoman Period

by Alexis Savopoulos

This article, originally published in Φιλοτέλεια,¹ the journal of the Hellenic Philatelic Society (HPS), has now been revised with new additions and insights that came to light since the initial 2020 publication.

The author, Alexis Savopoulos, was awarded the Stefanos Macrymichalos Prize for philatelic literature in 2020.

During the 19th century and until the 1860s, while the Western World saw a very intensive period at a political, social and technological level, the status of Ottoman Thessaloniki seemed unaffected and continued to show significant delays in improving. The city's population – which consisted mainly of three large groups, the Jewish, the Muslim and the Greek, as well as a plethora of smaller groups – was suffocating in its densely populated urban environment (fig. 1).

During the last three decades of the 19th century, the broader opening up to the international financial markets as well as a series of reforms in the Ottoman Empire – such as the area's connections to shipping and railway European networks, as well as the efforts for industrialisation and large investments in real estate – required the complete reform of the oriental character of the city. In this context, a number of projects were carried out, infrastructure was laid out and larger public buildings were set up, which required a great deal of expenditure and work, which however contributed to an important effort toward the city's upgrade.

The demolition of the Byzantine walls from 1870 onwards and the use of the demolition waste for the construction of the rectilinear waterfront were the first major transformations to convert Thessaloniki into a modern European city of its time, having direct access to the harbour and expanding to new urban areas outside the medieval walls. The subsequent addition of the Débarcadère at the extension of Eleftherias Square allowed the boarding or disembarkation of smaller steamships and boats on the sea board (fig. 2).

The Decauville railway line can be seen next to the fence and gate, which carried stones from the quarry site in the Evangelistria area, right along the lines of the horsedrawn tramway.³

Construction works for the new port began in 1896 and it was finally introduced into service in 1906. At the same time the construction of the initial railway line Thessaloniki–Skopje–Mitrovica in 1874, the completion of the Skopje–Niš branch line in 1888 and the construction of the Thessaloniki–Bitola line in 1894,⁴ and the Thessaloniki–Constantinople line in 1896,⁵ would connect Thessaloniki, by rail, with the whole of the Balkans and the rest of Europe.⁶ With the addition in 1892 of the initially horse-drawn tramway, which was converted in 1908 into an electric-powered one, the modernisation of the city's infrastructure was completed.

Selanik (Thessaloniki) Vilayet consisted of the Sanjaks of Selanik, Siroz (Serres) and Drama and shared borders in the late 19th century with the (later Kingdom) of Bulgaria in the north and Eastern Rumelia in the northeast, Edirne Vilayet in the east, Monastir (Bitola) Vilayet and Kosovo Vilayet in the northwest (fig. 3).

The Austro-Hungarian Empire,⁷ hereinafter referred to as Austria, had been from the first moment a leader in the integration of railway transportation, investing substantial capital sums through the Austrian Banks, as it sought to increase its political and commercial influence in the wider Balkan area. Its strategy included within the capitulations⁸ with the Ottoman Empire the operation of additional Austrian post offices along the newly introduced railway lines. In order to support the Austrian trade, the largest Austrian shipping company Lloyd Austriaco (Österreichischer Lloyd)⁹ served the port of Thessaloniki on a weekly basis via the Thessalian Line in the eastern Mediterranean.

⁷ In German “Kaiserliche und königliche Monarchie Österreich-Ungarn,” often abbreviated in English as “k.u.k. monarchy.”

⁸ “Capitulations” were bilateral trade agreements concluded by many European states with the Ottoman Empire.

⁹ Until 1891 it was called “Österreichisch-Ungarischer Lloyd” (Austro-Hungarian Lloyd).

Philatelic History

S. D. Tchilinghirian¹⁰, or to be precise, the patriarch of Austrian philately and expert Edwin Müller,¹¹ states that the Austrian Consular Post Office in Thessaloniki operated since 1833, and that with the opening of the 1853 Austrian Lloyd's Thessalian Line, the existing shipping agency also operated as a postal agency. In 1895 the consular post office was promoted to an official Austrian post office and was staffed by postal officers, while on 1st June 1895 the post office branch of the Frankish Quarter¹² was added, resulting in the usage of two distinct postmarks of "SALONICH I" and "SALONICH II". Until the addition of the Branch Office in 1895, summarising our current knowledge, the postmark types nos. 1–6 (see figs. 4–9) had been used (table 1):

Number	NG ¹³	Post Office	Remarks
1	173/3	Main	Single-circle cancellation in Italian ¹⁴ and 24 mm diameter
2	174/6	Main	First postmark with "ÖSTERREICHISCHE POST" (Austrian Post) inscription. All inscriptions are in German. This special type can also be found in Constantinople.
3	174/7	Main	"SALONICH I OESTERREICHISCHE POST" ¹⁵
4	193/2	Branch	"SALONICH II OSETERREICHISCHE POST" ¹⁶
5	193/1	Branch	Bilingual, used from July to September 1895.
6	1895	Branch	Use in July 1895 of the repaired NG 173/4 in Italian, which was withdrawn in 1893. ¹⁷

12 The district was called Frankish Quarter (inside the Jewish district of Malta-Cedid). Cf. fig. 1.

13 Nicholas & Galinos, 1996.

14 During the period 1880–1893 a second similar type postmark (NG 173/4) of 23 mm diameter was added, with minor differences in the characters.

15 There are two postmark types with 28.5 mm and 30 mm (NG 174/8) diameter respectively and minor differences in their characteristics.

16 It bears the most characteristic spelling mistake of the Austrian Post with the word misspelled "OSETERREICHISCHE" instead of "OESTERREICHISCHE".

17 Thomareis, 2008, pp. 307–310.

The “SALONICH I” postmark was used by the ‘official’ former main consular Austrian post office,¹⁸ while the “SALONICH II” cancellation was used by the Austrian branch office. The postmark no. 4 had been sent by the engraver to the Austrian Imperial Administration on 5th July 1895. The spelling mistake was not detected, so it was sent to the branch post office where it began to be used around the beginning of August 1895.¹⁹

Austrian Lloyd

The first contacts of Austrian Lloyd with the port of Thessaloniki begin after the integration of the Istanbul–Thessaloniki route, carried out by the Austrian shipping company Donaudampfschiffahrtsgesellschaft (D.D.S.G.), in January 1843.²⁰ The D.D.S.G. had included this line on its routes as early as 1839, using its first proprietary steamship Maria Dorothea.²¹

The presence of Austrian Lloyd in the postal history of Thessaloniki ceased with the withdrawal of the use of its shipping cancellations at the end of 1870. In early July 1885, the operation of the Lloyd’s Postal Agency in Thessaloniki was suspended.²² However, the company continued to operate in the port of Thessaloniki on a weekly basis.

Austrian Lloyd, after a long period of decline, reached the verge of a financial crisis in the late 1880s, with its operating deficit in 1890 amounting to more than 600,000 forints. While in 1888 the shipping and postal contract between the government and Austrian Lloyd was renewed for a decade, the subsidies given according to the specific contract soon proved insufficient.²³

Excessively high shipping costs, especially compared to the equivalent costs of German shipping companies, and fierce competition for maritime supremacy in the Mediterranean, seemed to make its return to profitability unlikely. The Austrian government was forced to take courageous support measures for the company, by significantly increasing its subsidy with large capital injections of 2,910,000 forints, while Hungary abandoned the company’s shareholders’ board in 1891. Austrian Lloyd was significantly reorganised in the 1890s, by functional reforms as well as by reorganisation measures. With the complete replacement of its outdated fleet, it experienced a huge expansion phase in its development in the 1890s that peaked after 1906 and lasted until the beginning of World War I. The offices of the Lloyd agency was located on the Débarcadère²⁴ next to the French, Italian, Russian steamship agencies as well as to the Kurtzis agency, very closely located to the Frankish Quarter. In 1895 the port of Thessaloniki was serviced by the following two lines of Austrian Lloyd (figs. 10 and 11):²⁵

History of the Austrian Post Office

The discovery of four photos, published here for the first time, which were found in the archives of Technisches Museum in Vienna, along with the search for references in newspapers and maps of the 19th and 20th centuries, triggered an attempt to identify the exact position of the two Austrian post offices. During the process, my research led to the discovery of new information, which put under a different light what we had known so far about the two Austrian post offices, a knowledge which was based entirely on the books of Müller and Tchilinghirian.

We are grateful to Andreas Patera²⁶ for an excellent article,²⁷ which includes a wealth of information about operational and organisational details of the Austrian Post Office, and among others a photograph of the façade of the entire building, unfortunately without any references.²⁸ From the richness of the information, we estimate that it was obtained through a thorough study of Austrian consular and postal administrative records. Our persistent research in 19th century Austrian newspapers found unknown details and sheds light on many of these details, so we have no doubts about the integrity of these facets of information. At the same time, the exhaustive search in the articles of the bi-weekly francophone newspaper Journal de Salonique (issued during the period November 1895 to November 1910) helped us to identify additional valuable details of the daily operation of the Austrian Post Office in Thessaloniki.

Austria divided its post offices into state and non-state. The term state post office (“ärarisches Postamt”) means that it was funded by the state budget and therefore its employees were considered civil servants, both the administrative staff and the postal clerks sorting mail and performing day-to-day business (“Manipulationsgehilfen”).

The Austrian Post Office in the 1860s operated as a postal agency (“Postexpedition”).²⁹ On 1st June 1864³⁰ it began using so-called Lombard-Venetian stamps with values in Italian currency (soldi),³¹ in order to differentiate these from the stamps used in Austria, which had a face value in Kreuzer. On 1st July 1875 the U.P.U.³² standardised postal rates were introduced (fig. 12). It appears that in June 1878 it was converted into a state post office,³³ although the Neue Freie Presse newspaper reported on 29th December 1876:

Given the current situation, it is of particular interest to get an overview of the Austrian Post Offices in Turkey. Based on the latest available information [...] the Post Office of Thessaloniki consists of 1 postal executive with the rank of Postoffizial [...]

Following the upgrade of the post office,³⁴ the Austrian Ministry of Commerce authorised the Consul of Thessaloniki to look for new safe premises for the post office and rent these at an annual basis with a budgeted cost between 250 and 300 forints. It also approved the purchase of new furniture and equipment for the head of the office. Due to the lack of an administrative postmark, the postal authority was ordered to manufacture a new canceller with the inscription “Salonico” and further to purchase a hanging lamp, two brass lamps, and a complete manual of international postal rates with the relevant information sheets.

26 Andreas Patera (1952–2006) was a postal officer and Austrian postal history expert.

28 Patera’s article did not include any references to his sources.

31 The value of the 5, 10 and 15 soldi stamps corresponded to 20, 40 and 60 para (½, 1, and 1½ piastre, respectively). On 1.01.1866, uniform postal fees were introduced in Austria as follows: letter within Austria 15 soldi, Levant post office to Levant post office (litoral) 10 soldi, registration fee 10 soldi.

32 The postal fees were amended as follows: letter up to 15g 10 soldi, registration fee 10 soldi, postcards 5 soldi.

This can be confirmed by the first appearance of the post office in 1877³⁵ in the list of supervised Austrian post offices of the Ottoman Empire of the k.k.³⁶ Ministry of Commerce. Demeter (Demetrius) Filippovich³⁷ was appointed first head of the post office with the internal postal rank of Post-Official. In 1881 Rudolph Schnell³⁸ was added as another administrative officer with the rank of Post-Assistent to the post office staff, together with Jean Fedi as employee.³⁹ Schnell was replaced in 1884 by Alfred von Perckhammer.⁴⁰

With the stabilisation of the monetary exchange rates in the Ottoman Empire, stamps with face value in Piastres were used after 1st May 1888. Julius Walter von Walden,⁴¹ with the rank of Post-Controlor, succeeded Filippovich as director of the office on 15th May 1887,⁴² with an annual income of 2,200 forints. On 28th February 1888, he was sentenced to three-and-a-half years in prison in Trieste, dismissal from the postal service and loss of his title of nobility for embezzling 3,104 Forints and 64 Kreuzer. Josef Charwath,⁴³ who had previously served in the consular post office of Constantinople, was appointed new director of the office in May 1888, with the rank of Post-Controlor, while in 1894 the staff increased once more by one administrative officer and an assistant employee. At the end of 1895, Charwath was succeeded by Hugo Reinalter in the rank of Post-Controlor, who held the position until the middle of 1897, when he was replaced by Josef Seelinger in the rank of Postverwalter.⁴⁴

During his long and prosperous tenure, but also with his prominent presence in the local German-Austrian community, Josef Seelinger (1860–1937)⁴⁸ seems to have marked the successful transition of the Austrian Post Office from the 19th to the 20th century. On the occasion of his departure, the Journal de Salonique states in its issue of 8th August 1909:

On Thursday morning, Mr. Joseph Seelinger, former director of the Austrian Post Office of our city, where he remained for almost 14 years, left for Vienna. During his long stay, Mr. Seelinger, due to his kindness and devotion, created only friendships and sympathies. As a reward for his services, the (Austrian) government invited him back to Vienna where he was appointed to an important new position in the central postal administration [...] Mr. M. Ritter von Vucetich arrived from Constantinople in order to replace him.

The number of employees reached its maximum of seven in 1897, plus two more cavasi (“Kawassen”), serving as guards and gatekeepers. Similarly, in the late 1890s, there was a remarkable postal improvement in terms of transmitting the post. In 1899 it reached its highest level of revenue with 38,604 Forints and 58 Kreuzers. The following year, the income began to decline steadily, approx. about 1,000 forints less per year.⁴⁹ In a letter to Alexander Eberan von Eberhorst, inspector of the Austrian Post Offices of the Levant, Seelinger wrote on 17th February 1902 details stating the reasons for this decrease:

1. The opening of the English Post Office in Thessaloniki had unfavourable consequences for the Austrian Post Office.

⁴⁵ The time-consuming preparation of these annual directories likely lead to some delay in updating all the contents.

⁴⁸ He was a member of the board of the German School of Thessaloniki, together with Fridolin Jenny, of the renowned trading company Jenny & Vock (cf. Journal de Salonique, 22.09.1908).

2. The Ottoman Post Office sells for 1 Turkish lira 120 stamps valued 1 piastre each, an offer that clearly attracts the expeditors of mass correspondence.
3. The chronic plunder of the Austrian Post Office. Several postal bags have been compromised.
4. The personnel situation is worse than it was four years ago, due to the replacement of Messrs. Costa and Novak. Mr. Falconetti isn't capable of mastering the tasks of a treasurer.

Main Post Office – Analysis of the Facts

The four photos (phs. 1–4 = fig. 13–16) are included in a 50-sheet leather-bound album, entitled “Österreichische Postanstalten in der Türkei” (Austrian post offices in Turkey), which is located at Technisches Museum Vienna. The time frame for the photographs included in the album is estimated to around 1898 and 1906, and their provenance is mainly the photographic collections of officers of the Consular Post of Constantinople.

According to their captions, phs. 1 & 2 were taken around 1901 and depict, respectively, the façade and the interior of the Austrian post office of Thessaloniki. With the help of the depicted façade of the ground floor from ph. 1, it became possible to identify ph. 3 as that of its entrance.⁵⁰ At a later stage ph. 4 was discovered, depicting the façade of the whole building,⁵¹ unfortunately not in a satisfactory resolution. The set of photographs was taken by the renowned photographer Albert Franz Baubin,⁵² sometime between 1900 and 1904.

The two-storey building in which the post office was housed is a typical example of eclecticism,⁵³ with clear Central European influences. The decorative lunette window above the entrances leads to the conclusion that its interior may have been elevated in relation to the pavement, while we observe that the second floor has a low ceiling.

Each glass window of the post office bears one of the trilingual inscriptions of “Austrian Post” in German, French and Italian, as “OESTERREICHISCHES POSTAMT”, “POSTE AUTRICHIENNE” and “I.R. POSTA AUSTRIACA”, respectively, while a large Austrian flag can be seen right at the corner. Ph. 4, which clearly bears the signature “A. F. Baubin – Salonique”, has been taken from the opposite pavement. Here we can see a gas lamp and a bilingual sign (in Greek and French) of the renowned pharmacist Dr. Salomon Ben Nahmias,⁵⁴ who had, since 1898, been the owner of a pharmacy and chemical laboratory in the Frankish Quarter.⁵⁵

The caption of ph. 1 reveals:

Further back on the road a mailbox is visible. At the front of the two entrances are the kavasi, while the double-headed eagle can be seen atop of one of the fezs. A Kavasi is the guard of the entrance, in traditional costume similar to that of the Evzones with the role of protecting and maintaining order. He is armed with a pistol and a dagger that he has affixed in his belt. The Post Office (of Thessaloniki) was founded in 1833 and was administratively subordinate to the Embassy's Post Office in Istanbul.

52 A. F. Baubin worked as a photographer in Thessaloniki from 1895 to 1918, having his photographic studio first in Lombardo Passage, Bosnak Hani (opposite the gallery on L. Sofou Str.), then in Egnatia Str. (Tahta-Kale) and finally in Agora Str. (Rue Tcharchi) near the sheltered part of Venizelos Str. (Sabri Pasha), just opposite the Central Hotel.

53 During the transition period from the 19th to the 20th century, Thessaloniki had become a centre of eclecticism, an architectural style that morphologically combines many styles from various historical periods.

Ph. 2 shows the interior of the aforementioned post office, while its caption states:

Letter-boxes, the framed portrait of Emperor Franz Joseph I, a wall clock and two sliding window counters occupy most of the wall. Behind the windows of the counters, two employees dressed in suits and white shirts. In all larger post offices with a very high volume of mail traffic, similar "letter-boxes" have been installed that can be rented by the public at a moderate price.

In fact, the newspaper Journal de Salonique on 6th July 1899, referring to the letter-boxes, points out:⁵⁸

The Austrian Post Office has just introduced an excellent innovation in its distribution services with the installation, inside its offices, but also in the "other post offices", letter-boxes that greatly facilitate the delivery of mail to those subscribing to this service. Let us take the opportunity to talk about the high standard to which the various departments of this important post office operate, especially after the arrival of its new Director, Mr. Josef Seelinger, who does not neglect to satisfy the numerous customers of the Austrian Post Office [...] Congratulations are in order from all of us to the management of the Austrian Post Office for their practices in the selection of their personnel.

Therefore this particular post office was internally well organised, sufficiently staffed and, in addition, it had a considerably large turnover.⁵⁹

Based on phs. 1–4 an attempt was made to identify the location of this particular post office, drawing data from a series of maps and photographs.

Unfortunately, most of the city's streets were not named at the time. It was only in May 1898⁶⁰ that by a decision of the city council the first signs with street names and house numbers appeared, albeit with limited use since they were written only in Ottoman script and often associated with the names of residents, shops or other place names, while the names the streets often changed. A report published in the newspaper Journal de Salonique provides an accurate position of the Austrian Post Office informing us about these circumstances.⁶¹

Even the Thessalonians cannot read the road signs. The Municipality could place bilingual signs in Turkish and maybe in French. On the other hand, Turkish names are hardly translated, while some are almost comical. Examples: "Miltiadi Kahvesine çıkan sokağı",⁶² "Pallas Kahvesine çıkan sokağı",⁶³ "Bakal Costadin sokağı",⁶⁴ meaning "Road leading to Miltiadis Cafe", "Road leading to Pallas Cafe", "Road leading to Constantine the grocer".

The Municipality, with a proverbial willingness to satisfy the taxpayers, decided to do something. As of yesterday, it has started placing plaques and giving names to the streets and numbers on the doors. The road from the Austrian post office to Hani Gildiz has already been named Stock Exchange Str.⁶⁵ Further up the street was baptized Allatini Str. [...] That's something, if one considers how long it took to get to this point.

However, in order to facilitate the effort to identify the characteristic points of interest, as a working method, their unique positions in the area of Ottoman Thessaloniki, hereafter referred to with their Greek names after 1912, are mentioned in the following order (table 3):

66 The two-storey Lombardo Passage included a cruciform atrium, covered by a glazed roof. In fact, a Turkish Telegraph Office and the Bank of Mytilene were installed in the gallery.

67 Bestsinar was the name of the area that is today at the third and fourth pier of the current port of Thessaloniki.

68 The old Customs House was replaced in 1912 by the imposing Customs Building (14) inside the port area, designed by architect Alexandre Vallauray. Both would today be placed in the area of the Thessaloniki Port Authority.

69 The French post office branch initially operated inside the Mission des Lazaristes; in June 1898 it moved to Sygrou Str. (Ottoman name: Allatini Str., see Journal de Salonique, 2.06.1898).

70 Detail of map taken from Demetriades, 1983.

To facilitate the entire process of the identification, an excerpt from the topographic map of the Frankish Quarter during the Ottoman period, which is included in the book by B. Demetriades (where most of the aforementioned points of interest and positions have been highlighted), is presented as a methodological approach (fig. 18). All positions except (5), (6) and (x) are well known and referenced in the contemporary literature of Thessaloniki. It should be noted that well-known and already identified buildings have been marked in red, while buildings for which their identification will be attempted in this article are marked in blue. Similarly, for easier understanding, the following roads which will be mentioned repeatedly as we go along have been highlighted in yellow on the map:

Katouni	I. Dragoumi ⁷³	Agiou Mina ⁷⁴

71 We follow B. Demetriades' hypothesis that Frangon Str. extends to Venizelou Str.

72 Former Trapezis Str.

73 For simplicity's sake, we refer to the former M. Alexandrou Str. as I. Dragoumi Str. Originally, M. Alexandrou Str. had a slightly different footprint from I. Dragoumi Str., as it was mostly parallel to it, only further to the west.

74 Former I. Tsimiski Str.

75 Today, Hapsa Str. and Naumachia Lemnos Str. are located nowadays slightly further north on the map.

76 Detail of map taken from Demetriades, 1983.

In all cases, we will be mentioning the streets with their current names, unless they ceased to exist following the implementation of the new urban plan of the French architect and urban planner Ernest Hébrard, after the great fire of 1917, which, however, do not correspond to their present-day positions.

As can be seen on the map in fig. 18, in the heart of the Frankish Quarter in the 1900s there were three banks and three post offices within a very short distance, while the Italian and French post offices were not far away. Here the key question of exactly where the two well-known Austrian post offices were located presents itself. Until now, we knew about the branch located in the Frankish Quarter, but where exactly was the Central Post Office before 1900?

Starting the search, we present the proposals made so far on the position of the Austrian post offices.

Based on an article by M. C. Dauphiné,⁷⁸ as well as on the points of interest of the map of fig. 19, T. Papaeliou⁷⁹ placed the branch, in somewhat general terms:

[...] on Frangon Str. in the square opposite the (Catholic) Cathedral of St. Paul,⁸⁰ while the English post office is located in the same square as the Austrian post office and with a façade parallel to Frangon Str. [...]

⁷⁷ Map of Salonica and surrounding country. 1909.

⁷⁸ Dauphiné, 1992, pp. 20–22.

⁷⁹ Papaeliou, 1995.

⁸⁰ In the British map of 1909, the Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin, which was erected in 1899, is mistakenly called Saint Paul, perhaps following an earlier name used in the area of the Catholic Mission plot.

A. Virvilis⁸¹ expresses the view that:

[...] it was housed on Frangon and Leontos Sofou Str. in the Lombardo Passage in the square opposite the Ottoman Bank which was located next to the Church of St. Paul [...]

As for the 'official' central Austrian post office, T. Papaeliou expresses the opinion⁸² that:

[...] the location of the Austrian post office can be identified near the seafront, in Kalamaria, which of course housed the Austrian Consular Post.

while completing his deduction with an unexpected conclusion:⁸³

So we consider the Austrian Post Office to be one, that on Frangon Str.; and the reason for the existence of two types of postmarks (SALONICH I and SALONICH II) concerned the classification of the correspondence.

The discovery of an advertisement for the branch of the well-known Austrian clothing company Victor Tiring & Frères,⁸⁴ a colossus of the time, states as its address the commercial building of Hani Allatini, just opposite the Austrian Post Office (fig. 21). Furthermore, from the brilliant description of S. Levy in the Journal de Salonique, we know that it was located at the beginning of Sygrou Str. Moreover, in an article by A. Papadopoulos,⁸⁵ a sketch from December 1898 drawn by A. B. Walkley, Inspector General of the Posts (Surveyor) is presented (fig. 20).

The specific sketch depicts the five proposed locations for the installation of the English post office in Thessaloniki, along with a number of geographical designations, such as the Lombardo Passage at site (1), the Ottoman Bank at site (2), the Catholic Church (3), the annex of the French Post Office (23), as well as the Austrian Branch placed in the market at position (x).⁸⁶ The location (6) inside the Hani Allatini (26) shopping complex was the one that was finally chosen to house the English Post Office, with its entrance located on V. Hugo Str.

Based on the illustration in fig. 11, the details of the front of the Austrian Post Office in photo 1 but also a comparison of the corner buildings in fig. 22, the possibility that the Austrian Post Office was at the intersection of L. Sofou and Frangon streets at the location (a) of the map of B. Demetriades (fig. 18) can conclusively be excluded.

Figs. 22 and 23: The intersection of L. Sofou and Frangon streets (a) from two perspectives in photographs taken after 1904.

In the left photograph⁸⁷ of Jean Leitmair,⁸⁸ the Lombardo Passage (1) can be seen, with its arched entrance and the Ottoman Bank (2), while the right photograph shows the French Hospital (10).

Aided by a picture postcard depicting Frangon Street (fig. 24), which was released after the liberation of Thessaloniki, it became possible to finally identify the location of the Austrian post office. Associating its scene with the one in ph. 4 (fig. 25), we find that the post office was located at the intersection of V. Hugo and Frangon Streets at position (5), with its front façade on Frangon Str. Using an aerial photograph of A. Karademou-Yerolympos⁸⁹ as a background, we can clearly topographically place the location of both the Austrian and the English post offices (fig. 26) to the specific block. It should be noted that there is a discrepancy in the position as shown in the sketch by A. B. Walkley, which appears diagonally opposite, but which is most likely owed to an error in his estimation.

Two covers provide the corresponding documentation in terms of postal history. The cover in fig. 30 was sent from Hamburg on 25th September with an insufficiently paid 10 Pfennig rate instead of the correct 20 Pfennig, to a recipient staying at the Colombo Hotel. Upon arrival, four 10 Para on 5 Heller stamps were affixed (unfortunately two have been detached) bearing the “SALONICH I” postmark dated 29th September 1902. The Colombo Hotel was until 1903 located at L. Sofou Str. (7), next to the Ottoman Bank (2) at a distance of 240 m from the Austrian post office of the Frankish Quarter (5). The registered cover in fig. 29, sent to Leeds by the Bank of Thessaloniki (4),

Figs. 24 and 25: The identified location of the Austrian post office (5) at the intersection (b) of Frangon and V. Hugo Streets, with the help of photograph 4. Included here are the Hani Allatini (24), and the French Hospital (10).

Also shown are the Austrian post office (5) and right across the street the English post office (6) located inside the Hani Allatini shopping arcade (24).

Careful study of the photographs referenced, taking into account the listed information, leaves us no longer in any doubt. The four photographs (phs. 1–4 = figs. 13–16) do not depict the branch post office, but the central Austrian post office of Thessaloniki, which used the distinct numbered postmark “SALONICH I”.

It should be noted that according to the sketch by A. B. Walkley, its position before 1900 should have been right diagonally at the opposite corner at location (5b).

Following a Facebook post of M. Nikopoulou,⁹⁰ valuable historical information has been found in the Journal de Salonique issue of 31st June 1899, referring to the precise position of the commercial building, right in the middle of the Frankish Quarter, in which the Post Office was located:

The lay council of the Israelite community is tendering the construction process of a Hani, which is located in the Frankish Quarter, just opposite the Hani Allatini. Contractors who may wish to submit a quote and take note of the plans, quotes and specifications are requested to contact, from 6 am to 8 pm. evening Mr. Barouh, supervisor engineer of the works, whose office is located at rue Top-Hané, building Isaac Modiano. Each participant must deposit a bond of 150 Ltq. The final tender will take place on Tuesday, 8th August, at 10 Turkish hour, at the community offices.

and furthermore at the 25th October 1900 issue, we learn more facts about the construction process of the building and furthermore naming its architect, stating:

The scaffoldings removal from a commercial building, owned by the Israeli community, in the heart of the Frankish Quarter, revealed a magnificent building that meets all the requirements, from technical, aesthetical and elegance view. Additionally, it has the enormous advantage that its expenditure was lower than the foreseen budget, because unnecessary waste was avoided.

This building is the first to match real European standards. Like the buildings of Paris, Vienna, Bucharest and most other major cities, the roof of the new building is partially covered by slate plates from the “Carrieres Orientales”. These plates give a particular tasteful result, are easy in their use and are distinguished by incredible stability.

The cornices, columns and roof decorations are made of processed zinc, created by “Ateliers de Salonique” and have won the admiration of all passers-by.

Shortly, the new construction, in all means, satisfies and matches perfectly to the point of view expressed even by the most demanding architects or the most eclectic artists and covers most of the common persistent aesthetics.

We would like to congratulate the architect-engineer, Mr. Barouh, who not only endowed our city with a small masterpiece, but also set an example that may be followed by all future construction builders, because imitation is a human nature characteristic.

This commercial building, with its distinctive slate roof, can be identified as the commercial “Passage Oriental,” which was just right at the intersection of V. Hugo and Frangon streets. Marc Barouh⁹¹ was a well-known Thessalonian architect-engineer during the late 19th and the beginning of the 20th century.⁹² Together with his Thessalonian architect partner Charles Amar,⁹³ they designed the plans for the reconstruction of the Ottoman Bank⁹⁴ after its bombing in 1903,⁹⁵ by adopting a Neo-Baroque architectural style and using exactly the same slate plates design for its roof. 95 On 17.04.1903, a series of bombings took place in Thessaloniki perpetrated by the so-called “Bulgarian Boatmen”, an organisation of young people with anarchist ideological backgrounds. From 28.04.1903 to 1.05.1903 the group launched a campaign of terror bombings in Thessaloniki with dozens of deaths. One of the organization’s most serious blows was the bombing of the Ottoman Bank (2), the nearby German club and the Colombo Hotel (7), which were completely destroyed. The blast at the Ottoman Bank was carried out through the construction of an underground tunnel that started from a diagonally opposite shop on L. Sofou Str., which was rented by a Bulgarian national.

we find them to undertake the construction of several branch buildings for the Ottoman Bank⁹⁶ at various cities of the Ottoman Empire, as well being public works contractors for buildings, streets and bridges of the Ottoman Empire.⁹⁷

Where exactly was the central post office before 1895? The answer that it was inside the Consulate building could not be logically valid, since the post office was upgraded in 1876 and it was found to be renting its own space.

For the record, the Austrian Consulate in 1876 was located opposite the Caravan Sarai (19).⁹⁹ Based on a blueprint copy of a topographical map of 1889 of Achilleas Kampanakis,¹⁰⁰ the Austrian Consulate with No. 142 is placed just adjacent to the Austrian post office with No. 121 on Frangon Str., between the L. Sofou and N. Lemnos streets. In the insert map of Thessaloniki in 1892,¹⁰¹ it was located near the sea front (20) on the left side, at the ascent of Ethnikis Amynis Street,¹⁰² which had just been inaugurated in 1891 after the demolition of the eastern walls of the city (fig. 31). In 1909 it was relocated to Vas. Olgas Str.¹⁰³ in the district outside the walls called Exohes or Yahılar, which, as part of the modernisation of Thessaloniki after 1885, began to expand and develop rapidly outside of the city's medieval southeastern wall.

The inserted map of 1892 brought to light an important detail that completes the previous data analysed. It depicts the Austrian post office located in square C2 of the map (5). The main information by S. D. Tchilinghirian, on the establishment of the branch,¹⁰⁴ that:

The Austrian Branch Office

The third page of the aforementioned album located at Technisches Museum Vienna contained two more photographs (phs. 5 and 6 = figs. 32 and 33) lead us to a complete reversal of what we believed we knew.

According to the caption of ph. 6 this depicts the front of the Austrian post office in Thessaloniki, but clearly different from that of Frangon Str., with its sign and its mailbox on the left as well as two eclectic-style balconies. On the glass of its façade we can read “I. R. POSTA AUSTRIACA” which is Italian for “Austrian Post”. In front of the entrance of the post office on the cobbled street, there is a trace of a tram line. The caption of ph. 5 states:

A boat bearing the flag of the Austrian Lloyd receives mail and parcels from the steamer at the port.

*Figs. 32 and 33: Unloading by boat of the mail and the packages of the Austrian Post from the steamer to the port (ph. 5)
The façade of the second Austrian post office (ph. 6).¹⁰⁷*

Sometime later, a clear ph. 7 (fig. 34) was found on a Facebook post,¹⁰⁸ which is directly related to the aforementioned Austrian Lloyd's postal boat in ph. 5. Obviously taken by Albert F. Baubin, during the same day as the other photo, it shows in the background the coastal zone of the port, the breakwater, the completed first pier of the port as well as warehouse buildings, a fact that allows its placement in time after 1902.

Perhaps ph. 6 depicts part of the entrance of the Austrian Consulate? The shape of the entrance, as well as the narrow pavement of ph. 6 do not seem to fit with the building at Ethnikis Amynis Str. or its spacious pavement (fig. 35). Could this be placed according to the sketch of A. Walkley in location (x), which is marked as a branch of the Austrian post office, approximately next to the church of St. Minas (25) (fig. 38) in the City Market?

Figs. 39 and 40: Two photos of the ascent of Venizelou Street with the single line of the tram converging towards the right pavement, at the intersection (c) with the abolished Plutarchou¹¹¹ Street and at the intersection (d) with Ag. Minas.

The distance of about 300 m from the central post office on Frangon Str., the somewhat long distance from the port at first consideration seem to suggest an auxiliary space or warehouse of the central post office on Frangon Str. The single horse-drawn tram line of Venizelou Str. converges to the right pavement on its ascent, not exactly in front of the entrance of the branch (fig. 38).

However, A. Patera states in his monograph¹¹² that the Austrian branch was founded in 1895 and was located in the Bazaar of the city, a piece of information that we do not dispute, because it goes hand-in-hand with (at least) the year of the branch with the information of Tchilinghirian and therefore we conclude in that the branch was in position (x). The discovery of a news item in the Journal de Salonique dated 2.11.1899¹¹³ seems to clarify the landscape:

The management of the Austrian Post Office in our city informs that it is going to transfer its branch to the sea front next to the old Russian Post Office. This office will have the advantage of receiving letters, cheques and small parcels until the last minute before the departure of the steamships. We congratulate the management of the Austrian Post Office for this pioneering idea that provides an excellent opportunity for the public. Let's add that the Austrian Post Office has installed a mailbox in the store of A. Mayer & Co.,¹¹⁴ where a competent official will be in charge of selling the stamps. This mailbox will be collected daily.

Therefore, after November 1899, the Austrian branch, according to our previous reasoning, was transferred from the Market to the sea front. Obviously, to continue offering the service of sending letters and postcards, a mailbox was placed in a store, at approximately the same point of the bustling market, with the possibility of also buying stamps. What might have been the new location of the branch on the waterfront?

The English map of the tram network of Thessaloniki of 1912 adds an interesting element which needs to be further investigated (figs. 41 and 41a). Right next to the Old Customs Office (9), on Naumachia Lemnos Str., there was an Austrian Lloyd building with warehouses (18) (fig. 18). On the other side of the plot, on Hapsa Str., a horse-drawn tram line appeared to be passing, which had already been dismantled in 1908 because it had not been included in the electric tram lines, apparently because its geometric features were not compatible. The green line of the tram provided the possibility of direct communication of the coastal centre, the Market and the port with the Railway Station.

Multi-page German-language railway maps from the 1898 to 1900 period in the D. Karandaidis collection¹¹⁷ and an Austrian city map of 1891 provide valuable details for the identification of this site. During the period 1873 to 1900, the maps gradually depict in most cases the topography of the railway installations and the rapid evolution of the port area, without giving any details of the urban fabric of the city centre. In the 1900 map, which shows the topography of the quay with the construction of the port in full swing, the warehouse building of the Austrian Lloyd is clearly depicted (18). The building was located next to the Old Customs of Thessaloniki and until 1899 exactly on the sea front in the vanished part of today's A. Kountourioti Str.

The validation of location (18) as both the plot of land owned by the Austrian Lloyd, as well as on the map of Joseph Lehnert (fig. 42)¹¹⁸ sets out the beginning of its existence on the sea front for the time period of our search.

Could this be the location of the branch after November 1899? Ph. 6 (fig. 33) does not appear to match the view of the L-shaped Austrian Lloyd building as depicted at location (18) towards the side of Naumachia Lemnos Str., opposite the Old Customs (9) (figs. 43 and 44), while the building did not touch Hapsa Str., as our initial estimate was. Attempts to identify it at an alternative location of the city, on a tram line, also failed. In the end, at this stage of the investigation, it was not possible to pinpoint its exact location.

With regard to the further development of the Austrian branch at the port, the Journal de Salonique in its issue of 17th June 1909 informs us of yet another transfer of its premises:

The Austrian Post has just moved its branch at the port of Thessaloniki, next to the offices of the agency of Mr. Isaac Jacob Molho.¹²¹ This branch, which is very well organised, will remain open from 9 a.m. till noon and from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the evening and will receive mail for all departing steamships.

We may conclude that the Austrian branch was to be found in three different locations during its operation. We believe that for the period 1895–1899 it was originally located at position (x) on Venizelou Str. in the Market of Thessaloniki. After November 1899 it moved to a building on the waterfront, changing its location nearby for a second time, until its closure. The “SALONICH II” hand-stamp was used by this branch.

We believe that the scenarios for the transfer of postmarks no. 5 and no. 6 in June and July 1895 – from the central post office in the Frankish Quarter to the branch – cannot be confirmed even by the careful tracking of the addresses of senders of the letters. The cover of fig. 46 bears the hand-stamp no. 6 (the year having been repaired) dated 14th July 1895, the earliest known date of use of this postmark, and is sent by the “Ottoman Tram and Electric Lighting Company of Thessaloniki,” whose facilities were located at both ends of the city, near Bestsinar Gardens (22)¹²² and opposite the White Tower (21).

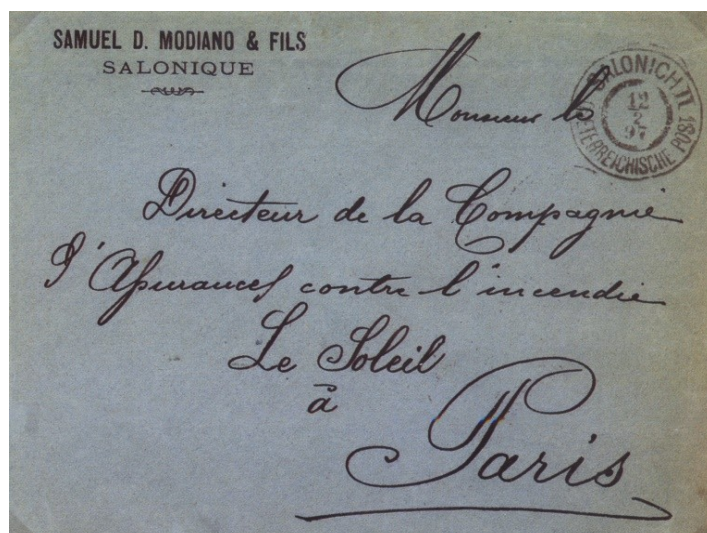

Figs. 46 and 46a: Cover bearing postmark no. 6 dated 14.07.1895, arrived in Munich on 17.07.1895.

It is striking that whilst the year part has been repaired, the same has not happened with the worn part of the month, which is not readable in any of the three July 1895 postal items found so far. Let us claim, as a working assumption, that the tram company's cover, because of the use of the tram, was deposited at the branch. On the other hand, Hans Seefelder, the sender of the well-known cover bearing the postmark no. 5 dated 9th July 1895 (fig. 47), had his offices in Hani Allatini, opposite the central post office in the Frankish Quarter.¹²³ The question therefore remains why the cover was submitted to the branch, at that time on Venizelou Str. As for the cover with the postmark “SALONICH II” of 12th February 1897, sent by Samuel Daniel Modiano (fig. 48), who had a furniture showroom on Venizelou Str. (Sampri Pasha), it is fair to assume that it was sent through the branch on Venizelou Str.

Consular Offices

Concluding the description of the operation of the Austrian post office, let us return to the fact of the establishment of consular post offices along the railway lines. In the early 1900s, an attempt was made by the Ottoman Empire to limit the scope of influence of foreign post offices in favour of the Ottoman Post. On 15th May 1901, the following amazing event took place in Thessaloniki.¹²⁵

Officials from the Ottoman Post Office confiscated all foreign mail bags for no apparent reason, with their contents being handed over to Ottoman Post Office employees. This show of strength ended in chaos, as there were not enough trained staff fluent in foreign languages, so the employees could not read the recipients' addresses. As a result, they returned the letters back to the mailboxes of the foreign post offices!

As expected, Austria's demands for opening new post offices along the railway lines met with the Ottoman government's reluctance to approve them, due to the bad diplomatic relations at the time. In order to overcome these obstacles, the Austrian Consul General August von Kral, in a report to the Austrian Ambassador to Constantinople Heinrich Freiherr von Calice on 5th March 1903, proposed the forwarding of correspondence between the consulates of Bitola and Thessaloniki via consular employees.¹²⁶ According to his proposal, "all the recipients of Bitola will be included in this forwarding service by the Austrian Post Office of Thessaloniki". He also suggested that this postal handling (the word used in German was "Postmanipulation") should be done first by the consulate staff, which would later be aided by properly trained employees on postal operations.

In this way, the Austrians succeeded in creating four new consular post offices in the cities of the Bitola and Kosovo vilayets, as some kind of ‘branches’ of the central post office of Thessaloniki. In fact, the consular post offices functioned as regular post offices, accepting registered mail as well. According to Patera’s article, the opening of the offices in Bitola and Skopje took place in 1904, while the offices of Prizren and Mitrovica opened in 1906.¹²⁷ The offices belonged to their respective Austrian consulates,¹²⁸ operated under their supervision, and their hand-stamps read as follows:

Postmark	City	Vilayet
SALONICH M	Monastir / Μοναστήρι / Bitola / مناستر	Bitola
SALONICH MI	Mitrovitza / Μιτρόβιτσα / مترويتچه	Kosovo
SALONICH P	Prizren / Πρίζρεν / پرزرين	Kosovo
SALONICH Ü	Üsküb / Σκόπια / Skopje / اسكوب	Kosovo

In the aftermath of the partition of the Ottoman Empire after the Balkan Wars, the Austrian consulate post offices in Serbia ceased to function in 1913.¹²⁹

However, the dynamics and reliability of the Austrian Post Office, in relation to the mainly domestically-oriented service of the Ottoman Post Office, seem to have allowed the postal forwarding of the incoming correspondence from abroad, via the Thessaloniki post offices towards the Balkan territories, even before the existence of the consular post offices. In order to notify the recipients to appoint an authorised representative to collect their correspondence from the Thessaloniki post offices, the Austrian postal workers used the services of the Ottoman Post Office. Two typical cases are described below.

The first Ottoman postal card (fig. 51) was sent via Ottoman Post from Thessaloniki on 25th March 1892 to Bitola. The recipient could not be located and after the manuscript marks “Retour” and “Salonique” were added; it was returned from Bitola on 17th May to Thessaloniki bearing the hard-to-find Ottoman arrival postmark “SALONIQUE ARRIVÉE” no. 9 of 19th May. The imprint of the NG 176/16 postmark is in the form of no. 7, while in the works of Coles & Walker¹³⁰ it is depicted as in no. 8. The two drawings either do not coincide at all or do so only partially with the postmark of the postal card (note the peculiarity of the inverted centre of no. 8). Andreas Birken’s catalogue¹³¹ also depicts the NG postmark. In my relevant communication with Alexandre Galinos, it was pointed out that the design of the postmark comes from the late scholar Prodromos Mellon.¹³² Therefore, we are led to the conclusion that this particular postmark is presented here for the first time in its complete form and dimensions. Unfortunately, the death of A. Birken did not allow the postmark to be included to the continually updated version of his work.

The Italian manuscript text of the postal card reads in English as follows:

127 Rasic, 1979, states the following opening dates: Bitola 10.04.1904, Skopje 11.04.1904, Prizren 11.01.1906, Mitrovitza 12.01.1906.

Figs. 51 and 51a: Ottoman postal card from the Austrian office of Thessaloniki to Bitola.

The second Ottoman postal card (fig. 52) was sent on 26th March 1896 to the Orthodox Bishop in Poliani (see map in fig. 3).¹³⁴ It bears no trace of any Ottoman hand-stamp, just the Austrian postmark no. 4 “SALONICH II / OSETERREICHISCHE POST”, serving as sender’s address in the lower left corner of the reverse. Apparently it was forwarded by a postal agent, while the translation of the French text reads:

Following this notice, please provide an authorised power of attorney to deliver to you the parcel received by post from Vienna. The Austrian Post Office

It is therefore understood that the Austrian post office in Thessaloniki operated as a forwarder, as early as the end of the 19th century, for parcels and insured items coming from abroad to the Balkan hinterland, even offering a sort of postal service by sending foreign language arrival notices using the Ottoman Post.

The Final Years: The Closure of the Austrian Post Office The Opening of the Greek Branch Post Office in the Frankish Quarter

On 10th August 1912, the central post office was destroyed by an explosive device: an “infernal machine”¹³⁵ was placed inside the building by Bulgarian members of the liberation movement fighting against Ottoman rule.¹³⁶ This incident, naturally, attracted the interest of the worldwide press at the time. The caption of ph. 2, which depicts the interior Postal Office Area, mentions that:

The Vienna Post Museum applied to the post office Director of Thessaloniki, Michael Ritter von Vucetich-Bieliz for photos of the destroyed offices, asking for a “brief but accurate description, of the whole incident”. The demand sent on 22nd August arrived in Thessaloniki on the 2nd September and landed on the desk of the post office’s Director three days later. In his reply, he apologised for not being able to send these photos promptly, due to the fact that the local photographer “cannot deliver them at the moment, because of their extremely high demand”.

Fortunately enough, four photographs¹³⁷ depicting in great detail the enormous damage of the explosion in the inside area and outside of the building, could be found in various newspapers of Austria and France.

Furthermore the illustrated journal Wiener Bilder in its issue of 18th August 1912 provides a photograph (fig. 5)¹³⁸ which for the very first time specifically mentions all the postal officers’ names.

A telegram of the Director Vucetich dated 13th August 1912 gives a first vivid report of the bombing incident details:¹⁴³

The post officers' Brazzafolli and Sullam¹⁴⁴ injuries are rather minor, both of them are safe and sound. Almost everyone who was present at the explosion is still hard of hearing.

The explosion was caused by an infernal machine well hidden under a bench in the Public Access Area, causing a huge devastation. The ceiling, walls and floors have been completely damaged. On the ceiling you can see an ink stain from the inkpot thrown into the air. The one-cm thick window panes were shattered, the furniture had been badly damaged, the iron roller shutters have been bent by the air pressure, all the lights went out, the office was wrapped by a huge dust cloud, the letters were thrown all over the floor, mixed up with broken pieces and

Thanks to the exemplary care of the entire postal staff, the distribution of the arrived mail, was still carried out during the same night. There was no disruption to the postal service operations. The office is guarded now by Ottoman military.

An extensive follow-up description two days later by Post-Asisstent Kamillo Lotz¹⁴⁶, gives further details:

[...] The correspondence had arrived at 9 o'clock, the mail pouches had just been opened and their contents emptied. I was busy working out the registered delivery receipts (Rekomandationscheine) when suddenly a terrible detonation occurred. [...] It was exactly half past ten, as we could later see from the clocks that had stopped as an explosion result. A few anxious seconds followed. I sat motionless in my seat, fearing that any movement would worsen my situation.

When I realized that no further explosions or the collapse of the ceiling were to be expected, I got up and crawled my way back into the office, shouting out to my colleagues: "Hello! Are you all alive?" Everything remained still, I couldn't hear anything. My own voice sounded very strange to me, echoing from a long distance, probably because I was still half deaf. I took some further steps forward and then, to my great joy, I saw the Director and my colleagues. [...]

But how messy the office looked like! It had suddenly turned into ruins. All the panes were splintered, the switch cladding smashed, the tables overturned, smashed and thrown into the middle of the room, and in this chaos of splintered wood, bricks, glass, rubble and dust, the letters and printed matters lay in a severe mess all over scattered in the room.

¹⁴⁶ Neues Wiener Tagblatt (newspaper), 15.08.1912.

Meanwhile the police and the military had rushed up and in a quarter of an hour all the surrounding streets were occupied by military on foot and on horseback. [...]

The off-duty colleagues had rushed over, without being informed, because the detonation had been heard throughout the city and news of the attack in the Austrian Post had spread like wildfire. Our next concern was to verify whether none of the recommended letters had been lost. Missing letters were pulled out from the one or the other corner, and when we finally finished at 2 o'clock in the morning and I had confirmed my balance sheet, I was happy to report: "Mr. Director, the recommended letters are matching!" The city residents were astonished, when they came to our post office on Sunday morning to inspect the destruction and at the same time they were able to receive their mail as usually...

As a result of the force of the explosion, pieces of the walls were completely broken through and the bricks were literally crushed [...] The explosion tore a hole more than a meter in size in the floor [...] The blast was so powerful that the splinters of the external five mirror glass windows were hurled to the opposite building!

Later on, at the end of September 1912,¹⁴⁷ the Austrian Kaiser awarded Director Michael Ritter von Vucetich-Bielitz the Knight's Cross of the Franz Josef Order and the Golden Cross of Merit to Post-Assistent Kamillo Lotz, in appreciation of their deserving achievements on the incident of the bombing at the Austrian Post Office in Thessaloniki.

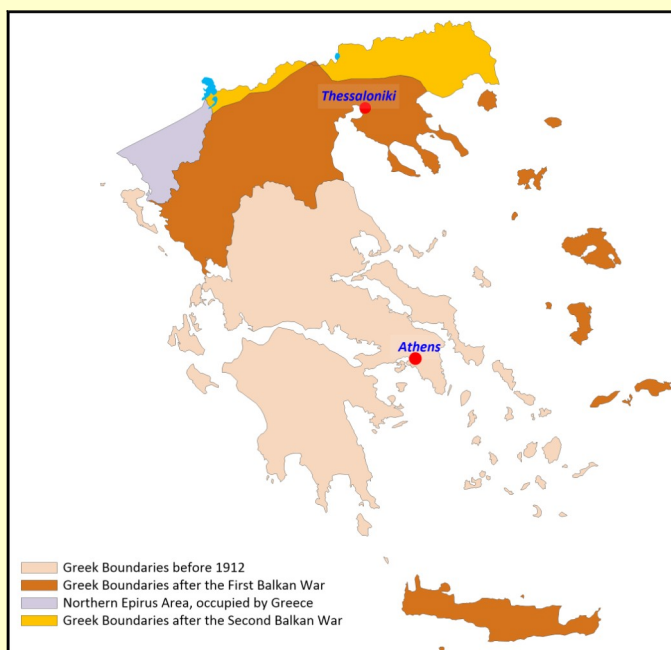

The Balkan Wars 1912/1913

The Balkan Wars consisted of two conflicts that took place in the Balkans between 1912 and 1913. Greece, Bulgaria, Montenegro and Serbia had gained independence from the Ottoman Empire, but large sections of their national populations still remained under in the Ottoman rule. These states created a network of military alliances, which became known as the Balkan League.

The First Balkan War began when the League members invaded the Ottoman Empire on 8.10.1912 and ended eight months later with the signing of the Treaty of London on 30.05.1913.

On 26.10.1912, the Greek Army accepted the surrender of the Ottoman garrison at Thessaloniki. The city thus became part of the Greek state, as larger parts of the former Ottoman vilayets of Selanik and Monastir¹⁴⁸. For the territorial changes to the Greek Boundaries see map in fig 61 (to the right). Thus the Greek state transformed from a rural and mono-ethnic country instantly to a multinational one.

In the Second Balkan War, Bulgaria fought against all four original combatants of the First Balkan War, along with facing a surprise attack from Romania from the north. In the resulting Treaty of Bucharest on 10.08.1913, finally set the new boundaries for all involved states.

Both conflicts had a catastrophic impact for the Ottoman Empire, which lost the most of its territory in Europe. These wars were to become 'preludes' to the First World War.

¹⁴⁷ Neues Wiener Tagblatt (newspaper), 28.09.1912.

¹⁴⁸ Northern Epirus, which was under the control of the Greek army after the First Balkan War, was awarded finally to the newly found Albanian state.

The end of the Balkan Wars caused serious concern in the management of the Austrian Post Office, regarding the apparent end of the operation of its post offices in the Levant. In October 1913, the decision was made to transfer the director, Michael Ritter von Vucetich-Bielitz,¹⁴⁹ to the Smyrna post office, provided that it would not cause any problems to the operation of the Thessaloniki post office.¹⁵⁰ It seems that 4½ months after that decision, the director of the consular post office of Constantinople, Dr. Heinrich Ritter von Kamler, did not know when the post office of Thessaloniki would cease operations. In a report dated 15th March 1914, von Kamler informed the Austrian Ministry of Commerce that the owner of the property in which the Thessaloniki branch was housed, Isaac Jacob Molho, had requested an increase in the annual rent from 900 to 1,700 francs, starting June 1914. Although von Kamler said the increase may have seemed quite significant, he nonetheless suggested to the postal administration that it should be accepted, so that the branch should continue to work. To justify his suggestion, he wrote:

The reason for this unexpected increase in the rent is that all the spaces, such as that of our post office, that have direct access to the port, are desirable by shipping agencies or by people who are interested in acquiring offices with direct proximity to it. The closer the rental spaces are to the entrance of the port, the more coveted they are and their owners are constantly flooded with higher offers. Because the rent for this area of the branch is 900 francs, the increase at first glance may be considered significant, but under the current conditions prevailing in Thessaloniki, I do not think it is particularly large.

*As for an unexpected closure of the branch at the end of May 1914, it is not considered appropriate on our part, because such an action would create a very bad impression on the market of Thessaloniki and given the circumstances it would be considered that there was a voluntary concession of the Austrian Post Office to the Greek government, which would also have a negative impact on our reputation in the wider Orient.*¹⁵¹

Kamler cited four reasons for preventing the branch from seeking accommodation elsewhere:

1. It is almost impossible to find a place with lower rent in another nearby place.
2. If by chance a space is found, which is probably cheaper by about 100-200 francs, additional expenses should be taken into account of about 100 francs for lighting, because the owner of the current premises provides the light exceptionally at a minimum cost of 20 francs.
3. In any case, the cost of rearranging the space should be taken into account.
4. It is not ruled out that the Greek authorities will cause difficulties in the relocation of the Thessaloniki branch, which can only be resolved through diplomatic channels.

The Thessaloniki offices closed permanently on 15th December 1914,¹⁵² as part of an agreement, following negotiations between the management of the Austrian Post Office and the Greek side. In the German-Austrian press,¹⁵³ however, the closing date is reported as 20th December 1914, which is probably the last working day. The text of the agreement states (among other topics):¹⁵⁴

[...] since the Austrian Government has rented the post office in Thessaloniki until the end of December, the rent being 15,360 francs, the Directorate of the Hellenic Post undertakes the obligation to pay 8,000 francs to the Austrian government, as part of the rent corresponding to the use of the post office from 14 December 1914 until the end of December 1915 [...]

[...] In case the Directorate of the Hellenic Post wished to increase the number of its lower staff in the Thessaloniki post office, it might prefer to select from the Austrian employees wishing to enter the Hellenic Service [...]

In fact, in the Law 398/1914¹⁵⁶ there was a provision that employees of foreign posts and telegraphs of the “New Territories” with foreign citizenship could be incorporated in the Greek service, as long as they acquired Greek citizenship.

The Greek post office branch of Thessaloniki in the Frankish Quarter originally coexisted with the Austrian branch and until the first days of December 1914 it seems to have used a common Thessaloniki postmark, without any mention of location, with only the distinctive three-line shape (no. 10) with the words “ΘΕΣΣΑΛΟΝΙΚΗ / ΠΑΡΑ ΤΗ ΕΥΡΩΠΑΪΚΗ ΣΥΝΟΙΚΙΑ / ΠΑΡΑΡΤΗΜΑ Ι” (Thessaloniki, by the European Quarters, Branch I). It later used the postmark no. 11 “ΘΕΣΣΑΛΟΝΙΚΗ / ΠΑΡΑΡΤΗΜΑ / ΕΥΡΩΠΑΪΚΗ / ΣΥΝΟΙΚΙΑ” (Thessaloniki branch – European Quarters), as reflected on the registered cover of fig. 63, while it seems to have been housed at some point after the withdrawal of the Austrians, in the exact same building.¹⁵⁷

The National Schism 1915–1917

The National Schism period (1915–1917) emerged at the beginning of World War I, divided geographically the country into two rival factions and refers to a series of disagreements between King Constantine I and Prime Minister Eleftherios Venizelos, regarding whether Greece should enter the war.

Venizelos wanted an alliance between Greece and the Triple Entente Allied forces,¹⁵⁸ while King Constantine, married with Sophia, the sister of the German Kaiser Wilhelm II, and convinced that the Central Powers Alliance¹⁵⁹ would win the war, kept the position that Greece should remain neutral. The lack of consensus between the two men led finally to the resignation of Venizelos' Government in February 1915.

However, Venizelos again won the elections of May 1915. With his consent the Allied forces landed in Thessaloniki establishing the Macedonian front, in order to help Serbia against the attack of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria. The King refused to accept his decisions and Venizelos was forced to resign for a second time.

Meanwhile the German and Bulgarian armies took control of eastern Macedonia in May 1916 without any opposition, duly approved by the Greek Government. On 29.08.1916, Kavala was occupied, and 7,000 soldiers of the Greek IV Corps, were transferred and interned in the German city of Görlitz, leading to the second Bulgarian Occupation of Eastern Macedonia.

On 30.08.1916 a coup against the Greek government broke out in Thessaloniki by the pro-Venizelist “National Defense” military organisation and backed up by the Allied forces. Venizelos returned once again to power, establishing the “Provisional Government,” as the head of a triumvirate on 9.10.1916.

The Provisional Government controlled parts of Macedonia, Crete, Samos, Mytilene, Chios and almost all of the Aegean islands, except for the Cyclades (see map in fig. 62 below). Venizelos immediately declared 157 The newspaper Μακεδονία on 19.11.1916, in an advertisement, states that in the corner of Frangon and Passage Oriental there used to be the “former Austrian post office”, while in the same newspaper on 8.10.1917 and in another advertisement is mentioned that a post office exists on the same location, i.e. on Frangon Str. no. 10.

158 Triple Entente refers to the Alliance between the Russian Empire, the French Third Republic and Great Britain. Italy also preferred to side with Entente forces after the Treaty of London (1915).

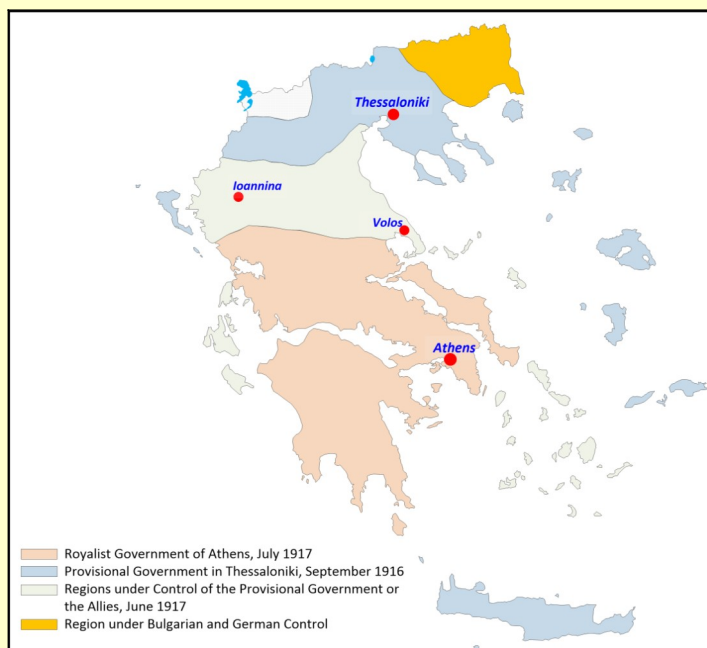

159 The Central Powers, was a coalition consisted of Germany, Austria-Hungary, the Ottoman Empire and Bulgaria.

war against the Central Powers, while the Royalist government of Athens continued to remain neutral.

With the argument of a military intervention to stop the advance of the Bulgarian and Austrian armies in Albania, Italian military forces entered Greek territory at the beginning of 1917 and advanced as far as Ioannina. Meanwhile French troops occupied Thessaly in June 1917, advancing as far as Volos.

In an attempt by the French and the Provisional Government to exert further pressure on the Royalists, French warships besieged Piraeus in November 1916 and landed 3,000 men. The bloody incidents that followed, known as "November Events," were ignited by the armed confrontation between the Greek military and French marines.

After threats to bombard Athens if the King remained, Constantine left Greece on 14.06.1917 and was succeeded by his second son Alexander. Venizelos took control of the government and pledged Greek support to the Entente. In July 1917 Greece officially declared war on the Central Powers.

However, M. Mylonakis¹⁶¹ cites a contradictory piece of information, in that the Provisional Government of Thessaloniki issued a decree in November 1916, for the establishment of the post office branch on Frangon Str.,¹⁶² along with one further branch by the White Tower. This does not convince us, given the omissions of the post office listings, the misspellings in their names, and a sloppiness in the editing of the earlier decree no. 499 on postal matters.¹⁶³

Conclusions

The presentation of the six photos published here for the first time clearly depicting the two Austrian post offices of Thessaloniki, as well as the whole attempt to identify, based on analytical data, their position on the listed maps, leads to the following conclusions which undermine what was previously believed:

1. The central Austrian post office in Thessaloniki had already the status of an official supervised post office of the Austro-Hungarian Empire since 1876. It had been located historically in the Frankish Quarter district, at least since the 1880s and it used the postmarks "SALONICH I". From 1900 up to 1914 it was located in the building at the corner of Frangon and V. Hugo streets.
2. Based on the results of our research, we demonstrate that the Austrian branch operated initially from 1895 to November 1899 on Venizelou Str. in the Market of Thessaloniki, before its first relocation to the waterfront in November 1899 and its second relocation to another building on the waterfront in 1909. The branch used the distinctive “SALONICH II” postmarks.

¹⁶³ Indicatively, Art. 11 of Decree 499 includes a third-class postal telegraph office in Panama, which obviously refers to Panagia, Thassos. Cf. ΦΕΠΚ, no. 35, 13.11.1916, p. 105.

The Turkish Post in Bulgaria: New Discoveries

by Dr. Georgi Popov

Copyright © 2020

Recently, some Turkish postmarks, previously not known in literature, have been found on covers and deserve to be presented and commented on. These are in addition to the first part of my handbook on Bulgarian philately and postal history,¹ where Turkish post is dealt with within the borders of today's Bulgaria (in the separate section "Turkish Post" and in the section "Crimean War," in which Turkish military post is also treated).

Since the Russian-Turkish war in 1828, when the Russian troops were facing Constantinople, the Turks had been building the so-called "square of fortresses" Ruschuk–Shumen–Varna–Silistra.² The main goal was to defend the entrances to Constantinople. This military measure later played a role during the Crimean War as well as in the Russian-Turkish War of 1877/1878. Shumen had an outstanding role among the four fortresses, as the high command of the Turkish army was temporarily stationed there during both of these wars. It is all the more surprising that a military cancel from Shumen was found on a letter after around 150 years. This letter comes from the Gunter Baurecht Collection, Spittal, Austria (fig. 1).

Fig. 1: As described in the certificate by Yakup Nakri, the letter bears a cancel with the inscription "ordu-yu himayun müfettesligi" (Imperial Army Inspectorate) and is addressed to the governor of Silistra.

1 Popov, 2019.

2 Nedev, 1967.

The round blue postmark is that of Shumen: “Şumnu 81”.³ The blue rectangular one is the well-known cancel for official mail: “tahrirat-i mühimme” (= important official document).⁴ The letter was carried by the state post office and therefore bears the postmark of that office. Normally, the tax on official letters was paid by bill, as the expenditures of the post office were supposed to be compensated internally, although this probably happened only in the rarest of cases. Rather, the transport by post was mostly free of charge for the aforementioned official letters. The letter can be dated from 1865, since the cancel Schum-5 was introduced in that year.

The number “٦٥٥٠” (6550) is attached above the cancel, which represents an archive number. The archiving is a logical consequence of the military importance of the letter stated on the cover. This fact explains why military letters (from or to military authorities) are so extremely rare compared to ‘normal’ official or civil correspondence. The postmark is to be regarded as postal in so far as it legitimises the transport by post.

In connection with the taxation of official letters, a military letter from Shumen to Constantinople (from the collection Dr. Rhein) is shown in fig. 2. Like most other well-known letters of this type, it was weighed, registered on the accompanying slip, and the fee for the state post office is shown according to the distance.

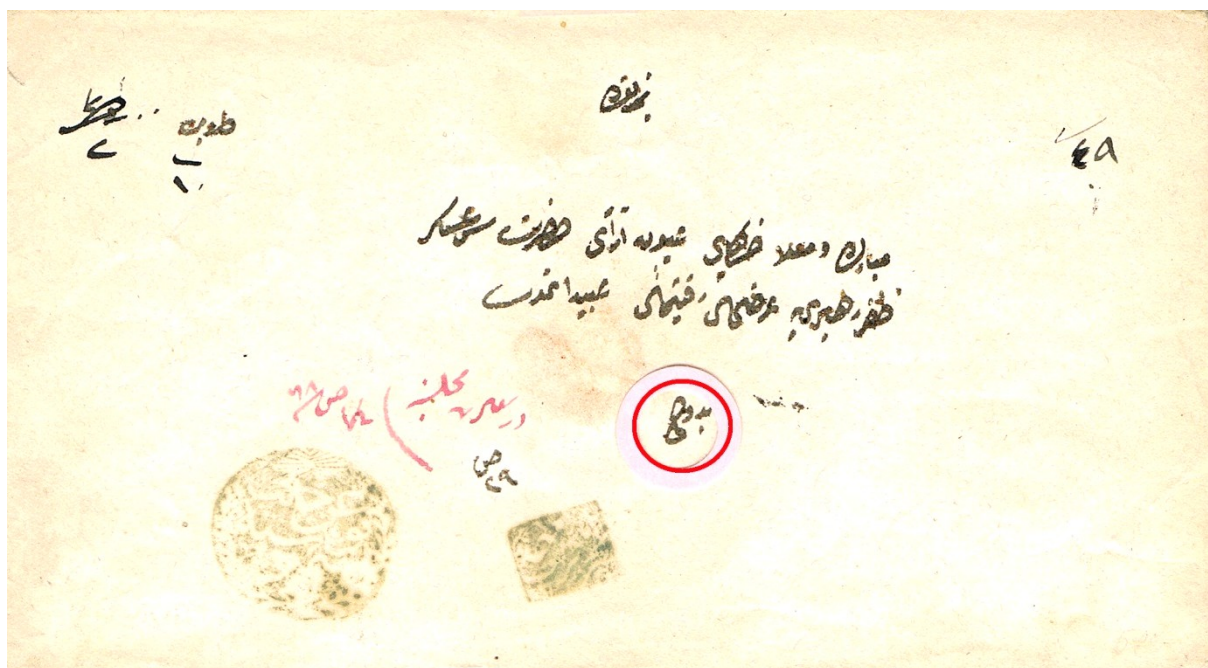

Fig. 2: Official letter from Shumen to Constantinople.

As mentioned above, Shumen was the headquarters of the Turkish Armed Forces under General Omar Pasha during the Crimean War until May/June 1854. The letter is addressed to “sarasker-i zafer” (the victorious Minister of War) in Deraliye (İstanbul). The writing in red is the receipt from the Ministry of War.

The letter also bears a Turkish talisman symbol “بدوح” (bduḥ) in Arabic letters, a magic formula with which the content of the letter is to be protected from bad influences (centre of the letter, marked in the red circle). The number 49 on the top right is the consecutive number on the mailing slip, on the upper left 3 dirham for the weight, and below the fee of 2 ghurush 10 para = 90 para. This corresponds to the distance Shumen–Constantinople of 90 riding hours. The large negative postmark from Shumen with the inscription “an canib-i posta-i Şumnu 260” was in use since 1844, and there is a small square cancel: “tahrirat-i mühimme”.

It is an unpaid official letter subject to postage. The fees charged were to be paid by the recipient to the treasury, which certainly never happened.

All Turkish military letters known to the author so far have features that prove or suggest transportation by the state post office. In complete contrast to this, there is a letter from Günter Baurecht’s collection that has no characteristics of transportation by the state post office (fig. 3).

Fig. 3: Cover with a negative seal and the inscription “silistre komandagli 1294” (High Command of Silistra 1877), addressed to the governor of Silistra, i.e. transported locally. The letter bears the archive number “١٠٩٥” (1095) above the postmark.

Two things are remarkable about this letter, apart from its rarity, which is emphasised in Yakup Nakri’s certificate:

1. There are no postal references, which can only mean that the letter was transported by a courier. Thus, this is a case of ‘real’ field post, although so far there is no documentary evidence of the existence of such.
2. The late date of introduction of the postmark 1877. As is well known, the Russo-Turkish war began with the crossing the Danube Delta on 10th/22nd June 1877 under General Zimmermann, or with the crossing of the Danube at Simnizea (Svishtov) on 15th/27th June under General Dragomirov, with the creation of a “platzdarm”⁵ and the construction of a pontoon bridge under the command of General Alexander Dep. This is the first ‘real’ military postmark from Silistra, while the author had already reported on all previously known Silistra postmarks.⁶

⁵ Military drill area (from French place d’armes).

⁶ Popov, 2016.

The issue of this postmark in 1877, immediately before the fighting on the Danube began in June 1877, testifies to a certain hurry in preparing for the upcoming events.

Even considering reasons of secrecy for the transportation of military letters by special couriers, the transportation of other private mail violates the monopoly of the state and occurs very rarely. Such a letter, also from the collection of Günter Baurecht (fig. 4), is discussed below. It is a local letter from Vidin sealed on the back with a negative postmark and inscription, according to the certificate by Yakup Nakri, “vidin müdüriyet rusumat 1276” (tax directorate Vidin 1859), addressed to the governor of Vidin.

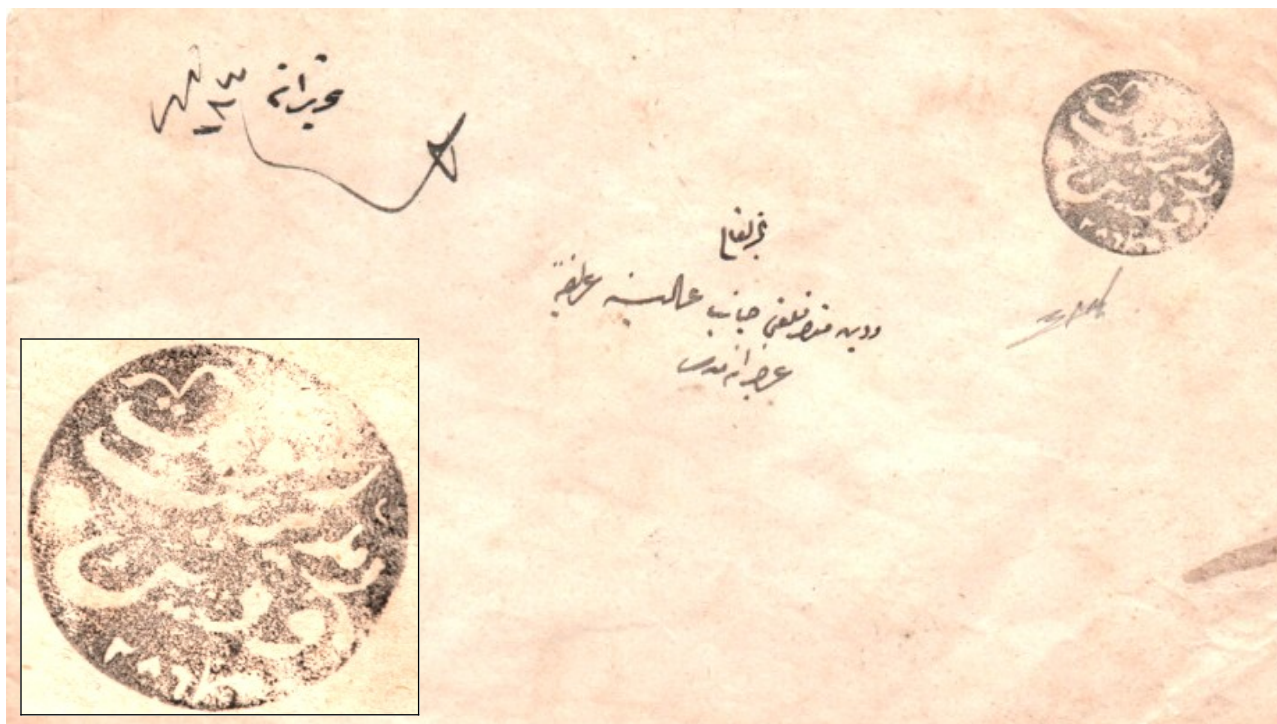

Fig. 4: Local letter from Vidin: “vidin müdüriyet rusumat 1276”.

This local official letter, which is rare according to the certificate, also shows no evidence of state postal transport (weight and tax details as well as number in a transport list are missing). The number “١٨٤” (184) in the top left is an internal registration number, and not postal.

The Turkish post used distance tables for the postal handling of shipments. Unfortunately, according to the author’s knowledge, only two official Turkish tables from the years 1863 and 1868 have survived. These are contained in the Popov handbook, as quoted from Esmer.⁷ They show the distances of Bulgarian towns from Constantinople in riding hours. They can be used to verify the correctness of the taxation on letters: directly, if a letter is sent to Constantinople, or indirectly, by subtraction, if there are two places on the same route to Constantinople. However, these requirements are not always met and it is helpful to use other works to determine the distance.

Such a publication was discovered by the author, following a hint by Georgiev,⁸ at the Bulgarian State Library Sofia some time ago: it was written by Hristaki Pavlovich Dupnitshanin in 1835.⁹ It is more advantageous than the known tables from Esmer, because distances between locations that are not on a route to Constantinople or on alternative routes can also be determined. In addition, all place names in Bulgarian language are listed in the spelling of that time.

7 Esmer, 1995/1996.

8 Georgiev, 1983.

9 Dupnitshanin, 1835.

At this point it would be going too far to publish the entire list of places (this can only be the task of a separate publication), but its usefulness can again be demonstrated by a letter from the Gunter Baurecht collection. Fig. 5 shows a complete folded letter from Edirne (Odrin) to Filibe (Plovdiv).

These two places are located on the route Nish–Sofia–Filibe–Edirne–Constantinople, so a comparison of the real transported letter with different sources is possible. The text of the letter is in Greek. Its chronology is easily identified, since all important information is included: 29th October 1857 (sender), answered 6th November 1857. The letter is carried by state post and has a cancel of departure from Edirne, is taxed for 3 dirham weight with 30 para (= riding hours), list entry no. 91.

How do these 30 riding hours add up? For this purpose, the section “Filibe–Edirne”, which is part of the route “from Nish to Edirne via Sofia and Filibe”, is considered in Dupnitshanin’s “Almanac.” Here, one has to bear in mind that this information refers to carriage rides, which do not necessarily have to be identical in every detail to the riding hour of a post Tatar. However, the correspondence is still excellent: 31 hours according to Dupnitshanin, 30 hours counted on the letter.

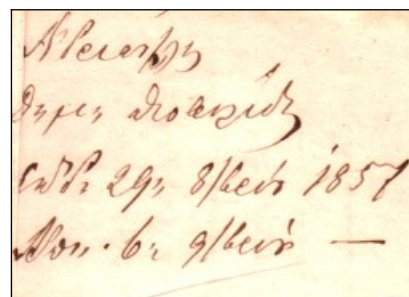

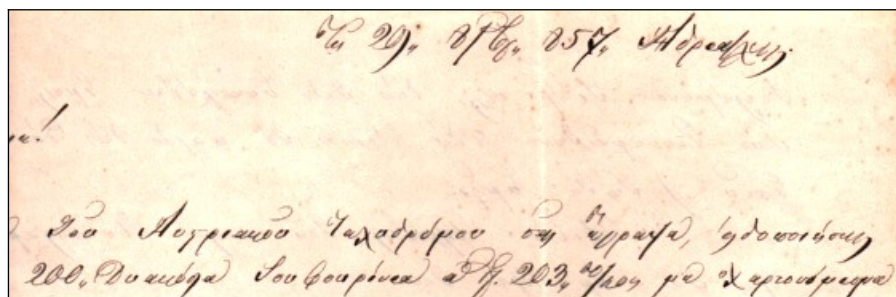

Departure at Filibe, Filibe – Kuram – Bashi (3) – Donanza (1) – Papazli (2) – Allapa Tshekmelek (1) – Eni Mahale (2) – Kosha Ali (1) – Kuru Tsheshme (1) – Deher Mahale (1) – Sujak (1) – Semizitza (2) – Uzunschova (1½) – Kotshendil (1½) – Harmanli (1) – Ami Sharli – Kiogiu (1½) – Hebibtshe (1½) – Mustafa Pasha (3) – Pasha Kiogiu (2) – Edirne (4): arrival in Edirne after 31 hours.

From the complete table from 1863,¹⁰ subtracting the distance Constantinople–Edirne (44 hours) from the distance Constantinople–Filibe (78 hours) results in a distance Edirne–Filibe of 34 hours.

Fig. 5:

¹⁰ Esmer, 1995/1996.

But there are also other cases where Dupnitshanin's "Almanac"¹¹ provides valuable services in interpreting taxations and distances on Turkish letters. An example of this is shown in fig. 6, a complete folded letter from Svishtov 1859 to Constantinople, addressed to Mr. T.D. Brakalov in Tsarigrad (Constantinople), from the Gunter Baurecht collection, text in Bulgarian.

Fig. 6: Letter from Svishtov to Constantinople.

As the text shows, it was written on 26th January 1859, arrived on 1st February and was answered on 2nd February. The letter is entered in the mailing slip under No. 90, the weight is 3 dirhams and the tax is fixed at 2 ghurush and 20 para = 100 para = 100 riding hours. According to Georgiev, the station in Svishtov was opened in 1865, which cannot be true because a postmark from Svishtov is known from 1862 and Esmer's distance table already contains the distance Constantinople–Svishtov with 119 hours. It is not yet clear when mail from/to Svishtov was actually posted, but at the latest in 1857 (a letter from 1857 is known).

There is no known cancel Svishtov from 1859, at least none is known to the author. It is possible that the letter was posted only with the address of the recipient, and the remaining information was added at one of the next 'stations': the address in Turkish, the text "zistovi den" (= from Svishtov)

on the left above the address in Bulgarian, weight, tax, etc.. On arrival in Constantinople, the well-known rosette postmark was added: “üdshreti alinadshakdir 270” (= tax must be collected, 1854).¹²

Regarding the entered distance of 100 hours, there is an obvious problem with Erkan Esmer’s table with 119 hours. In Dupnitshanin we find two routes from Svishtov to Edirne: one via Gabrovo, Stara Zagora, and Mustafa Pasha with 59½ hours and one via Bebrovo, Sliven, and Jambol with 56½ hours. Taking into account the distance Edirne–Constantinople of 44 hours, there is a probability of transport on the second route and an excellent correspondence with the distance stated by Dupnitshanin.

“Via Quetta” – The Earliest Incoming Mail to Persia on the Baluchistan to Eastern Persia Land Route

by Björn Sohrne

The opening of the land route between Baluchistan (British India) and Eastern Persia on 1st January 1903 (see Indian P.O. Circular in fig. 3) is a very important part of the British political strategy of boasting the sales of British products into eastern Persia as well as for strategic military purposes to strengthen the British possibility to hold Russian advances in that part of the world in the famous battle between Britain and Russia, the so called “Great Game”.

The item shown below is the earliest known item incoming to Persia, i.e. on this new route going from Indian to Persia. The newly established exchange post office of Diwan Chah (Dewanchah, now Chah-e Divan, sometimes also referred to as Kūh-i-Malik Sīāh Ziaret) just inside the Persian side of the border, only a few miles west of the meeting point of the borders of India, Afghanistan and Persia at the mountain of Kūh-i-Malik Sīāh (see fig. 2).

Lorimer on the Land Connection from India to Persia “via Quetta”

This new connection is only briefly mentioned by Lorimer:²

In 1902 the status of Mr. Miller, the Russian representative in Sistan, was increased from that of Vice-Consul to that of Consul, and a corresponding change in the rank of the British representative followed. The Belgian Customs officials, probably in consequence of the ascendancy of Russian influence at Tehran, behaved as strong partisans of Russia and neglected no opportunity of showing hostility to British interests. Their persecution of trade arriving by the new British caravan route from Quetta was as unremitting as it was severe and in July 1902, the Persian postal administration in Sistan having been transferred to their management, they substituted a service organised by the Russian Consul for one which the British Consul had instituted in the previous year between Robat, Nasratabad, and Birjand, connecting with the Indian postal system at Robat: a protest at Tehran, however, secured the restoration of the service between Robat and Nasratabad to the former British employee.

Emergency Measures of the Ottoman Post during the First World War

by Jens Warnecke¹

The stamps of the Ottoman Empire had been printed by Dette Publique (Public Debt Administration) since 1892. Over the years, however, the quality of both the printing and of the paper used as well as the technical processes in the production (perforation) deteriorated. It was therefore decided to have the new series of stamps “Views of Constantinople” scheduled for 1st January 1914, printed by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co. in England.

Instead of postal stationery with the same motif as used before, the new postal cards, envelopes and card letters were now printed with a round seal-like imprint.

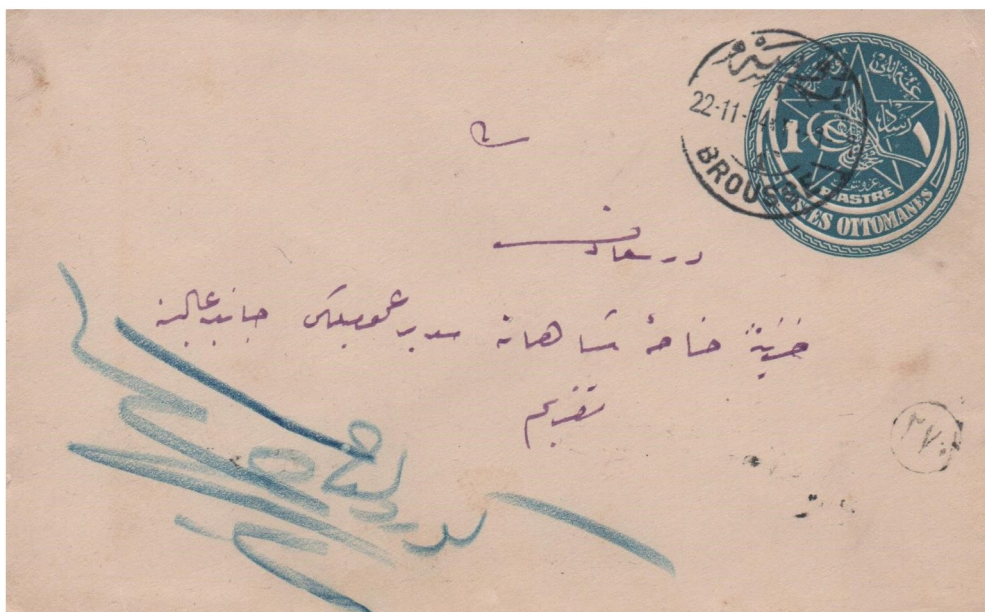

Fig. 3: Postal stationery (Birken no. 75) with round imprinted stamp, cancelled Brousse 22.11.14.

The first measure taken by the Ottoman Empire, like all other belligerent states, was the introduction of postal censorship right at the beginning of the war. The marking of the postal items was executed with with a rectangular cachet or, more rarely, with a cachet in the shape of a crescent with star.

Figs. 4–4b: Different types of censor marks.

With the outbreak of the First World War, however, the decision to have stamps printed in England led to problems: while the Ottoman Empire belonged to the Central Powers and was allied with Germany, Great Britain was on the side of France, Russia, and (from 1917) the USA. A logical consequence was that no more stamps were supplied to the enemy. Thus, from the middle of 1915 onwards, there were ever increasing shortages of stamps.

In this situation it was helpful, on the one hand, that in Islam portraits of persons were not allowed and therefore no such images were shown on stamps, instead stamps show the seal of the sultan ruling at the time. On the other hand, for this same reason, a new series of stamps always had to be issued when there was a change of ruler. The remaining unused stocks were stored in the Ottoman Post archives.

These stocks, which had long been demonetised, were now reactivated by imprinting stamps with a distinct overprint or a surcharge. The stamps were then made available for 're-use' from 30th September 1915.

The shortage affected not only stamps but also stationery like envelopes and postal cards. Furthermore, from 8th July 1915, an obligatory tax in favour of war widows and orphans was instituted: 10 paras for postcards and letters and 20 paras for registered mail had to be paid on all items. For this reason, stamps with two different overprints were produced.

Figs. 5–5a: Overprint types 1 and 2 (six-pointed star). Figs. 6–6a: Overprint types 3 and 4 (five-pointed star).²

As complaints were lodged with the Universal Postal Union against the obligatory tax being applied to international mail, this rule was withdrawn and instead the foreign postage was increased correspondingly. The obligatory tax remained in place for internal mail until 19th February 1919. Stamps from all seven postage stamp series issued since 1892 were imprinted with the Type 1 overprint.

The six-pointed star used in the overprint was criticised by the population as a Jewish or Christian symbol. Therefore, new overprints with a five-pointed star were used for widows and orphans stamps and postal stationery from February 1916 and for regular stamps from September 1916.

With regard to their necessity, for overprint type 3 the same applies as for overprint type 2.

Figs. 7–7f: One stamp from each of the overprinted series.

On envelopes, only the Type 1 overprint was applied, since the widows and orphans tax had to be added by an appropriate stamp. Initially, only the 20 paras value of the 1913 General Post Office series was overprinted. Any remaining stocks of other postal cards were apparently no longer available to be overprinted.

For the widows and orphans tax only the two values 10 paras and 20 paras were required. However, since telegrams were charged 1 piastre obligatory tax for every 5 piastres telegram fee, stamps with 1, 5, and 10 piastres were also imprinted with overprint type 2. In practice, however, the choice of the additional stamp used did not matter anyway. Moreover, after the end of the war, these obligatory tax stamps were approved for general use.

Figs. 12–12c: Stamps with the type 4 overprint.

The type 4 overprint was used to overprint stamps of the seven series from 1892 onwards and additionally the 5 paras special stamp for the reinstatement of the constitution in 1908, the special stamps for the reconquest of Adrianople in 1913 and the stamps for 50th anniversary of the Constantinople post office in 1916.

Nine different envelopes (some in several colour variants) were also imprinted with a type 4 overprint.

In order to remedy the shortage of postcards, the Ottoman Post had forms printed without a value imprint in 1915/16: used were various types of cardboard in white or greyish colour and a smaller format of 120×80 mm. The inscriptions were exclusively in Turkish, contrary to the internationally agreed standards.

After the war, a form measuring 135×90 mm appeared on chamois cardboard and with a brownish coating with the words “devlet-i osmaniye postaları” (negative). Both forms were in part printed on paper barely thicker than normal writing paper.

It was also permitted to use up old postal stationery, postal cards and (bisected) card letters, by affixing valid stamps (fig. 15–18).

Fig. 13: Envelope overprinted with type 4 (Birken no. 90).

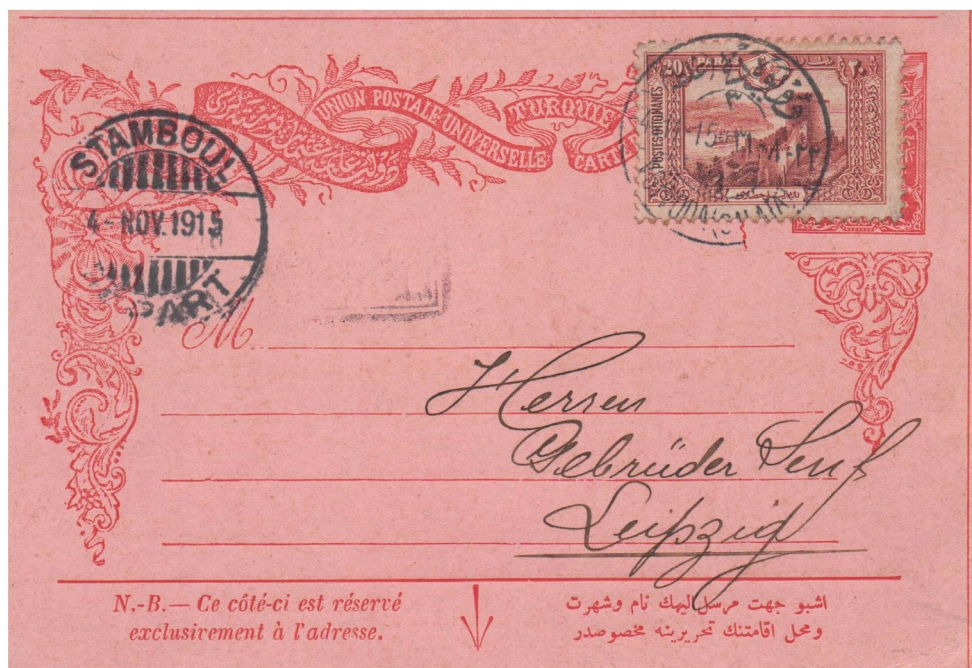

Fig. 16: Postal card (Birken no. 41) from 1905 affixed with a valid stamp, sent to the stamp dealers Senf Brothers in Leipzig, cancelled 4.11.15, without obligatory tax.

On 25th March 1917 stamps were issued with the new type of overprint, known as “Ox Head” or “Beetle”. As stocks of the stamps previously used for overprinting were running low, imprinting was carried out on all stamp issues since 1865 (!), in some cases more than fifty years after their withdrawal.

To grasp the significance of this process: imagine this happening at German reunification in 1990!

Even stamps that had originally been printed for the autonomous region of Eastern Rumelia (Roumélie Orientale), which had long since transferred to Bulgaria, were used.

Fig. 17: Internally used reply card (Birken no. 16d) sent from Smyrna to Cordelio, with obligatory tax, cancelled and mailed on 1.02.1916.

Fig. 18: Detached part of postal card with reply postal card (Birken no. 43) with affixed widows and orphans obligatory tax stamp, cancelled 7.01.1918, sent to Germany.

Postal stationery was not overprinted with the “Beetle” type overprint, presumably because there was just no stock left.

From 6th/19th February 1919, the prescribed obligatory tax ended, but there were several postage rate increases as a result of inflation caused by the war: a postcard finally cost 3 piastres inland and 4½ piastres abroad, a letter even 5 and 7½ piastres, respectively.

It was not until 26th November 1923 that completely new rates were introduced, thus ending the system of emergency wartime measures.

Editor's Note:

An article on the history and usage of the “Ox Heads” will appear in the next edition of MEPB.

On the Use of Turkey's 1916 Leander's Tower Postal Cards

by Otto Graf

Copyright © 2020

Since I had the chance to preview Jens Warnecke's article on the newly discovered proofs of the Leander's Tower postal cards,¹ I would like to widen the perspective of these postal cards by recording aspects of their use which I noticed in the course of my collecting activities. Hopefully this will motivate other collectors to share their findings on these postal cards.

My perspective on these postal cards is about distinguishing when regular cards were used in Turkey and when emergency measures came into effect. This back-and-forth lasted from 1914, when postal cards with the round imprinted stamp could not be re-ordered from printers Bradbury & Wilkinson in England due to the war, until the time when the a new postal card series reached counters in 1926 – ordered from exactly that same printer, Bradbury & Wilkinson.

The Leander's Tower postal cards were produced by the Vienna State Printing Office (Wiener Staatsdruckerei)² and represent the return to regular postal cards during World War I, after a first interim period of emergency measures. Their use is the subject of this article.

History of Turkey's Postal Cards and Tariffs

Turkey allowed post cards from 1st July 1875, following entirely the Austrian idea of an economical way for sending short messages – quasi the text-messaging of the 19th century. The tariff for post cards in Turkey was 20 para, no matter whether they were sent within a city, within the country (by land or by sea), or internationally.

It was not until a quarter of a century later that a local tariff of 10 para was introduced, on 14th January 1901 to be precise. This rate was only of relevance to İstanbul, where there was a local postal delivery service. This tariff, 10 para within a city and 20 para anywhere beyond, was effective in Turkey until the First World War. On 8th July 1915 a surcharge of 10 para for the war orphans was introduced, which meant that sending a post card then cost 20 para and 30 para, respectively.

At some unknown point in time, foreign merchants in Turkey were successful in their protest against this tax and the foreign tariff was reduced to 20 para again. At that time, a post card sent within Turkey was more expensive at 30 para than a post card sent abroad at 20 para.

Another new rate came in 1916, when a special tariff to Bulgaria was introduced: sending a post card cost only 10 para. Since there was no mention of the compulsory surcharge for war orphans, this tax was actually not charged. The reduction only effected the basic tariff, the surcharge on any additional service, like registration, which happened to be 10 para as well, had to be paid for Bulgaria.

In order to end this inconsistent situation, the international post card tariffs were increased on 14th July 1916 with the new rates no longer subject to the surcharge. post cards thus cost 20 para within city, 30 para within the Empire and internationally, and 10 para to Bulgaria.

1 See "Proofs of Turkey's 1916 Leander's Tower Postcards" in: MEPB, no. 16, 2020, pp. 15–18.

2 Until 1918 "k.k. Hof- und Staatsdruckerei," then "Österreichische Staatsdruckerei".

The Ordering of the Leander's Tower Postal Card

Since the Leander's Tower postal cards were printed and issued in values of 10 para and 20 para, it can be assumed that they were ordered soon after the beginning of the war, definitely before 8th July 1915, because from this date these values could no longer be used (or only in special cases) without applying additional franking.

Fig. 1: 10 para postal card of the Bradbury & Wilkinson design sent from Mirgun (5.07.1915) to Arnberg, Germany. This postal card for local use was used to a foreign destination by adding a 10 para stamp to make up the 20 para postcard rate.

This can be seen as the first emergency measure, using up local postal cards for international mail.

Issue and Use of the Leander's Tower Postal Card

Andreas Birken remarks in his book on Turkish stationery³ that the year of issue usually stated in catalogues as 1917 is not correct for the Leander's Tower postal cards. These cards were already issued in 1916. He mentions a card dated 18th October 1916.⁴ Even this date is still well after the rate increase on 8th July 1915.

This means that the 10 para postal card, which was intended as a local post card, cannot exist as local usage without additional postage. The 20 para postal card, on the other hand, can exist used as a foreign post card without additional franking, at least for the period between withdrawal of the war orphans surcharge and the general increase of postage rates on 14th July 1916.

Such a rather special situation immediately gives rise to the question of how the two Leander's Tower postal cards could be used without additional franking.

Fig. 2: Card from Karaköy (1.09.1917) to Sofia. Postage paid by use of the 10 para postal card without additional franking. The card was censored in Istanbul as well as in Bulgaria.

Usage without additional Franking

The most common use of the 10 para postal card without additional franking is to Bulgaria. However, such use is not as common as one might think. And, I was able to find identify another use: An Istanbul bookseller used the 10 para postal card as a book order form by adding an overprint. Since the compulsory tax in favour of war orphans did not apply to printed matter and thus for book order forms, which were equivalent in terms of the tariff, the foreign printed matter rate of 10 para was correct.

Consequently, following that logic, there could have been 10 para postal cards sent abroad as printed matter by having a private overprint (such as congratulations, advertising, etc.) applied. However, I have not seen such an item so far.

The 20 para postal card without additional franking is much easier to find. On the one hand, after the introduction of the surcharge for war orphans on 8th July 1915, the local postage rate was 20 para. The compulsory surcharge did not necessarily have to be paid with the stamps specifically overprinted for this purpose,⁵ but could be paid with regular postage stamps. So the 20 para card could be used as a local post card.

After the compulsory tax on foreign mail had been withdrawn but before the postage rates for foreign mail were raised in general, the previous postage rate of 20 para for foreign post cards applied once more. Such uses did occur. However, the postage reduction for foreign mails must have been firmly in the minds of postal officials: even after the rate rise, foreign post cards were treated as if the compulsory surcharge did not apply. Such treatment of post cards can be found well into the early 1920s, when a different compulsory tax (benefiting children) was in force.

Late Use of the Leander's Tower Postal Card Issue

Late usages are of general interest as they allow estimating the quantity of postal cards ordered in 1916. These amounts must have been substantial! One finds these cards in use until the 1920s: the latest date I can note from my collection is 14th May 1923.

Theoretically the postal card was valid until 30th June 1926 and was tolerated until 31st December 1926, like all Ottoman stamps. There were so many of these cards still available that they were even used as parcel cards when other appropriate forms were not at hand.

Fig. 5: Card from Pera (29.05.1917) to Munich.

The card was carried at the previous international rate without being taxed, although at that time the rate for international post cards had been increased to 30 para.

These postal cards also exist with an overprint. From April 1920 to February 1921 the French and Turks fought over the control of Anteb. The town was later awarded the honorary title "Gazi" because of these battles. This was otherwise only awarded to glorious military commanders. The city's current name is Gaziantep.

From March 1921 until the French withdrawal in December 1921 there was an armistice. France controlled the police, Turkey controlled the town's administration. During this period, 500 postal cards were surcharged with the words "O. M. F. / Syrie / 1 / PIASTRE" in the summer of 1921. Consequently a corresponding number of these postal cards must have been in stock at that post office.

Naturally, the cards were also available in other places in Anatolia, so there are used examples from the time of the national government. However, these are not common. All in all, the quantities printed were definitely "sufficient."

Fig. 6: Leander's Tower postal card, 20 para, sent from Mardin (14.05.1923) to Springfield, Missouri, USA.

At that time the international post card rate was 4½ kuruş. It is interesting that the imprinted stamp on the card was not taken into account towards the rate. The stamps of the Ottoman Empire were valid for postage until 30.06.1926 and were still tolerated until the end of 1926.

Two Mysterious Baghdad–Haifa Overland Mail Route Instruction Hand-Stamps

by Rainer Fuchs (AIJP, FRPSL)

Copyright © 2021

My first contact with the Postal History of the Overland Mail Baghdad–Haifa was in the late 1980s during my five year stay in Iraq, working as commissioning engineer/site manager for projects I was delegated to by my former employer. I do not remember if I purchased the first covers at that time but I became more seriously interested about 25 years ago and am collecting items ever since.

I had an initial impression that, once Norman Collins had published his monograph in 1990,¹ this area was almost completely researched and all details were published. I never thought that so many new items not listed and described in Norman's book would surface over the years. In fact I have discovered so many details not listed in Norman's book that, five years ago, I had been asked to write and publish a revision on that book. While I felt honoured by such a request, lack of time would not permit it. However, I do not stop writing and publishing articles on topics I judge to be important or which require further studies.

Collins' Numberings

The route instruction hand-stamps which are listed by Collins are numbered HS-1 to HS-94. Over the years I have been able to discover a large number of unrecorded hand-stamps which I numbered "HS-Nxx" whereas "N" stands for new and "xx" for the sequential number: 01 to (as of today) 66. Since the number scheme created by Collins cannot easily be extended, I have a new numbering scheme under preparation, but until this is completed, I will refer here to these intermediate numbers.

New Discoveries

This article discusses the newly discovered route instruction hand-stamps I have recorded in my intermediate listing (which is also used on my website) as HS-N15 and HS-N16. The covers I have discovered are catalogued in the below table and shown on the following pages.

I tried to detect a pattern where these hand-stamps have been used, but I must admit there doesn't seem to be one. Another mystery is that the term "Motor Mail" was usually only used for mail originating in Egypt whereas "Overland Mail" was the normal term for mail from Iraq but also used for mail from Europe and sometimes for mail from Egypt. Maybe other collectors can recognise a pattern here, and maybe provide other covers with these hand-stamps from their collections.

The table below contains high resolution scans (600dpi) of the featured hand-stamps, to me all hand-stamps are identical, of course some minor differences may occur how strong/with how much force, the hand-stamp was struck on the cover.

Conclusion

Unless other collectors recognise a pattern in the use of these route instruction hand-stamps, I will have to consider these types as bogus and will amend my future listings accordingly. Hence, additional images of covers with these types as well as constructive comments are highly appreciated.

If these types turn out to be bogus then this article at least served the purpose as to inform and warn others. I may have definitely lost money by purchasing them, but this is the fate of every researching collector, on the other hand they are now in safe hands, away from the market.

MEPB needs interesting new material!
Please come forward with your articles,
research notes, queries, and images!

Figs. 1 and 1a: Cover sent 1942 from Cairo (11.11.1942) to Damascus (21.11.1942).

Postage rate 22 mils. Overland Mail surcharge was not required as the surcharges had been abolished several years earlier.

On the reverse: Departure postmark Cairo 4 (11.11.1942), arrival postmark Damascus (21.11.1942). Transit time Egypt–Syria 10 days, which seems to be quite long but was probably caused by the censorship. Egyptian and Syrian (Free French Forces in the Levant) censor markings and sealing strips.

HS-N15 and HS-N16. This was not carried by Overland Mail. The Overland Mail was called Motor Mail in Egypt to or via Iraq, but the cover was sent from Cairo via Haifa and Beirut to Damascus and addressed to the Nairn Transport Co., the carrier and initiator of the Overland Mail Baghdad–Haifa.

Figs. 2 and 2a: Cover from Baghdad (22.07.1924) to Milano, Italy (16.08.1924). Postage rate 6 anna.
On the reverse: Transit and arrival postmarks (Brindisi and Milano) of 16.08.1924.

HS-N15 and HS-N16.

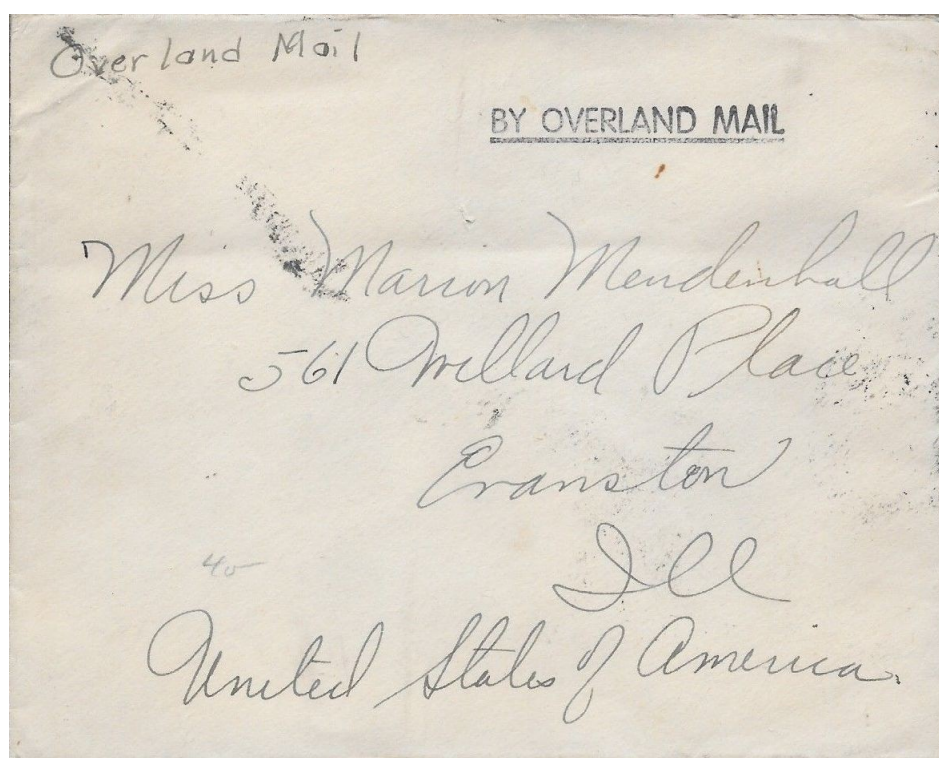

I believe that this cover was not carried by the Overland Mail Baghdad-Haifa as during that time the rate would have been 9 anna for a registered cover. Also the transit time of almost 4 weeks supports this.

But, where and why were the Overland Mail/Motor Mail markings applied and by which route was this cover consequently transported?

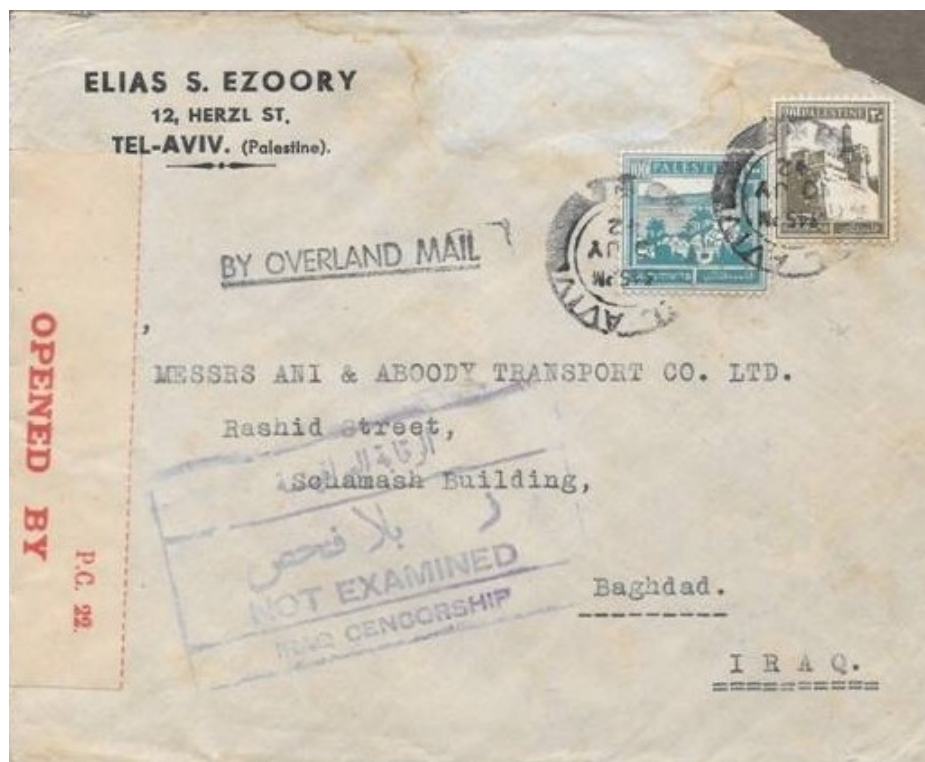

Figs. 3 and 3a: Cover from Baghdad (2.12.1924) to Chichester, Sussex, England. British Post Office at Dover recognised the cover as too heavy and struck the "More to Pay / Above [20] Grammes / 258" cachet, calculated the Postage Due as $7\frac{1}{2}$ d: " $7\frac{1}{2}$ TO PAY / 258". The delivery Post Office at Chichester duly affixed Postage Due stamps for $7\frac{1}{2}$ d and cancelled these "Chichester / 2 / 15 DE / 1924".

Postage rate of 27 chahis which relates to an Overland Mail cover up to 20 grammes.

Censorship label Palestine type PC 22 and "Not Examined / Iraq Censorship" hand-stamp.
On the reverse arrival postmark Baghdad (16.07.1942).

This cover is a total mystery: the rate of 120 m cannot be explained. The Overland Mail surcharge was long abolished in 1947. The foreign rate for a 20 g letter was 15 m with 10 m for any additional 20 g.²

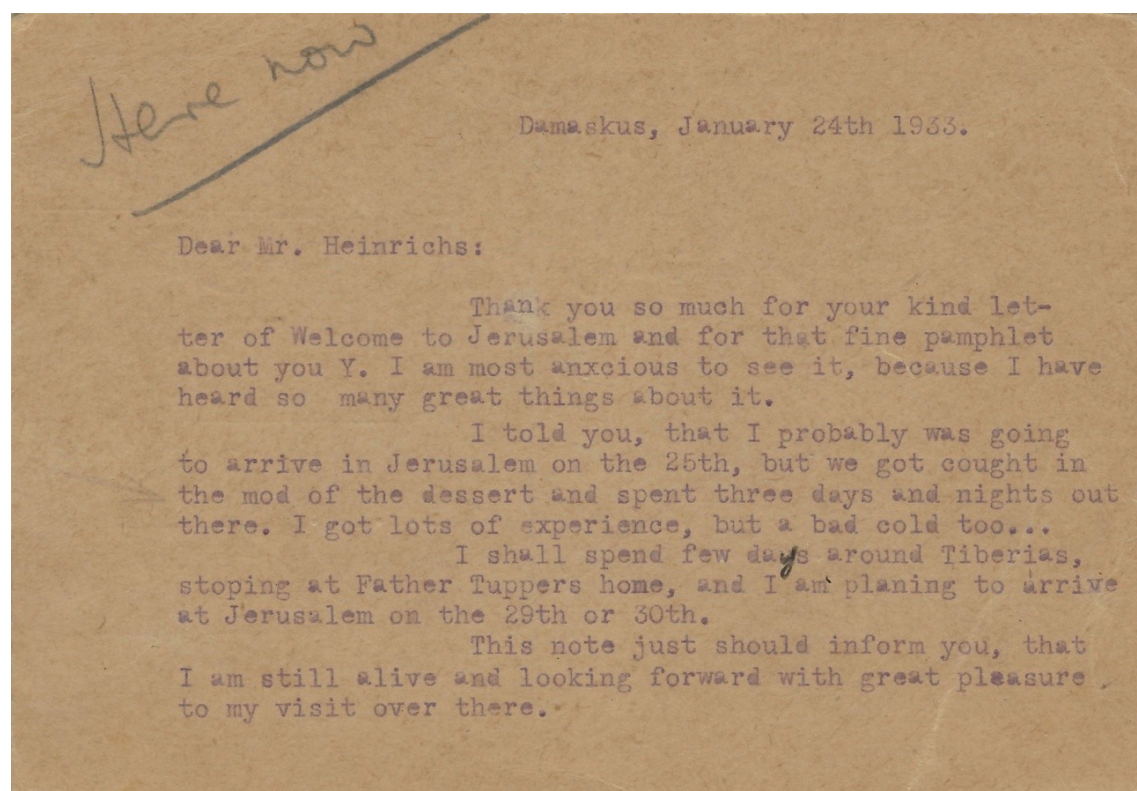

² A 20 g letter by airmail (Imperial Airways) would fit the 120 m rate affixed. (Editor)

Figs. 6 and 6a: Cover from Kurdistan, Iran (1.08.1933) via Kirmanchah (1.08.1933) to Geneva, Switzerland.

Postage rate: 33 chahis (1 kran + 13 ch), the correct rate for an ordinary Overland Mail cover from Iran: 30 ch postage + 3 ch Overland Mail Surcharge.

HS-N15.

Figs. 7 and 7a: Syrian postal card sent from Damascus (24.01.1933) to Jerusalem, written by the General Secretary of the German YMCA (CVJM), Gustav-Adolf Gedat, on one of his world tours. The imprinted 4.50 piastre on the card is the correct rate for a foreign postcard at the time, Overland Mail surcharge was not required anymore.

HS-N15.

On reverse transit postmarks of Qantara (11.03.1928), Alexandria (12.03.1928) and arrival postmark of Livorno (19.03.1928).

4½ anna: the correct Overland Mail rate for a cover up to 20 grammes from Iraq at the time of posting.

Route instruction label type L3/4 issued by Iraqi Post as well as hand-stamp "Motor Mail" type HS-N16

Figs. 10 and 10a: My latest find is a cover from Port Said (20.10.1926) to Abadan, Iran. On reverse transit postmarks of Baghdad H.Q. (23.10.1926) and Mohammerah (25.10.1926). Postage rate of 55 m is not the correct rate for such a cover. The cover looks shortened on the left side and I believe a stamp may have cut off which would have completed the 60 m rate for a cover of the second weight increment.

Three New Jordanian Censor Markings

Having purchased a number of covers from Egypt recently, I can now present three more Jordanian censorship markings, including a new type, not previously listed.¹ All my examples travelled from Amman to Egypt in 1963. Where exactly the censorship was applied remains unknown.

1. A letter from Amman 10.07.1963 via Cairo Airport 12.07.1963 and Cairo 13.07.1963 to Cairo 14.07.1963. It features the regular Egyptian censorship marking and a violet Jordanian censorship hand-stamp no. 4: “٤ / روقب”.
2. A letter from Amman 12.08.1963 via Cairo Airport 14.08.1963 to Cairo 15.08.1963. The regular Egyptian censorship marking is accompanied by a new type of Jordanian censorship hand-stamp no. 21: “٢١ / روقب”.
3. The last letter is again from Amman 7.06.1963 via Cairo 13.06.1963 to Cairo Al-Doqi 14.06.1963. Apart from the Egyptian censorship hand-stamp it features a violet Jordanian censorship hand-stamp no. 22 “٢٢ / روقب”, again in the new type. The cover is resealed with two red military censorship sealing labels. The inscription on these sealing labels is different from the previous such example shown in my article in MEPB 15:² it features a different version of the letter tā' marbūṭa.

Mail from Perim Island (Yemen)

by Folkert Bruining and Ot Louw †¹

Copyright © 2021

You will be surprised how a tiny spot on Earth can be so fascinating from a postal and philatelic point of view. Take the island of Perim.

Perim (بريم, Barīm, Mayyūn, Babelmandeb) is a horseshoe-shaped volcanic island, located in the Strait of Bab el-Mandeb (Bāb al-Mandab), between Yemen and Djibouti. The island measures about 5.5×3 kilometres (surface area about 14 km²).

The island was Portuguese (1513) and later Ottoman, until it was occupied by the French in 1738. In 1799 the British controlled the island briefly, supporting their invasion of Egypt. In 1857, the British, after having learned from the slightly inebriated French that France was interested, deviously repossessed the island and added it to the already established colony of Aden.

Fig. 1:

Location of the island of Perim in the Red Sea near the coast of Yemen.²

Because of its horseshoe shape, Perim possesses a natural harbour with an entrance on the southwestern side, accessible to seagoing ships. The island was mainly used as a place where ships sailing through the Suez Canal were bunkering coal, initially for the British fleet but later for foreign ships as well.

Lack of drinking water makes the island practically unsuitable for permanent habitation. Although a fishing village called Mayyūn is located in the south, according to literature there is no evidence of habitation on this arid, barren island around the year 1900 except for some fishermen already mentioned, staff of the Perim Coal Company, a few government officials and a small detachment of soldiers. But of course, once there was a post office.

Perim Postal History³

Where people are living there is, usually, the need for a postal service. Until 1871 this was not the case on Perim, at least not on a regular basis. On occasion ships moored at Perim took mail to and from Aden. On Perim, as elsewhere in the world, it was customary ('the law of the sea') for captains to inquire at the post office or with the harbourmaster whether they should take mail with them to the places they were to call at subsequently. Until at least 1936 this was also the case, albeit occasionally, for Perim.

It was not until 1871 that a more regular postal service was established between Aden and Perim, which was however terminated in 1879 due to unreliability. This is a contemporary description:⁴

There is a postal connection with Aden twice a month. This is done by camel mail. The postman lights a large fire after arriving at the Bab-el-Mandeb Strait to inform the lighthouse keeper of his presence. If the weather is not too bad, a boat is immediately sent to receive the mail; otherwise the Perim exiles may wait days for their correspondence.

In 1883 another regular postal service was opened, partly on the initiative of the Perim Coal Company (PCC). In 1883 the PCC obtained a 30 year concession to supply coal to ships on Perim. Until 1936 ships could take in coal. But the PCC also played – from time to time – a role in the postal organisation on the island, especially in transporting mail to and from the island.

Perim dating from 1885.⁵

The contract was terminated in 1890, apparently because mail was stolen. In that same year a new attempt was made to establish a regular postal service, about once a week, both to and from Aden and nearby Somaliland. This contract, too, was terminated in 1899; renewal was too expensive.

The well-known ‘occasional service’ was used again, although with a subsidy of the PCC a ‘rural messenger’ service could be established, later followed by a service provided by the PCC itself, now on the basis of a contract with the British government. This service continued until 1915.

Fig. 4b: PCC cachet: “THE PERIM COAL Co. / LIMITED / PERIM ISLAND”.

Fig. 5: Cachet of Cowasjee Dinshaw Bros, Steamer Point, Aden.⁷

Until 1928 there was again an irregular service, maintained by numerous agents, until the R.A.F. opened an air link to Perim during that year and maintained a weekly postal service to the island. This was shortly thereafter converted to a fortnightly service. In the intermediate weeks, the postal service was maintained by Cowasjee Dinshaw, a member of a family of traders from India (this family had played a role in the postal service to Perim before, around 1890). The company mainly took care of parcels and registered mail (because the R.A.F. did not do this).

The contract ended in 1936, when the PCC’s operations were terminated by bankruptcy. It is not entirely clear what the direct link was between this and the termination of the R.A.F./Cowasjee Dinshaw contracts. The latter company may have used the PCC’s shipping services, and PCC may have been the main interested party in a postal link with Perim. Or perhaps there is another explanation. Moreover, the port also closed that year.

Post Office and Stamps

Although there was a more or less regular postal connection, there was no post office on Perim until 1915. Until 1937 the postal administration of Aden (and Perim) was part of the Post Office of India. As a consequence Indian stamps had to be used on Perim.

As far as mail was not taken by passing ships to a subsequent port-of-call or destination (I have never seen examples of this but such items must undoubtedly exist), it was transported to Aden, where it was cancelled at the British Indian post office (figs. 4, and 6).

Stanley Gibbons⁸ indicates that a post office was opened on the island in 1915. From the moment of opening, a double-circle stamp with a long two-line date-bridge (“PERIM” in the first line and the date in the second line) was used (see fig. 8).⁹ This type had a number of subtypes.¹⁰ For registered mail there was a rectangular boxed cachet with “PERIM”. This cachet, meant to be placed on e.g. registration labels, also appears on stamps.¹¹

The card was brought to and cancelled at the post office of Aden on 9.04.1898 and handed over on 11.04.1898 to the French steamer S.S. Iraouaddy (coming from Réunion) on its passage to Marseilles, where she arrived on 23.04.1898.¹³ The card arrived in Oudenbosch (Netherlands) on 24.04.1898. At that time Dutch ships (as a rule) did not call at Aden although stationeries are known to be written on Dutch ships during coaling at Aden.

According to this notice in the newspaper Soerabaijasch Handelsblad (Soerabaja/Surabaya, Dutch East Indies) of 9.04.1898, the steamer Ardjoeno was coaling on Perim on 8.04.1898.

The post office was again closed in 1936, according to Stanley Gibbons.¹⁴ Perhaps the closure has to do with the fact that Aden severed its postal affiliation and from 1937 onwards no longer belonged to the Post Office of India and therefore no longer used Indian stamps.

This is not the whole story. Although Stanley Gibbons does not mention it, the post office reopened (we suspect) in 1949.¹⁵ A new type of postmark, with double-circle and short date-bridge,¹⁶ was brought into use, as shown on the letter below (fig. 10). This type was used at least until 1963. Besides this postmark a single-circle canceller with a date in two lines, the name “PERIM” at the top and a star below was used from the beginning of the 1960s until 1963.

In 1963 the South Arabian Federation was founded. Perhaps as a result of this the office in Perim was closed a second time, but no information has so far surfaced.

Perim, an Intermediate Station

The island was (and is) situated on the important shipping route through the Suez Canal and the Red Sea. As until 1915 Perim did not have its own post office, as a rule, the mail generated on and despatched from the island was brought to the post office of Aden.

Perim was used, among others, by ships of the Koninklijke Rotterdamsche Lloyd (KRL, Royal Rotterdam Lloyd) and the Stoomvaart-Maatschappij 'Nederland' (SMN, Netherlands Steamship Company) during voyages to or from the Dutch East Indies to take in coal (see fig. 2 above). Perim was positioned approximately halfway on this sea voyage.

During the coaling ships' passengers came ashore for a little 'entertainment' which means just strolling around a little bit, buying a card, writing some words to the family in the Indies or the Netherlands, depending on the direction of sailing; fig. 11 is such an example.

A short impression of Perim is written on the picture post card shown below (fig. 11):

Aan boord van den stoomer Goentoer 14 Juni 1907. Lieve Pa en Ma. Ik ben van boord gegaan en ik vind Perim erg leelijk. Je ziet geen enkel boompje. Ik zal met een kruisje aanduiden waar ik geweest ben. Maar ik vind het toch heel prettig dat ik het gezien heb. Nu van hier lieve Pa en Ma vele vele zoenen.

On board of the steamer Goentoer, 14th June 1907. Dear Dad and Mom. I went ashore and I think Perim is very awful. Not a single tree is growing. I mark with a cross where I have been.¹⁸ But I am glad I have seen it. Now from here dear Dad and Mom many many kisses.

Goentoer (homeward bound to Rotterdam) via Ismailia (17.06.1907) and Suez (18.06.1907) to Madioen in the Dutch East Indies. In Ismailia (17.06.1907) the card was handed over to the Egyptian post and transported by train to Suez (18.06.1907) where the card was delivered to the Dutch mailboat S.S. Rembrandt (departure 1.06.1907 from Amsterdam, leaving Suez 18.06.1907, arriving at and leaving from Perim 22.06.1907) bound for the East Indies. If the card should have been carried by foreign (i.e. non-Dutch) mailboats – as a rule – a transfer postmark of the Dutch postal agency in Penang or Singapore should have been placed on the card.

Hotel and Lighthouse

A curiosity is the ‘luxurious’ hotel on the island. See the little cross on the picture post card above (fig. 11). The hotel was, after its construction in 1888, initially called Grand Hotel, then The Oriental, and finally The Perim Hotel. You couldn’t stay overnight in the hotel: it was a club, evidently for employees on the island. Next to the hotel was a cricket ground. What could be more British!

Rest to say that the British also built the famous lighthouse on the island (figs. 17 and 18).

In 1967 the British interlude on the island ended and it became – eventually – part of Yemen.

Question

It is not uncommon that mail was transferred (directly) from one ship to another. In that case, this saves the ‘diversion’ via Aden. Is any reader familiar with such examples? That would be very interesting.

The Yellow Fleet (Great Bitter Lake Association)

by Peter Valdner

Copyright © 2021

During the Six-Day war between Arab states and Israel in June 1967, fourteen cargo ships from eight nations were trapped on the Great Bitter Lake in the Suez Canal. The crews were replaced every three to six months, but the ships remained stranded there for eight years until May 1975. The crews proclaimed the Great Bitter Lake Association (GBLA), pooled their resources, organized cultural and sporting events and issued stamps.

To reduce cost of guarding the ships, shipping companies re-anchored ships into groups. The British ships Agapenor and Melampus joined as "Agalampus" and Port Invercargill and Scottish Star as "Portstar." The Swedish ships Nippon and Killara formed "Nippara," Polish ships Djakarta and Bolesław Bierut formed "Djakkier." Later on, "Agalampus" and the Czechoslovak Lednice formed "Ledmalaga," "Nippara" and the West German Münsterland and Nordwind formed "Müwiniki" and "Djakkier" with "Portstar" formed "Djabiporst." The French Sindh, was sold to Norway and renamed Essayons, then joined "Müwiniki" group to form "Müwinikies." The Bulgarian Vassil Levsky and US-flagged African Glen stayed alone all the time, the latter was sunk during the 1973 war.

The Production of Stamps

Crews of all ships and ship groups produced stamps. The first issues were printed by the master of Lednice between October 1967 and January 1968 on a hectograph duplicating machine, which allowed a maximum of 200 copies. The average for each issue was about 150 copies and a few can be still found in GBLA collections. Many later issues were printed from solid matrices, which theoretically allowed to print more copies and in various colours, but the average print-run of all ca. 450 GBLA issues amounting to about 2,000 stamps was below 100 copies. Less than 10% are believed still to exist, so a challenge to collect.

Stamps and Stamp Issues

The following table presents numbers of produced stamps and stamp issues. The numbers of different stamps correspond to the way Captain Hill counted these in his book.¹

The Name "Yellow Fleet"

Due to sandstorms, the ships were covered with a layer of yellow desert sand. Captain von der Mehden, arriving for his stint on the Müwinikies in 1971, introduced the name Yellow Fleet. It appeared on several GBLA stamp, too.

Lines of Communication

The 14 ships could not enter the ports on the Great Bitter Lake as they were rather shallow. Contacts with the land were possible only by boats, which carried men, post and all supplies. In the beginning, any direct contacts between the ships were strictly prohibited by Egyptian authorities. Even messages between ships had to be carried by boats to land and then again by boats to ships. Some contact was later allowed, especially to meet at "Church": this was a weekly meeting on the Nordwind. It had nothing to do with religion. A "Post Office" was a part of it, where covers were cacheted. So on many covers can be seen cachets of several ships.

Ships on the high seas can use paquebot, which requires stamps. As there were next to no stamps available on the ships, the seamen started their production. This was not the principal activity of the GBLA, though the most remarkable. I would like to say also the most durable, but some stamps have a tendency of fading ...

Many stamps reflected the daily events – meetings, sports, anniversaries; so no wonder seamen used them on letters addressed to their families.

Philatelists and Imitations

Philatelists and stamp collectors from all over the world asked the GBLA members for stamps and/or cachets. Sometimes with success. An Italian printed stamps and sent them to the Lake to make a business on them. Some were really used as decorations on letters, but his business plan failed. So the stock of his worthless products was auctioned. Nowadays, these imitations, mostly inscribed "Great Bitter Lake, S.C." can be found offered at eBay and other stamp portals. I am pleased to notice that since my article was published in 2016,² the price of these imitations fell considerably. Though they are still at ridiculous high levels. Well, some GBLA collectors have either not found or understood my article ...

Great Bitter Lake Association Stamp Catalogue

The book was reviewed by Colin Fraser in MEPB 16. It expands the information previously published by Captain Hill.

The book includes a comprehensive description of the GBLA and its postal service, a discussion about interest in the GBLA stamp issues for collectors of "A Stamp from Everywhere" (ASFE), a detailed discussion of the M/S Lednice issues and a stamp catalogue listing and illustrating the recorded stamp issues of the GBLA.

The Palestine Post Tariff 2020

by Thomas Schubert (AIJP)

Copyright © 2021

The Directive No. 180, signed by the Palestinian Minister of Post and Telecommunications on 10th May 2020, changed the prices of mail and other services offered by Palestine Post effective from 1st June 2020.¹ The new tariff replaces the postal tariff introduced with Directive No. 39 of 10th April 2012.² While postal fees are increasing regularly in many countries around the world, the postage to be paid to Palestine Post had remained unchanged for eight years. The tariff change of June 2020 is only the third change in Palestine Post postage rates since 2000. For comparison: In Germany, the various postage fees for mail have changed nine times since the introduction of the Euro on 1st January 2002.

Basic Rates	1996	2000	2004	2012	2020
Inland Letter	100 f	150 f	150 f	200 f	250 m
Inland Postcard	100 f	150 f	150 f	250 f	250 m
Inland Registration	340 f	500 f	600 f	720 f	750 m
Europe Letter (Air)	150 f ³	350 f	350 f	420 f	700 m
Europe Postcard (Air)	120 f ⁴	250 f	250 f	n/a	500 m
International Registration	340 f ⁵	750 f	800 f	1080 f	1200 m

The general system of tariffs introduced to the Palestinian postal service in 2004 remains unchanged: postage based on weight for domestic and international letters, printed matters, small parcels, and parcels. Postage fees for international mail continues to differentiate according to three groupings of countries: Arab countries, Europe and Iran (Group 1), Africa, North America and Asia (except for Arab countries and Iran) (Group 2), and Latin America and Australia (Group 3).

The postage for a domestic letter up to 20 g is now 250 Mils (previously 200 Mils). A letter up to 20 g to Europe costs 500 Mils for land transport and 600 Mils for airmail (previously 350 Mils and 420 Mils, respectively). Standard letters in Groups 2 and 3 became 100 and 220 Fils/Mils more expensive than before. The fees for additional services have also been increased, e.g. for registered mail to abroad from 1.080 Fils/Mils to 1.200 Fils/Mils. The annual rent for mailboxes, which are very often used by private individuals in Palestine, was reduced from NIS 120 to NIS 100.

Here is a summary of the key postage tariffs as prepared by the General Administration in Ramallah and kindly provided to the author by the head of Philatelic Bureau, Kifah Maraqa. New are some prices for philatelic services like for FDC or stamp albums.

It should be noted that the postal administration in the Gaza Strip charges still postage from 2004. Thus, a 20g domestic letter costs in Gaza Strip unchanged 150 Fils/Mils. An airmail letter to Europe costs still 350 Fils/Mils, the additional payment for registered mail, only 700 Fils/Mils. As the Philatelic Office in Gaza informed on request from the author, there are no plans to change this any time soon.

1 Cf. <https://www.mtit.pna.ps/Site/PostSector?type=2>.

2 Until 2012 two international tariffs are listed, "direct" and "via Israel", despite all mail abroad going through Israel.

3 340 Fils (2.03.1998), 380 Fils (1.06.1999).

4 260 Fils (2.03.1998).

5 760 Fils (2.03.1998), 880 Fils (1.06.1999).

Shortly before the editorial deadline for this issue, Palestine Post announced another tariff change effective from 1st April 2021. The postage for a domestic letter up to 20 g remains unchanged at 250 Mils, but an airmail letter to Europe now costs 750 Mils, international registration rises to 1,250 m.

MEPB 16: Constantinople & Danube Line Of Steamers / T.B. Morton & Co.

Editor: I found an interesting piece on Facebook posted by Kamil Fatih Arli,¹ the “FRANCO / LETTER POST” cachet together with the company cancel of the Constantinople & Danube Line Of Steamers, T.B. Morton & Co.²

From 1866, Morton ran the route Constantinople via the Black Sea to Küstendje (Constanța). The two other Turkish lines were the Ottoman Admiralty Steamship Company (Amirote, 1858)³ and Bell's Asia Minor Steamship Company (1868). The former sailed from Constantinople through the Sea of Marmara to Gemlik (Kios) with the local mail taking the letters on land to Brusa (Bursa, Brousse); their second route ran from Constantinople to Smyrna (İzmir). The latter operated the route from Smyrna to Antalya (Adalia).

MEPB16: Request for Information: PNA “إيرادات” (‘iradat) Overprint (Arthur Harris, p. 91)

Arthur Harris writes:

I just recently received a little more information about the overprinted stamps.

“A limited number of the first series (Scott 1-13 Flags and Sites) were overprinted with Iradat (Revenue) by the official body, the Palestinian National Authority, due to there being no revenue stamps in Gaza. This printing was early, as the denomination was in Mils. These stamps are not known to exist in Ramallah (West Bank). Money needed to be raised and the stamps were used for different local transactions such as land-ownership documents and birth certificates. It is unclear if there are any other overprinted values.”

The above information will be added to the reprinting of the monograph. I understand your comments and do not disagree that these may not be legitimate. Hopefully there will be documents that will come to light showing actual usages.

Editor: Arthur doesn't divulge his source, so the jury is still out! Any further information is welcome.

Research Request: “Le Loi sur le Timbre” – Ottoman Fiscal Stamp Law 1893

Editor: I'm looking into reprinting the 1893 Ottoman Stamp Law, i.e. the regulations governing the usage of fiscal stamps and stamped papers. I would appreciate if collectors of this area would provide me with examples of such documents and images of stamps. The original is bi-lingual French and Turkish, so any help with the translation and understanding of fiscal terms and practices is welcome as well! If anyone have such laws prior to or after 1893, please come forward.

Request for Information: International Currency Relations for Postage Due Calculations (Martin Davies)

Martin Davies writes:

I need assistance regarding postage due rates and the reasons for specific charges being applied particularly on overseas incoming mail in the inter-war period, i.e. Mandate Palestine. I have quite a large collection of such material that it is difficult to finish writing it up if one wants to explain rates. Internal mail is generally okay to explain but it's where you are converting or trying to convert gold centime rates of exchange that I find it a problem. Any guidance on this would be appreciated.

Editor: Maybe readers can help to find relevant regulations?

Until 1927, Palestine and Transjordan operated with the Egyptian Pound; this was pegged to the British Pound at 0.975:1, i.e. the Egyptian Pound was worth 1.03 British Pounds. The new Palestinian Pound was pegged directly to the British Pound 1:1, see docs. 290 and 291 in MEPB 6 on pp. 115–118. So any regulations regarding the postage due process defined by the U.P.U. should be the same (at least in terms of currency relations) as the Egyptian and British equivalents.

MEPB 15: Request for Information: The Yemenophile (Tobias Zywiets, p. 96)

Research Request: Royalist Yemen Stationery (Andreas Svrakov)

Andreas Svrakov writes:

Thank you so much for the enormous amount of work you have put into producing the MEPB. It is an invaluable resource that I greatly appreciate. Please register me for your mailing list.

And I have another request. In the MEP Bulletin 15 (Summer 2020), on page 96, there is an item entitled "Request for Information: THE YEMENOPHILE." Indeed, this is a very scarce journal of the 1970s that I have been trying to track down for two years. Archives Canada once had a complete holding, but they disposed of it for reasons of space (!) They thought that perhaps they had passed it on to the APS Research Library, but, no, that was not the case. The APS Librarian suggested that I contact the Harry Sutherland Philatelic Library of the Greene Foundation. They didn't have it either. Then, on page 96 of your #15, Mr. Khalid Omaira mentions "I have the complete run."

What I am looking for is exactly two pages of THE YEMENOPHILE, vol. 2, no. 1 (28 February 1974). These pages are an article by Bruce Conde, entitled "The Postal Cards of Royalist Yemen." I would like to ask Mr. Omaira for his help. Could you please put me in touch with him, or perhaps send me his email address? The Bulletin item provides his Facebook address, but Facebook is not something I deal with. Or perhaps someone else has those pages?

Editor: I have forwarded Andreas' request to Khalid, who on the same day kindly provided the article. This is Andreas' reply:

I greatly appreciate your obtaining THE YEMENOPHILE article for me, and please pass on my thanks to Khalid Omaira.

It is most interesting to actually see this article. I now doubt somewhat that it was actually written by Bruce Conde, although it is listed as such in the bibliography of his Yemen articles.⁴ For one thing, the article is not attributed to any author, and Bruce Conde was not known to be reluctant to sign his contributions. For another thing, all the used postal cards in the illustrations are addressed to Blair Stannard, editor of THE YEMENOPHILE. Perhaps it is Stannard who was the author?

Another matter is this: the article appeared in 1974, nine years after the postal cards were issued, and yet the information provided is quite basic. There is nothing about the provisional printings of the low-value card, nor about the Beirut forgery of the high-value card (possibly by Tony Helou). By 1974, such information should have been known and would have deserved a mention, one would think.

Perhaps it would be worthwhile to consolidate in one place the various bits of information regarding the 1965 Royalist Yemen postal cards. One can find it all, as I have, by hunting around, but I'm not aware that it has been put together in one place. The Higgins & Gage catalog is also incomplete on this

Editor: Sadly, the project to fully digitise THE YEMENOPHILE hasn't progressed much. Anyone interested to lend me and Neil Williams a hand should contact me. I will give updates on this in future editions of MEPB. I hope Andreas' efforts will result in an article for MEPB and other collectors of this area are invited to contribute their knowledge.

Andreas Svrakov writes:

Accessing the archives of the United Postal Stationery Society, I was finally able to read Eben

4 Cf. Andrew Gondocz's website: <http://www.ohmygosh.on.ca/stamps/yemen/conde.htm>.

Farnsworth's article of which I had known for some time: "Royalist Yemen's First Postal Cards" appears in POSTAL STATIONERY, no. 131 (July/August 1968). I think it is an excellent, detailed article on the regular (Harrison & Sons) issue. The article contains nothing about the provisional local print of the 1.5b card by Darul Asfahani & Co. in Jeddah, which came later. Higgins & Gage list the provisional print (Types I and II) as the only examples of this card, which is wrong. Subsequent reports in POSTAL STATIONERY refer to the Beirut forgeries, but one report in no. 365 (March/April 2009) is incorrect and the other in no. 395 (March/April 2014) is incomplete. However, there are illustrations. In any case, probably most important is that there is an excellent article on the cards from Farnsworth.

Research Request: Israeli Postal War against Palestine 1995

Jan Heijs writes:

As many collectors know from 1995 on, the postage stamps of the Palestinian Authority with "MILS" currency were refused by Israel. Many such covers were affixed white stickers (self-adhesive labels) covering the postage stamps, the labels bearing a "Postage Paid" hand-stamp. Such measures are known from the 1994 definitives ("Flag", "Archaeological Sites"), the "Eagle" officials, and the commemorative series "Stamp on Stamp".

I never have seen a cover with such measures against the stamp or the block of the Gaza-Jericho Agreement (pictured), which also features the "Mils" currency. Does anyone has seen such a cover?

Editor: Jan is editor of the specialist catalogue "Postkrieg," About 300 such postal wars between about 70 countries are known for the period 1871 to 2014. Together with Wolfgang Elsner and Dieter Becker he operates the website "Postkrieg"⁵ providing a home for topical research and catalogue updates.

Jan Heijs is a specialist collector of "Postkrieg" (postal war) since 1980; he also collects postal history items showing political propaganda where they did not lead to a postal war.

He is a member of (and contributor to) several philatelic research and study groups at national Dutch and international levels, such as AIJP, Philatelic Academy of the Netherlands, RPSL, BDPh, FG Berlin, ArGe DDR, and DeuNot.

Jan is also editor of the specialist catalogue "Postkrieg,"⁶ having taken over from its creator Dedo Burhop some years ago. About 300 such postal wars between about 70 countries are known for the period 1871 to 2014. Together with Wolfgang Elsner and Dieter Becker he operates the website "Postkrieg" giving a home for topical research and catalogue updates.

Request for Information: Mysterious Cover from Saudi Arabia to Cairo 1973 with Israeli Military Connection (Harris Wolman)

Harris Wolman writes:

I have recently found the cover pictured which is a combination of Saudi Arabia and Israel military. Despite my long standing interest in the Israel military, I have not seen anything like this before. I cannot translate the Arabic or Hebrew, however would this cover be the basis for a small item in your publication? It has been stamped at base 2828 and looks like it was sent via base 2299. On the reverse is the soldiers number 2134267 at base 3015. It also has both Cairo and Riyadh postmarks [on the stamps looks like 4-4 1973].

I have found someone to translate the Hebrew on the cover and this is what he said: The cover was sent to a high ranking sergeant Colin Meyer at 1267. It was then sent to Colin Gabbai 204267 at 3015, and looks like the high ranking sergeant gave instructions. No letter is enclosed so can only try to guess if it was personal or contained sensitive info or possible could be a personal letter of a prisoner. Probably from 1973 Sinai campaign.

Editor: Is anyone able to help with the Arabic? The Riyadh machine cancel says 11.3.1393 / 14.4.1973, the Cairo cancel reads 16.4.73.

Martin Lovegrove responded:

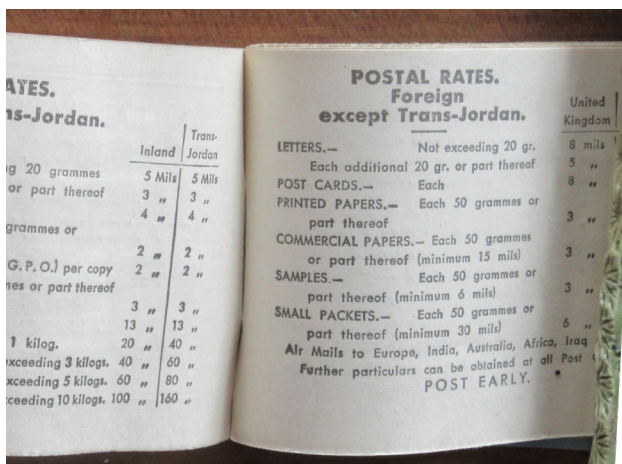

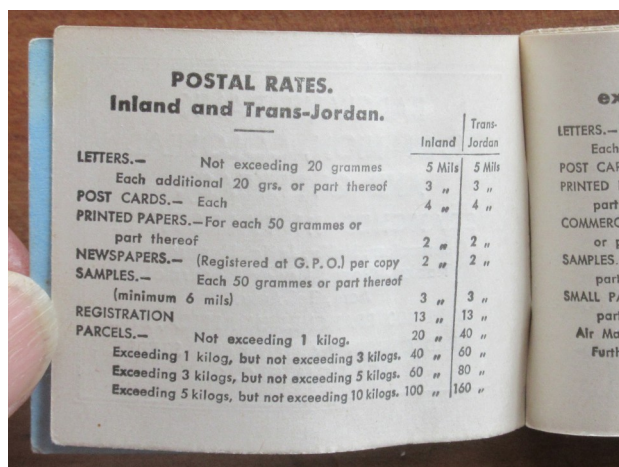

I may not be able to help much; it may need an Egyptian. As far as I can tell, the cover is addressed to Building 2, Nasr City, Cairo. I note that the Ministry of Defence (or one of its departments) is located in Nasr City. I agree with your interpretation of the dates. It is certainly an unusual cover.

MEPB 16: Request for Information: Palestine Mandate Booklet Stamps
(Max Michael Mann, MEPB 16, p. 102)

Rolf Wernecke writes:

Hello Tobias, in MEPB 16 I found an enquiry about Palestine booklets. I have one and have taken photos of the individual pages. It required a lot of acrobatics: if I tried a second time the booklet would likely fall apart.

Editor: Here are Rolf's images from booklet Bale B4 and two examples of used panes.

Request for Information: Egyptian Charity Label Giza Ambulance (ANPA)

Axel Brockmann writes:

Who can provide information on the stamp in the attached image? What country does the stamp come from? What was the purpose of the stamp? Is it a stamp at all? Can anyone say anything about the postmark (postal, fiscal)? Can anyone help with the translation of the inscription?

We are very grateful for any information and for passing it on to experts. We will pass on answers to the sender. May we also publish your answers in our journal JUNGE SAMMLER? Thank you very much for your efforts.

Editor: Axel Brockmann is editor of JUNGE SAMMLER, the journal of the German philatelic youth organisation Deutsche Philatelisten-Jugend, which also hosts a web forum. I assume from the part of the inscriptions I can decipher that it's a 10m charity stamp from an Ambulance organisation الإسعاف الجيزة in Giza: "ANPA".

I posted the image on the Egypt Study Circle's Facebook page:⁷ Khalid Omaira reads the cancellation as 'Social Affairs Monitor, Giza' and Adel Al-Sarraf places the label in the 1940s.

Phil Le Page writes:

I have been able to obtain a few more Lebanon items with security markings, including some which add to our current database. It has not been easy to find items with security markings as few vendors on eBay show the gum side of more recent stamps, so finding those with security markings involves a message exchange, which doesn't always yield results.

I have found some blocks-of-six in the range SG 629–633, all but SG 632 exhibit the familiar markings. I have a used SG 632 with vestiges of the markings, barely visible but definitely present:

MEPB 12: The End of the Overland Mail Baghdad–Haifa (III): Transdesert Transport Companies (Rainer Fuchs)

Rainer Fuchs writes:

In MEPB 12 I published the 3rd part of my series on transdesert transport companies carrying goods, persons and often also mail through the Syro-Iraqi desert. One of these companies was Ani & Aboody Transport Co. Ltd. At the time I could only show an advert from a 1945 Palestinian newspaper (fig. 1).

I have recently discovered a cover sent from one branch to another in 1942: Haifa to Baghdad. The Haifa branch, situated in 1942 at 12 Allenby Street (the 1945 advert gives 35 Kingsway) uses a round imprint on the flap (figs. 2 and 2a). The cover bears the regular Palestinian censor label PC 22, the Iraqi cachet “Not Examined / Iraq Censorship” and a Baghdad machine cancel.

MEPB 16: Request for Information: Jordan Postage Rates 1920–1967
(Tobias Zywiets, p. 97)

Bob Stuchell writes:

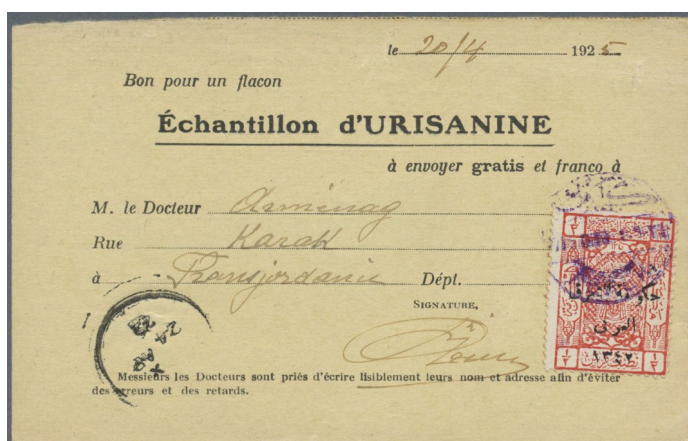

Tobias, I have a handful of Jordan covers and I am attaching one item which I could not fit into the rate schedule. What do you think?

Editor: Doesn't fit my information either. The foreign postcard rate at the time was 10 m in Transjordan; for comparison: in Palestine it was 7 m ... On Stampcircuit I found another such card: same sender, Dr. Arminag in Karak. This one, from 1925, is franked ½ p (i.e. 5 m, MiNr. 89a) (figs. 2 and 2a).

Figs. 1 and 1a: 1927 postcard from Kerak to France, franked 4 m.

Editor: A Jordan specialist, Bernd-Dieter Buscke, argues that these are likely not postcard rates but printed-matter rates.

Figs. 2 and 2a: 1925 postcard from Kerak to France, franked ½ p.

Description of lot 523 in the 25th Gärtner Auction of 7.04.2018:1

Jordanien: 1924: "Government of the Arab East 1342" overprint on ½ piastre bright scarlet of Saudi Arabia [sic!] tied by violet "KEREK" postmark on rare postcard formular (dated 20.4.25) "Échantillon d' Urisanine" sent to the "Laboratoire de l'Urisanine in Paris" with transit cds "AMMAN DISTRICT 23 APR 1925" in blue. Very fine. the ½ piastre postcard rate is very rare in transjordan, only three postcards franked with the early overprinted issues are illustrated in the najjar handbook.

Avo Kaplanian reacted:

According to R.T. Ledger in his classical book "Philatelic History of Jordan, 1922–1953" on page 92, the tariff for printed matter, commercial papers, and commercial samples is 4 fils, up to 50 grams. See the attached scan. The tariff for post cards in the same list is 12 fils. So the explanation for the 4 fils is that the card was considered either as a printed matter or as commercial papers or samples.

Editor: Thanks Avo. I copy the table from pp. 92–93 of Ledger below (figs. 3 and 3a). It does indeed list the 4 f rates Avo mentions, and this would fit the franking of the 1927 postcard as a printed matter. The only problems is this: Ledger's list is not dated, the book was published in 1953, so one would assume is refers to the tariif in force at the time. The preceding list of post offices on p. 92 is dated to 1953.

Editor: you wonder what this "Urisanine" actually was: the tonic was marketed from at least 1911 by the French company G. Coussinet, later Laboratoire Longuet, both in Paris, and was advertised as "antiseptic, diuretic, sedative".

I found a few illustrations about Urisanine on various internet sites. One advert states: "Urisanine is a liquid that cleans the kidneys and the liver; gives elasticity to the articulations; and fortifies the arteries." I even found the list of ingredients... maybe better not to be divulged here!

7 Note: Will be replaced by new drafts in Gazette 312 and 316, see doc. 616 on p. 168 and doc. 637 on p. 200.

The above information is published in accordance with the Regulations of the Board, but it should be pointed out that the value given for "Total Amount of Currency Reserve Fund" is based on the market prices of the investments at the 31st March, 1931, the practice being to revalue investment, for the purpose of accounts, only at the end of each financial year. In normal circumstances the difference would not be material but, owing to the acute financial depression at the end of September, the market prices of investments were considerably lower than in the previous March. In order to show more clearly the actual position of the Board on the date in question, the following statement is appended:—

Investments at market price on 30th September, 1931	2,050,227	8	4
Cash in hand and loans at call on 30th September, 1931	153,690	4	5
Market value of silver in coin in stock and in circulation on 30th September, 1931	62,901	11	3
Total	£ 2,266,819	4	0

There has been a subsequent recovery in the market prices of the investments, and the total of the three items specified above had increased by the 26th January, 1932, to a figure higher than that of the full face value of the currency in circulation on that date.

Summary of:

Memorandum on the Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure of the Government of Palestine for the Financial Year, 1932/3 (1st April, 1932 to 31st March, 1933)

The Memorandum published in the Official Gazette contains explanatory notes on the estimates, which are published separately by the Government outwith the Gazette. That separate booklet is priced 100 Mils.

Revenue 1931: During the year 1931 revenue amounted to £P 2,333,895, i.e. £P 190,205 under the estimate of £P. 2,533,100. Post & Telegraphs was £P. 15,442 below the estimate: "The decrease under Posts and Telegraphs may be attributed to the economic depression".

Expenditure 1931: The expenditure for the year 1931 amounted to £P. 2,374,866, £P. 150,652 under the estimate of £P. 2,531,518. Railways was £P. 18,055 over estimate: "The increase under Railways was due principally to the falling off of receipts by LP.46,074, of which LP.35,573 was in respect of Coaching receipts. On the other hand it was possible during the year to effect economies totalling LP.28,019." Post & Telegraphs was £P. 10,838 below the estimate; Post & Telegraphs Extraordinary was £P. 9,568 below the estimate.

As recommended by the Financial Commission, the financial year of the Government of Palestine will, as from the 1st April 1932, run from the 1st of April to the 31st March. For the period the 1st January 1932 to 31st March 1932 separate accounts were prepared.

Estimates 1932: Surplus balance as of 31st March 1932: £P. 730,722. Revenue: £P. 2,442,083, Expenditure: £P. 2,403,235. Deficit: £P. 38,848, Estimated surplus on 31st March 1933: £P. 769,620.

Revenue 1932: £P. 91,017 under 1931, but £P. 108,188 in excess of actual revenue. Post & Telegraphs: 2,800 increase over 1931: "The increase under Posts and Telegraphs is due to an anticipated increase of revenue from (the sale of stamps. (Item 5)." Under Miscellaneous (£P. 15,000) falls: "Profit from Currency. During the current year the Currency Board contributed from profits LP.35,000 in aid of revenue. The removal of sterling from the gold basis occasioned a temporary lack of confidence locally in the Palestine paper currency, and there were consequently considerable demands for silver coins. These demands had to be met in order to provide change, as the silver coins were constantly being withdrawn from circulation. It therefore became necessary to indent on the Currency Board for a further supply of silver coins to the face value of LP.50,000. In consequence of the expenditure incurred in this supply and the probable necessity of maintaining the currency reserves owing to the fall in value of securities, it is unlikely that the Currency Board will be able to contribute in 1932/3 as large a sum as in the current year. The sum of LP.25,000 only, therefore, has been inserted in the estimates."

Expenditure 1932: £P. 2,403,235, £P. 128,283 below 1931, but exceeding the actual 1931 expenditure by £P. 28,369. The deficit of Palestine Railways is deemed £P. 29,103. It is noted that the Kantara-Rafa Railway and the Hejaz Railway are accounted separate from Palestine Railways. Post & Telegraphs is estimated £P. 842 below 1931, Post & Telegraphs Extraordinary £P 5,145 below 1931: "The increases under Personal Emoluments are mainly due to increments. Under Item 29 provision is made for an additional clerk in charge of the Returned Letter Office. Under Item 31 five additional clerks are provided for in order to avoid delays at Post Office counters. Under Item 35 an increase of four telephonists is contemplated to provide for additional subscribers. The special expenditure of LP.3,500 under Item 48 is included for the regrading of Junior Staff in accordance with the recommendations of the Financial Commission. The increase in the provision for conveyance of mails (Item 83) is due to the necessity of settling accounts on a gold franc basis; and in that for the upkeep of mechanical transport (Item 84) to the inadequacy of the provision in 1931. Decreases, of which details appear in the Estimates, occur under the majority of Items for Other Charges. The Special Expenditure remains unchanged except for an increase of LP.50 in the provision for posting boxes (Item 104). [...] The Estimates for Posts and Telegraphs Extraordinary may be explained as follows, taking the Items in order:— 1. To provide for the normal rate of increase in new subscribers. 2. To provide for additional trunk traffic. 3. For partial reconstruction of old Turkish route, Tulkarm-Mas'udiye. 4. To provide for the normal rate of increase in new subscribers. 5. To meet preliminary expenses on placing contracts by the Crown Agents for purchase of material. 6. Required in connection with Item 4. 7. For continuation of construction of Wireless Telegraph Station, Jerusalem. 8. For continuation of work in connection with new Jerusalem Exchange. 9. Provision of three Automatic Exchanges to economise in personnel. Item 5 is only provisionally approved."

Research into Ladino Correspondence

For an archival database, I'm looking for correspondence (letters and post cards) from/to the Ottoman Empire and the Balkans 1850–1913 (Serbia, Roumania, Bosnia, Bulgaria, Greece, Austria) written in a script that looks like Arabic or Hebrew but is actually the Jewish script "Soletreo". It encodes an old Spanish called Ladino (Judeo-Spanish) spoken by Sephardic Jews. Don't worry about a correct identification: I'll do that.

Wanted: Israel's Triangular Military Unit Handstamps

There are 3 styles of triangular Handstamps used on Military Mail in Israel. The first style lowest numbers were used from 1948 to about 1960. I am trying to collect all of these and am still missing a few numbers. The mid period ran from approximately 1960 to 1980.

I have almost a complete run of these numbers but am still looking for a few of them including 1014, 1021, 1032, 1035, 1043, 1048, 1049, 1060, 1091, 1094 and 1098 and a few others. The most recent zero series style started about 1980 and is still in use. Zero series numbers I am looking for include 01433, 01455, 01526, 01636, 01833 to 01860, 02129 and 03350.

The Institute of Postal Historical Studies "Aldo Cecchi" Prato, Tuscany, Italy

When you study postal history, you investigate on organized communication, particularly focusing on material aspects. This is a new, productive approach connecting different subjects, such as social history and history of culture, epistolography, history of management and of entrepreneurship, paleography, diplomatics, economic history, historical geography, history of journalism and of commerce, collecting.

Since 1982, in Prato, Istituto di Studi Storici Postali "Aldo Cecchi" has been an international reference centre for those concerned. The Institute is aimed at building, improving and sharing knowledge of the postal-historical subjects through publications, courses, workshops, exhibitions, and other cultural events.

One of the highlights of the Institute is his role as a specialized library, collecting guidebooks and old postal maps as well as modern philatelic editions. The library includes more than 13,000 items (volumes and booklets). Over time, the library has become a proper documentation centre on organized postal communication. The library is divided into special sections: the periodicals section contains almost 2,000 titles. The special collection of commercial philatelic publications (auction catalogues, fixed-price offers, promotional material, traders' price lists) numbers 15,000 items.

Last but not least, the Institute also holds an archival fond which is extraordinarily important for the history of Italian postal communications: the archive of the "Direzione Superiore della Posta Militare" (High office for Military Mail), containing some 400,000 original documents about its activity during the 20th century.

As you may understand, books and publications on postal-historical topics are welcome and ready to be inserted in the always-growing catalogue which can be consulted online. You are therefore invited to send us your publications: they will be available to the international community of philatelists!

The Oriental Philatelic Association of London

ORIENTAL PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION OF LONDON

The Oriental Philatelic Association of London was founded in 1949. Its remit is very broad both geographically and historically as it covers all philatelic aspects of post within the former Ottoman Empire and all its myriad successor states. Nevertheless many members specialise in one small area. Over one third of our membership of over 150 lives abroad, with a particular large number in the USA.

OPAL publishes a couple of journals per year along with a couple of newsletters. Both publications are also used to answer members' queries. If our extensive library can't help with queries, then our membership invariably contains someone who can help, however specialised or esoteric. There are informal meetings held in various UK locations as well as our annual get together for our AGM.

Membership costs presently £5 per annum. Further details can be found on and contacts can be made via OPAL's website: www.mclstamps.co.uk/opal/opalhome.html.

Editorial

by Tobias Zywiets (mep-bulletin@zobbel.de)
 Publisher & Editor, The Middle East Philatelic Bulletin

This MEPB feels like another bumper issue, mainly due to two pieces: Alexis Savouloulos' original and award-winning research into the Austrian Post Office of Thessaloniki, and my Palestine Gazettes instalment for 1932. Both have been long and hard but also satisfying work. Georgi Popov writes about the Ottoman Post in Bulgaria.

Björn Sohrne presents the earliest known item on the Baluchistan landline from India to Persia, Jens Warnecke directs our attention to wartime measures in Turkey, Otto Graf studied the postal usage of the Leander's Tower postal cards, and Rainer Fuchs is on a journey through a jungle of genuine and fake Overland Mail covers.

Bernd-Dieter Buscke can present three new Jordanian censor markings and Folkert Bruining reworked his article about the island of Perim, co-written by the late Ot Louw, Peter Valdner presents information on the "Yellow Fleet" cinderellas and Thomas Schubert reports on the 2020 tariff of Palestine, which has already been superseded by a new tariff just a few weeks ago.

The Reactions, Comments, Queries section contains a wide range of subjects and welcomes contributors with their short pieces, reactions to articles, and requests.

Acknowledgements

I'd like to thank all contributors and all those aiding and encouraging me in the creation of this journal. The list would be too long to print here, so I mention just one non-philatelist, who, as native speaker, helped me with proofreading and gave advice on style of writing, namely Colin Booth.

Several organisations and persons gave me general permission to reprint articles from their journals and archives. One person I have especially to thank is Barry D. Hoffman, copyright owner of F. W. Pollack's THE HOLY LAND PHILATELIST. Many thanks to all!

Contributions

I will consider any article of quality for potential inclusion: be it a large article with original research, a small piece looking at a particular aspect, a concise description of an interesting cover, or a long-forgotten piece of research rediscovered. It can be original writing, or material already published. I will advise and help with anything that is offered. Translation into English can be arranged, and all steps and processes are closely coordinated with the author.

If you think you can contribute to the journal, please do not hesitate to contact me!

Articles should be submitted as plain text (TXT), rich text (RTF), LibreOffice/OpenOffice (ODT), MS Word (DOC, DOCX) or Adobe Acrobat (PDF). Images can be JPEG/JPG- or PNG-files in 300dpi (or higher) resolution.

Rights to texts and images not belonging to the author should be cleared, or at least be flagged-up, so that I can deal with any such issues. If in doubt: just ask! I will strive to resolve any such occurring problems.

Download Statistics

As of the end of April 2021, the number of downloads of the first sixteen issues continue to rise steadily, the cumulative total is now 56,183, averaging 125 downloads per month per issue. The totals for each issue are:

Issue 1 (December 2015):	8,737	134/month

Copyright and exploitation rights of articles and contributions remain unrestricted and with the individual authors. Contributions signed by name do not necessarily represent the views of the editor or the publisher.

The magazine is free. It is distributed by the publisher exclusively via digital download from his website. Each reader is permitted to print this magazine for his personal use.

The dissemination of the magazine to third parties as a PDF-file is disapproved of, but any promotion by mentioning the website address or download link is highly welcome.

A mailing list is operated by the publisher giving participants prior notice of new issues and developments related to the journal. The recipients' addresses are not disclosed to third parties and deleted upon request.

Any further commercial exploitation of the journal or its contents, e.g. selling prints, is not permitted without prior request to and approval from the publisher.

Storage of individual articles and contributions or of the complete magazine on websites is prohibited. Exceptions are made after agreeing terms and conditions of such a use with the publisher.

Those interested in commercial re-use of individual contributions, are asked to contact the publisher and the authors. Non-commercial re-use, e.g. in journals of philatelic associations, will be granted upon request to the publisher and author, provided the source is properly acknowledged.

The publisher strives to take account of existing copyrights and restrictions of texts and images used, but in individual cases this cannot be guaranteed, as it is not always possible to ascertain the existence of such rights.

The publisher and editor of this magazine has absolutely no commercial interests as it is published solely for the purpose of philatelic research and education.

If a breach of copyright is detected, respective parties are asked to contact the publisher to resolve the matter amicably, e.g. by inserting correct copyright notices.

The respective authors of individual articles and contributions are deemed responsible for all contents of their submissions. These rules are a prerequisite of accepting material for publication. Further claims of any kind, particularly for damages or indemnities, are expressly excluded.

Bei der Verarbeitung von personenbezogenen Daten, die zur Erfüllung eines Vertrages, dessen Vertragspartei die betroffene Person ist, erforderlich ist, dient Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. b DSGVO als Rechtsgrundlage. Dies gilt auch für Verarbeitungsvorgänge, die zur Durchführung vorvertraglicher Maßnahmen erforderlich sind.

3. Datenlöschung und Speicherdauer

Die personenbezogenen Daten der betroffenen Person werden gelöscht oder gesperrt, sobald der Zweck der Speicherung entfällt. V. Rechte der betroffenen Person

Werden personenbezogene Daten von Ihnen verarbeitet, sind Sie Betroffener i.S.d. DSGVO und es stehen Ihnen folgende Rechte gegenüber dem Verantwortlichen zu:

1. Auskunftsrecht

Sie können von dem Verantwortlichen eine Bestätigung darüber verlangen, ob personenbezogene Daten, die Sie betreffen, von mir verarbeitet werden. Liegt eine solche Verarbeitung vor, können Sie von dem Verantwortlichen über folgende Informationen Auskunft verlangen:

- (1) die Zwecke, zu denen die personenbezogenen Daten verarbeitet werden;
- (2) die Kategorien von personenbezogenen Daten, welche verarbeitet werden;
- (3) die Empfänger bzw. die Kategorien von Empfängern, gegenüber denen die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten offengelegt wurden oder noch offengelegt werden;
- (4) die geplante Dauer der Speicherung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten oder, falls konkrete Angaben hierzu nicht möglich sind, Kriterien für die Festlegung der Speicherdauer;
- (5) das Bestehen eines Rechts auf Berichtigung oder Löschung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten, eines Rechts auf Einschränkung der Verarbeitung durch den Verantwortlichen oder eines Widerspruchsrechts gegen diese Verarbeitung;
- (6) das Bestehen eines Beschwerderechts bei einer

Aufsichtsbehörde;

(7) alle verfügbaren Informationen über die Herkunft der Daten, wenn die personenbezogenen Daten nicht bei der betroffenen Person erhoben werden;

(8) das Bestehen einer automatisierten Entscheidungsfindung einschließlich Profiling gemäß Art. 22 Abs. 1 und 4 DSGVO und – zumindest in diesen Fällen – aussagekräftige Informationen über die involvierte Logik sowie die Tragweite und die angestrebten Auswirkungen einer derartigen Verarbeitung für die betroffene Person.

Ihnen steht das Recht zu, Auskunft darüber zu verlangen, ob die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten in ein Drittland oder an eine internationale Organisation übermittelt werden. In diesem Zusammenhang können Sie verlangen, über die geeigneten Garantien gem. Art. 46 DSGVO im Zusammenhang mit der Übermittlung unterrichtet zu werden.

Dieses Auskunftsrecht kann insoweit beschränkt werden, als es voraussichtlich die Verwirklichung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke unmöglich macht oder ernsthaft beeinträchtigt und die Beschränkung für die Erfüllung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke notwendig ist.

2. Recht auf Berichtigung

Sie haben ein Recht auf Berichtigung und/oder Vervollständigung gegenüber dem Verantwortlichen, sofern die verarbeiteten personenbezogenen Daten, die Sie betreffen, unrichtig oder unvollständig sind. Der Verantwortliche hat die Berichtigung unverzüglich vorzunehmen.

Ihr Recht auf Berichtigung kann insoweit beschränkt werden, als es voraussichtlich die Verwirklichung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke unmöglich macht oder ernsthaft beeinträchtigt und die Beschränkung für die Erfüllung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke notwendig ist.

3. Recht auf Einschränkung der Verarbeitung

Unter den folgenden Voraussetzungen können Sie die Einschränkung der Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten verlangen:

- (1) wenn Sie die Richtigkeit der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen für eine Dauer bestreiten, die es dem Verantwortlichen ermöglicht, die Richtigkeit der personenbezogenen Daten zu überprüfen;
- (2) die Verarbeitung unrechtmäßig ist und Sie die Löschung der personenbezogenen Daten ablehnen und stattdessen die Einschränkung der Nutzung der personenbezogenen Daten verlangen;
- (3) der Verantwortliche die personenbezogenen Daten für die Zwecke der Verarbeitung nicht länger benötigt, Sie diese jedoch zur Geltendmachung, Ausübung oder Verteidigung von Rechtsansprüchen benötigen, oder
- (4) wenn Sie Widerspruch gegen die Verarbeitung gemäß Art. 21 Abs. 1 DSGVO eingelegt haben und noch nicht feststeht, ob die berechtigten Gründe des Verantwortlichen gegenüber Ihren Gründen überwiegen. Wurde die Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten eingeschränkt, dürfen diese Daten – von ihrer Speicherung abgesehen – nur mit Ihrer Einwilligung oder zur Geltendmachung, Ausübung oder Verteidigung von Rechtsansprüchen oder zum Schutz der Rechte einer anderen natürlichen oder juristischen Person oder aus Gründen eines wichtigen öffentlichen Interesses der Union oder eines Mitgliedstaats verarbeitet werden.

Wurde die Einschränkung der Verarbeitung nach den o.g. Voraussetzungen eingeschränkt, werden Sie von dem Verantwortlichen unterrichtet bevor die Einschränkung aufgehoben wird.

Ihr Recht auf Einschränkung der Verarbeitung kann insoweit beschränkt werden, als es voraussichtlich die Verwirklichung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke unmöglich macht oder ernsthaft beeinträchtigt und die Beschränkung für die Erfüllung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke notwendig ist.

4. Recht auf Löschung

a) Löschungspflicht

Sie können von dem Verantwortlichen verlangen, dass die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten unverzüglich gelöscht werden, und der Verantwortliche ist verpflichtet, diese Daten unverzüglich zu löschen, sofern einer der folgenden Gründe zutrifft:

- (1) Die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten sind für die Zwecke, für die sie erhoben oder auf sonstige Weise verarbeitet wurden, nicht mehr notwendig.
- (2) Sie widerrufen Ihre Einwilligung, auf die sich die Verarbeitung gem. Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. a oder Art. 9 Abs. 2 lit. a DSGVO stützte, und es fehlt an einer anderweitigen Rechtsgrundlage für die Verarbeitung.
- (3) Sie legen gem. Art. 21 Abs. 1 DSGVO Widerspruch gegen die Verarbeitung ein und es liegen keine vorrangigen berechtigten Gründe für die Verarbeitung vor, oder Sie legen gem. Art. 21 Abs. 2 DSGVO Widerspruch gegen die Verarbeitung ein.
- (4) Die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten wurden unrechtmäßig verarbeitet.
- (5) Die Löschung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten ist zur Erfüllung einer rechtlichen Verpflichtung nach dem Unionsrecht oder dem Recht der Mitgliedstaaten erforderlich, dem der Verantwortliche unterliegt.
- (6) Die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten wurden in Bezug auf angebotene Dienste der Informationsgesellschaft gemäß Art. 8 Abs. 1 DSGVO erhoben.

b) Information an Dritte

Hat der Verantwortliche die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten öffentlich gemacht und ist er gem. Art. 17 Abs. 1 DSGVO zu deren Löschung verpflichtet, so trifft er unter Berücksichtigung der verfügbaren Technologie und der Implementierungskosten angemessene Maßnahmen, auch technischer Art, um für die Datenverarbeitung Verantwortliche, die die personenbezogenen Daten verarbeiten, darüber zu informieren, dass Sie als betroffene Person von ihnen die Löschung aller Links zu diesen personenbezogenen Daten oder von Kopien oder Replikationen dieser personenbezogenen Daten verlangt haben.

c) Ausnahmen

Das Recht auf Löschung besteht nicht, soweit die Verarbeitung erforderlich ist

- (1) zur Ausübung des Rechts auf freie Meinungsäußerung und Information;
- (2) zur Erfüllung einer rechtlichen Verpflichtung, die die Verarbeitung nach dem Recht der Union oder der Mitgliedstaaten, dem der Verantwortliche unterliegt, erfordert, oder zur Wahrnehmung einer Aufgabe, die im öffentlichen Interesse liegt oder in Ausübung öffentlicher Gewalt erfolgt, die dem Verantwortlichen übertragen wurde;
- (3) aus Gründen des öffentlichen Interesses im Bereich der öffentlichen Gesundheit gemäß Art. 9 Abs. 2 lit. h und i sowie Art. 9 Abs. 3 DSGVO
- (4) für im öffentlichen Interesse liegende Archivzwecke, wissenschaftliche oder historische Forschungszwecke oder für statistische Zwecke gem. Art. 89 Abs. 1 DSGVO, soweit das unter Abschnitt a) genannte Recht voraussichtlich die Verwirklichung der Ziele dieser Verarbeitung unmöglich macht oder ernsthaft beeinträchtigt, oder
- (5) zur Geltendmachung, Ausübung oder Verteidigung von Rechtsansprüchen.

5. Recht auf Unterrichtung

Haben Sie das Recht auf Berichtigung, Löschung oder Einschränkung der Verarbeitung gegenüber dem Verantwortlichen geltend gemacht, ist dieser verpflichtet, allen Empfängern, denen die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten offengelegt wurden, diese Berichtigung oder Löschung der Daten oder Einschränkung der Verarbeitung mitzuteilen, es sei denn, dies erweist sich als unmöglich oder ist mit einem unverhältnismäßigen Aufwand verbunden. Ihnen steht gegenüber dem Verantwortlichen das Recht zu, über diese Empfänger unterrichtet zu werden.

6. Recht auf Datenübertragbarkeit

Sie haben das Recht, die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten, die Sie dem Verantwortlichen bereitgestellt haben, in einem strukturierten, gängigen und maschinenlesbaren Format zu erhalten. Außerdem haben Sie das Recht diese Daten einem anderen Verantwortlichen ohne Behinderung durch den Verantwortlichen, dem die personenbezogenen Daten bereitgestellt wurden, zu übermitteln, sofern

- (1) die Verarbeitung auf einer Einwilligung gem. Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. a DSGVO oder Art. 9 Abs. 2 lit. a DSGVO oder auf einem Vertrag gem. Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. b DSGVO beruht und
- (2) die Verarbeitung mithilfe automatisierter Verfahren erfolgt.

In Ausübung dieses Rechts haben Sie ferner das Recht, zu erwirken, dass die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten direkt von einem Verantwortlichen einem anderen Verantwortlichen übermittelt werden, soweit dies technisch machbar ist. Freiheiten und Rechte anderer Personen dürfen hierdurch nicht beeinträchtigt werden.

Das Recht auf Datenübertragbarkeit gilt nicht für eine Verarbeitung personenbezogener Daten, die für die Wahrnehmung einer Aufgabe erforderlich ist, die im öffentlichen Interesse liegt oder in Ausübung öffentlicher Gewalt erfolgt, die dem Verantwortlichen übertragen wurde.

7. Widerspruchsrecht

Sie haben das Recht, aus Gründen, die sich aus ihrer besonderen Situation ergeben, jederzeit gegen die Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten, die aufgrund von Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. e oder f DSGVO erfolgt, Widerspruch einzulegen; dies gilt auch für ein auf diese Bestimmungen gestütztes Profiling.

Der Verantwortliche verarbeitet die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten nicht mehr, es sei denn, er kann zwingende schutzwürdige Gründe für die Verarbeitung nachweisen, die Ihre Interessen, Rechte und Freiheiten überwiegen, oder die Verarbeitung dient der Geltendmachung, Ausübung oder Verteidigung von Rechtsansprüchen.

Werden die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten verarbeitet, um Direktwerbung zu betreiben, haben Sie das Recht, jederzeit Widerspruch gegen die Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten zum Zwecke derartiger Werbung einzulegen; dies gilt auch für das Profiling, soweit es mit solcher Direktwerbung in Verbindung steht.

Widersprechen Sie der Verarbeitung für Zwecke der Direktwerbung, so werden die Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten nicht mehr für diese Zwecke verarbeitet.

Sie haben die Möglichkeit, im Zusammenhang mit der Nutzung von Diensten der Informationsgesellschaft – ungeachtet der Richtlinie 2002/58/EG – Ihr Widerspruchsrecht mittels automatisierter Verfahren auszuüben, bei denen technische Spezifikationen verwendet werden.

Bei Datenverarbeitung zu wissenschaftlichen, historischen oder statistischen Forschungszwecken:

Sie haben auch das Recht, aus Gründen, die sich aus Ihrer besonderen Situation ergeben, bei der Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten, die zu wissenschaftlichen oder historischen Forschungszwecken oder zu statistischen Zwecken gem. Art. 89 Abs. 1 DSGVO erfolgt, dieser zu widersprechen.

Ihr Widerspruchsrecht kann insoweit beschränkt werden, als es voraussichtlich die Verwirklichung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke unmöglich macht oder ernsthaft beeinträchtigt und die Beschränkung für die Erfüllung der Forschungs- oder Statistikzwecke notwendig ist.

8. Recht auf Widerruf der datenschutzrechtlichen

Einwilligungserklärung

Sie haben das Recht, Ihre datenschutzrechtliche Einwilligungserklärung jederzeit zu widerrufen. Durch den Widerruf der Einwilligung wird die Rechtmäßigkeit der aufgrund der Einwilligung bis zum Widerruf erfolgten Verarbeitung nicht berührt.

9. Recht auf Beschwerde bei einer Aufsichtsbehörde

Unbeschadet eines anderweitigen verwaltungsrechtlichen oder gerichtlichen Rechtsbehelfs steht Ihnen das Recht auf Beschwerde bei einer Aufsichtsbehörde, insbesondere in dem Mitgliedstaat ihres Aufenthaltsorts, ihres Arbeitsplatzes oder des Orts des mutmaßlichen Verstoßes, zu, wenn Sie der Ansicht sind, dass die Verarbeitung der Sie betreffenden personenbezogenen Daten gegen die DSGVO verstößt.

Die Aufsichtsbehörde, bei der die Beschwerde eingereicht wurde, unterrichtet den Beschwerdeführer über den Stand und die Ergebnisse der Beschwerde einschließlich der Möglichkeit eines gerichtlichen Rechtsbehelfs nach Art. 78 DSGVO.

By means of this data protection declaration I would like to inform the public about the type, scope and purpose of the personal data collected, used and processed by me. Furthermore, data subjects will be informed of their rights by means of this data protection declaration.

As data controller, I have implemented numerous technical and organisational measures to ensure the utmost protection of the personal data processed via this website. Nevertheless, Internet-based data transmissions, like e-mail, may in principle contain security risks, so that absolute protection cannot be guaranteed. For this reason, every person concerned is free to transmit personal data to me also in alternative ways.

I. Name and address of the person responsible

The person responsible in the sense of the General Data Protection Regulation and other national data protection laws of EU member states as well as other data protection regulations is:

II. General information about data processing

1. Scope of processing of personal data

In general, I only process personal data of users if this is necessary to provide information by way of a mailing-list. The further processing of personal data only takes place with the user's consent.

2. Legal basis for the processing of personal data

Insofar as I obtain the consent of the data subject for the processing of personal data, Art. 6 para. 1 lit. a EU General Data Protection Regulation serves as the legal basis for the processing of personal data.

In the processing of personal data required for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is a party, Art. 6 para. 1 lit. b DSGVO serves as the legal basis. This also applies to processing operations that are necessary to carry out pre-contractual measures.

As far as the processing of personal data is necessary for the fulfilment of a legal obligation, which is subject to me, Art. 6 Abs. 1 lit. c DSGVO serves as legal basis.

In the event that the vital interests of the data subject or another natural person require the processing of personal data, Article 6(1)(d) DSGVO serves as the legal basis.

If processing is necessary to safeguard a legitimate interest of mine or of a third party and if the interests, fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject do not outweigh the former interest, Art. 6 para. 1 lit. f DSGVO serves as the legal basis for processing.

3. Deletion time of data and storage

The personal data of the person concerned will be deleted or blocked as soon as the purpose of storage ceases to apply. Furthermore, data may be stored if this has been provided for by the European or national legislators' regulations, laws or other provisions to which the person responsible is subject. The data will also be blocked or deleted if a storage period prescribed by the aforementioned standards expires, unless there is a need for further storage of the data for the conclusion or fulfilment of a contract.

III. Mailing-List

Every user is free to subscribe for free to my mailing list via e-mail. This does not create any obligations for the user.

1. Description and scope of data processing

The following data is collected:

1. surname and first name of the user
2. e-mail address of the user

2. Legal basis for data processing

The legal basis for the temporary storage of data is Art. 6 para. 1 DSGVO.

3. Purpose of data processing

The purpose of the mailing list is to provide the user with information about the contents and appearance of the journal.

4. Storage duration

The user can leave the mailing list at any time. The data will be deleted immediately.

5. Possibility of objection and elimination

The collection of data for the provision of the mailing list is absolutely necessary for the operation of the mailing list. Consequently, there is no possibility of objection on the part of the user. The user can, however, object to the storage at any time and thus leave the mailing list.

IV. E-Mail contact

1. Description and scope of data processing

You can contact me via the e-mail address provided on my website. In this case, the user's personal data transmitted by e-mail will be stored. In this context, the data will not be passed on to third parties. The data is used exclusively for processing the conversation.

V. Rights of the person concerned

If your personal data is processed, you are affected within the meaning of the DSGVO and you have the following rights vis-à-vis the person responsible:

1. The right to information

You can ask the person in charge to confirm whether personal data concerning you will be processed by me. If such processing is available, you can request the following information from the person responsible:

- (1) the purposes for which the personal data are processed;
- (2) the categories of personal data processed;
- (3) the recipients or categories of recipients to whom the personal data concerning you have been or are still being disclosed;
- (4) the planned duration of the storage of the personal data concerning you or, if specific information on this is not possible, criteria for determining the storage period;
- (5) the existence of a right to rectification or deletion of personal data concerning you, a right to limitation of processing by the controller or a right to object to such processing;
- (6) the existence of a right of appeal to a supervisory authority;
- (7) any available information on the origin of the data if the personal data are not collected from the data subject;
- (8) the existence of automated decision-making including profiling in accordance with Art. 22 para. 1 and 4 DSGVO and – at least in these cases – meaningful information on the logic involved and the scope and intended effects of such processing for the data subject.

You have the right to request information as to whether the personal data concerning you is transferred to a third country or to an international organisation. In this context, you may request to be informed of the appropriate guarantees pursuant to Art. 46 DSGVO in connection with the transmission. This right to information may be limited to the extent that it is likely to make it impossible or seriously impair the realisation of research or statistical purposes and the limitation is necessary for the fulfilment of research or statistical purposes.

2. The right of correction

You have a right of rectification and/or completion vis-à-vis the data controller if the personal data processed concerning you are incorrect or incomplete. The person responsible shall make the correction without delay.

Your right to correction may be limited to the extent that it is likely to render impossible or seriously prejudicial the achievement of the research or statistical purposes and the limitation is necessary for the fulfilment of the research or statistical purposes.

3. Right to limitation of processing

Under the following conditions, you may request that the processing of personal data concerning you be restricted:

- (1) if you dispute the accuracy of the personal data concerning you for a period that enables the data controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- (2) the processing is unlawful and you refuse to delete the personal data and instead request the restriction of the use of the personal data;
- (3) the data controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but you do need them to assert, exercise or defend legal claims, or (4) if you have filed an objection to the processing pursuant to Art. 21 para. 1 DSGVO and it has not yet been determined whether the legitimate reasons of the person responsible outweigh your reasons. If the processing of personal data concerning you has been restricted, such data may only be processed - apart from being stored - with your consent or for the purpose of asserting, exercising or defending rights or protecting the rights of another natural or legal person or on grounds of an important public interest of the Union or a Member State.

If the processing restriction has been limited according to the above conditions, you will be informed by the person responsible before the restriction is lifted.

Your right to limitation of processing may be limited to the extent that it is likely to render impossible or seriously prejudicial the achievement of research or statistical purposes and the restriction is necessary for the fulfilment of research or statistical purposes.

4. The right of deletion

a) Duty of deletion

You may request the data controller to delete the personal data relating to you immediately, and the data controller is obliged to delete this data immediately, if one of the following reasons applies:

- (1) The personal data concerning you are no longer necessary for the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed.
- (2) You revoke your consent, on which the processing was based pursuant to Art. 6 para. 1 lit. a or Art. 9 para. 2 lit. a DSGVO, and there is no other legal basis for the processing.
- (3) You file an objection against the processing pursuant to Art. 21 para. 1 DSGVO and there are no overriding legitimate reasons for the processing, or you file an objection against the processing pursuant to Art. 21 para. 2 DSGVO.
- (4) The personal data concerning you have been processed unlawfully.
- (5) The deletion of personal data relating to you is necessary to fulfil a legal obligation under Union law or the law of the Member States to which the data controller is subject.
- (6) The personal data concerning you were collected in relation to information society services offered pursuant to Art. 8 para. 1 DSGVO.

b) Information to third parties

If the data controller has made the personal data concerning you public and is obliged to delete it pursuant to Art. 17 para. 1 DSGVO, he shall take appropriate measures, including technical measures, taking into account the available technology and the implementation costs, to inform data processors who process the personal data that you as the data subject have requested the deletion of all links to this personal data or of copies or replications of this personal data.

c) Exceptions

The right to cancellation does not exist if the processing is necessary

- (1) to exercise freedom of expression and information;
- (2) to fulfil a legal obligation required for processing under the law of the Union or of the Member States to which the controller is subject, or to perform a task in the public interest, scientific or in the exercise of official authority conferred on the controller
- (3) for reasons of public interest in the field of public health pursuant to Art. 9 para. 2 lit. h and i and Art. 9 para. 3 DSGVO;
- (4) for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or for statistical purposes pursuant to Art. 89 para. 1 DSGVO, insofar as the law referred to under a) is likely to make it impossible or seriously impair the attainment of the objectives of such processing, or
- (5) to assert, exercise or defend legal claims.

5. Right to information

If you have exercised your right to have the data controller correct, delete or limit the processing, he/she is obliged to inform all recipients to whom the personal data concerning you have been disclosed of this correction or deletion of the data or restriction on processing, unless this proves impossible or involves a disproportionate effort. Recipients have the right vis-à-vis the person responsible to be informed about these recipients.

6. Right to data transferability

You have the right to receive the personal data concerning you that you have provided to the person responsible in a structured, common and machine-readable format. In addition, you have the right to transmit this data to another person in charge without obstruction by the person in charge to whom the personal data was provided, provided

(1) processing is based on consent pursuant to Art. 6 para. 1 lit. a DSGVO or Art. 9 para. 2 lit. a DSGVO or on a contract pursuant to Art. 6 para. 1 lit. b DSGVO and

(2) processing is carried out by means of automated methods

In exercising this right, you also have the right to request that the personal data concerning you be transferred directly from one data controller to another data controller, insofar as this is technically feasible. The freedoms and rights of other persons must not be affected by this.

The right to transferability shall not apply to the processing of personal data necessary for the performance of a task in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority conferred on the controller.

7. Right of objection

You have the right to object at any time, for reasons arising from your particular situation, to the processing of personal data concerning you under Article 6(1)(e) or (f) of the DSGVO; this also applies to profiling based on these provisions.

The data controller no longer processes the personal data concerning you, unless he can prove compelling reasons worthy of protection for the processing, which outweigh your interests, rights and freedoms, or the processing serves to assert, exercise or defend legal claims.

If the personal data concerning you are processed for direct marketing purposes, you have the right to object at any time to the processing of the personal data concerning you for the purpose of such advertising; this also applies to profiling, insofar as it is associated with such direct marketing.

If you object to the processing for direct marketing purposes, the personal data concerning you will no longer be processed for these purposes.

You have the possibility to exercise your right of objection in connection with the use of Information Society services by means of automated procedures using technical specifications, notwithstanding Directive 2002/58/EC.

For data processing for scientific, historical or statistical research purposes:

You also have the right to object to the processing of personal data concerning you for scientific or historical research purposes or for statistical purposes pursuant to Art. 89 para. 1 DSGVO for reasons arising from your particular situation.

Your right of objection may be limited to the extent that it is likely to make it impossible or seriously impair the realisation of the research or statistical purposes and the limitation is necessary for the fulfilment of the research or statistical purposes.

8. Right to revoke the declaration of consent

You have the right to revoke your data protection declaration of consent at any time. The revocation of consent shall not affect the legality of the processing carried out on the basis of the consent until revocation.

9. Right of appeal to a supervisory authority

Without prejudice to any other administrative or judicial remedy, you have the right of appeal to a supervisory authority, in particular in the EU member state where you reside, work or suspect the infringement, if you believe that the processing of personal data concerning you is contrary to the DSGVO.

The supervisory authority to which the complaint has been submitted shall inform the complainant of the status and results of the complaint, including the possibility of a judicial remedy under Article 78 DSGVO.
